EXTRA SESSION EXPECTED OVER JAM ON RELIEF

House Republicans Vote Down $25,000,000 Plan 3 Times.

DEMOCRATS PREDICT CONFERENCE IMPASSE

Senators Agree on Five More Demands; Solution Rests With President.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

In spite of an agreement of Senate Democrats yesterday either to get through their six-point relief program or to force an extra session, House Republicans held their lines and three times voted down proposals for an appropriation of $25,000,000 to relieve distress.

The outcome of the day's maneuvers at both ends of the Capitol was generally interpreted as meaning an extra session. The Senate Democrats who previously had threatened this if the $25,000,000 appropriation was not agreed to, met in conference and added five other demands to their list, at least two of which the President is just as much opposed to as he is to the $25,000,000 appropriation.

As the situation now stands, both sides are considered as having burned their bridges behind them, the administration on the one hand and the Senate Democrats on the other. There does not seem any possibility of either side backing down.

Rests With Hoover.

The only manner in which the Democratic program can be thwarted, apparently, is for the President not to call the extra session until May or June, when, it is presumed, the relief measures would not be appropriate. In many quarters the belief was that this is exactly what the President intends to do.

Under the circumstances, the administration leaders held their forces remarkably well. On what was considered the crucial test, the vote on the amendment of Representative Taylor (Democrat), Colorado, to appropriate the money for the President to distribute by any agency he saw fit, only 21 Republicans bolted and, in turn, the administration picked up six Democrats.

Republicans voting for the Taylor proposal were: Browne, of Wisconsin; Campbell, of Iowa; Fitzgerald, of Minnesota; Cooper, of Wisconsin; Craddock, of Kentucky; Dennison, of Illinois; Finley, of Kentucky; Frear, of Wisconsin; Garber, of Oklahoma; Hull, of Wisconsin; La Guardia, of New York; Lamberton, of Iowa; Nelson, of Wisconsin; Peavey, of Wisconsin; Pittinger, of Minnesota; Schneider, of Wisconsin; Sears, of Nebraska; Sinclair, of North Dakota; Stone, of Oklahoma; Taylor, of Tennessee, and Zihlman, of Maryland. The lone Farmer-Laborite, Kvale, voted for the proposal.

These Also Voted Down.

The vote was 212 to 149. Then, in succession, the House voted down, 255 to 85, standing vote, Representative La Guardia's proposal to give the money to charitable agencies upon their matching it, and, by a vote of 217 to 151, the proposal of Representative Byrnes, of Tennessee, similar to that of Mr. Taylor.

Considerable credit for the outcome in the House goes to Majority Leader Tilson, who insisted from the beginning the administration would hold firm. Speaker Longworth was not so certain of this and thought a compromise with the Senate was the best way out.

Of course, Tilson's victory means a deadlock. The Interior appropriation bill, which contains the controverted appropriation, now goes to conference and there, according to the Senate Democrats, it will remain.

Extra Session Expected.

Administration leaders gave up any hope they may have had that the Democrats were bluffing when the result of the Democratic conference became known, and they frankly conceded an extra session was the answer.

It is understood that only two or three Democrats were absent from the conference and their absence was explained as unavoidable. This does not mean, however, that there will not be four or five bolters from the program as the endurance contest wears on. This loss, though, will not prevent the party from going through with its program.

With the votes of the Progressives they unquestionably can prevent passage of the necessary appropriation bills or the continuing resolution which Republican leaders had planned to bring in later. The resolution simply would provide that appropriations for the current fiscal year be carried over into next year.

Bayard Votes Bought In Delaware, Is Claim

Upper—JOHN J. RASKOB.
Lower—PIERRE S. DU PONT.

(Associated Press.)

A charge that votes were bought for former Senator Thomas F. Bayard in the 1930 Delaware Democratic convention which nominated him for another Senate term was made yesterday before the Senate campaign funds committee.

It came from Wright Dizer, a friend of the late Josiah Marvel, who lost to Bayard. He added that while he was not certain of the source of funds used for Bayard, the "general suspicion is that it lay between" John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and Pierre S. du Pont, wealthy Delaware manufacturer. Mr. Roskob said at Palm Beach, Fla., that Mr. Dizer's testimony concerning himself and du Pont was "foolish."

He said the nomination of Mr. Bayard over Mr. Marvel was the result of a "fair and square campaign in which wet and dry members of the national committee were divided."

Mr. Raskob is a director of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. Mr. Bayard ran as an antiprohibitionist, while Mr. Marvel did not commit himself.

Mr. Dizer, an unsuccessful candidate for the House at the primary, said the Democratic national chairman appeared on the platform at the State convention to "see the goods delivered that were bought and paid for for Bayard."

A majority of the delegates were elected, he said, with instructions to vote for Mr. Marvel, but many "switched their votes."

Mr. Marvel placed Mr. Raskob's name in nomination for chairman of the Democratic national committee in 1928 at New York and "was largely responsible" for his selection, Mr. Dizer testified.

Mr. Bayard was defeated in the CHEST OBTAINS $158,221 NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS

$1,278,024, So Far, Is $778,130 Short of Capital's Goal.

PERSHING APPLAUDED FOR HIS UNIT'S WORK

Couzens Using Newsreel to Present Appeal; Street Talks Over Radio.

The Community Chest contributions yesterday reached $1,278,024.06, when workers reported new subscriptions totaling $158,221.81. This amount is $778,130.34 less than the goal of $1,950,154.40, which is scheduled to be reached by Wednesday night.

Gen. John J. Pershing, head of the Government unit, was given an ovation yesterday at the report meeting in the Willard Hotel. Gen. Pershing's unit has obtained pledges totaling 70 per cent of its quota. He urged his workers to strive harder to go over the allotted quota.

Newbold Noyes, reporting for the special gifts committee, of which he is chairman, announced nineteen contributions totaling $14,431.21. E. W. Libbey, reporting for the governmental unit, announced gifts of $70,-970.11 from 8,214 contributors. William Russell, reporting for the group solicitation unit, in the absence of Chairman Graham, announced gifts of $19,690.15 from 2,481 contributors. Chairman Sidney F. Taliaferro, of the schools unit, announced gifts of $1,-407.79 from 139 contributors. Simon Lyon, chairman of the Metropolitan unit, announced, through his regional and division chairmen, gifts of $51,-722.55 from 2,231 contributors.

Reports by Divisions.

These were reported as follows:

Division 1, Arthur Adelman, chairman; $1,573 from 55 pledges. Division 2, Lee D. Latimer, chairman, $1,281 from 80 pledges. Division 3, Grahame H. Powell, chairman, $4,043 from 141 pledges. Division 4, C. Chester Caywood, chairman; $492 from 30 pledges. Division 6, J. C. Gorrell, chairman; $3,052.80 from 111 pledges. Division 7, Charles H. Doing, chairman; $3,211.25 from 150 pledges.

Division 8, Mark Landsburgh, chairman; $10,385 from 389 pledges. Division 9, William J. Crane, chairman, $1,160.50 from 70 pledges. Division 11, John W. Hardell, chairman; $3,193.25 from 190 pledges. Maryland Woman Quits G. O. P. Committee Post

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Mrs. W. Bladen Lowndes today resigned as Republican national committeewoman for Maryland, a post she has occupied since 1923. Her resignation was sent to Senator Simeon D. Fess, chairman of the national Republican committee, with a request it be acted on immediately.

She said she felt the privilege of close association with national issues which the post offered should now be given to some other woman.

DISTRICT FUNDS BILL COMES UP IN HOUSE TODAY

CARRIES BIG SCHOOL BUILDING PROGRAM

Measure Expected to Pass, Without Modification, by Next Tuesday.

Consideration of the annual District appropriation bill for 1932 is expected to be begun in the House today and Tuesday afternoon is expected to see passage of the bill without material change as reported to the House yesterday by Representative Robert B. Simmons (Republican), Nebraska, chairman of the House appropriations subcommittee in charge of the bill.

The bill, reported yesterday, was the second largest annual appropriation bill reported by the House appropriations committee. It provided $48,857,228 for the conduct of the District in the next fiscal year.

There were several surprises in the bill. The appropriations subcommittee went even farther than the District Commissioners and the Budget Bureau proposed in providing for certain municipal activities, although the total of the bill as reported was a little less than the total recommended in the estimates to Congress.

Greatest School Program.

The bill provides for what is probably the greatest public school building program in the history of the National Capital.

Other high lights include approval of $9,500,000 as the amount of the Federal appropriation for maintenance and development of the National Capital; stipulation that there shall be no reduction in municipal, real estate taxes in the next fiscal year; elimination of proposed increases to help equalize some of the existing discrepancies in salaries of District employes; and specific prohibition against employment of school appropriations for conducting under-age kindergartens.

The school building program provided by the subcommittee, its report said, "represents an unusual increase in school building appropriations" adding that "the committee feels that it results in an unbalanced budget," but the "increase should not be taken as a precedent for similar appropriations next year."

Will Reduce Congestion.

The committee summarized the school situation under a heading "elimination of congestion in elementary schools" as follows:

"It appears that the new school building provided for in the 1931 appropriation act, when completed, will result in the elimination of 38 portables, 88 part-time classes and 95 oversize classes; and that the new buildings provided in 1932, when completed, will further eliminate 15

Harvard Youth Ousted In Pelting of Vallee

Boston, Mass., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—James S. Angier, of New Haven, Conn., Harvard student and son of Prof. Roswell Parker Angier, of Yale, was dismissed from Harvard University by the faculty today.

The dismissal followed a series of escapades which ended last Thursday night when grape fruit were hurled at Rudy Vallee by three students at the Metropolitan Theater.

Above, left to right—Rear Admirals William W. Phelps, Louis R. de Steiguer, who will preside, and John B. Y. Blakely, and, below right, Rear Admiral Frank H. Clark named for the court which will hear the Butler charges. Below, left, Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, who will prepare charges, and, center, Maj. Henry Leonard, for the defense.

Six Admirals and Retired Major General to Hear Case.

EXECUTIVE OR OPEN HEARING UNDECIDED

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

A naval court of seven men—six admirals and one retired major general—will preside at the trial of Maj. Gen. Smedley Butler, hard-hitting fighter and orator of the United States Marines.

With the selection of these seven late yesterday, it appears now that the sea soldier who dared call Mussolini a hit-and-run driver will face a general court-martial within ten days. In all likelihood, the trial will be held in Washington.

A cablegram from Mussolini was received at the State Department yesterday in which the Italian dictator told Secretary Stimson that he had "already forgotten" the incident. He thanked Secretary Stimson for his prompt apology for the Marine general's attack on him.

Considers Incident Closed.

"I felt sure," Mussolini cabled the Italian Ambassador here, "I would obtain justice and prompt redress from the fairness, the loyalty and the friendship of the American Government and the American people, whose respect for truth is well known to me.

"Will you please communicate to the Federal Government that I consider closed the incident which for my part I have already forgotten.

(Signed) "MUSSOLINI."

The seven officers who will pass judgment on Gen. Butler's offense were selected by Maj. Gen. Ben H. Fuller, commandant of the Marine Corps, and were approved by Secretary of the Navy Adams.

DeSteiguer Heads Court.

The personnel of the court follows:

Rear Admiral Louis R. deSteiguer, commandant of the Third Naval District, with headquarters in New York. He will be the president of the court.

Rear Admiral Montgomery M. Taylor, head of the war plans division, office of naval operations, Navy Department.

Maj. Gen. Joseph H. Pendleton, United States Marine Corps, retired, who lives at Coronado, Calif.

Rear Admiral Frank H. Clark, director of fleet training, office of naval operations, Navy Department.

Watts Will Prosecute.

The officer who will prosecute Gen. Butler, it was announced, is Capt. William C. Watts, chief of staff of the Fourth Naval District, with headquarters at Philadelphia.

The task of drafting the charges and specifications against Gen. Butler probably will be completed today, and the prospect is that the officer will be accused either of "conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline" or "conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman."

Plans for the defense of Gen. Butler, which promise to be elaborate, were being worked out yesterday in the office of Maj. Henry Leonard, U. S. M. C., retired, a Washington-born attorney, who has his office here.

Fought With Butler.

Maj. Leonard, who lost an arm while fighting alongside Gen. Butler in the Boxer uprising in China, probably will be just one of several attorneys who will represent "Fightin'" Smedley.

There was some suggestion yesterday that an effort would be made to retain John W. Davis, one-time Democratic nominee for President, but in Mr. Davis' office in New York it was

RKO-PATHE MERGER STIRS ALL FILMLAND

COMBINES MANY STARS

Los Angeles, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—The mellowed pioneer and the ambitious youngster of motion pictures joined hands today to embark on a business career out of which a new mammoth may rise in the Nation's fifth industry.

Nothing, not even the brilliant premiere tonight of Charles Chaplin's new picture, "City Lights," the daring experiment of a silent film in these ruling days of the talkies, so stirred filmdom's imagination as the announcement that Radio-Keith-Orpheum, Inc., had acquired the assets of Pathe Studios.

The consolidation of these producers, R.-K.-O., 2 years old this month, and Pathe, with more than a quarter of a century of film history behind it, was viewed as one of the first aggressive steps of the young giant to cut a place for itself in the top of the film industry.

The foundation for the march of this new unit toward a goal of outstanding importance in films has been laid in an interesting array of film stars, plans for a production budget of more than $20,000,000 this year, and strong financial backing.

R.-K.-O. has under contract such celebrities as Richard Dix, Betty Compson, Bebe Daniels, Evelyn Brent, Jack Mulhall, Sue Carol, Bert Wheeler, Robert Woolsey and Lita Le Roy. To these Pathe added Ann Harding, Constance Bennett, Bill Boyd and Helen Twelvetrees. Two of the outstanding productions of 1930, Ann Harding in "Holiday" and Helen Twelvetrees in "Her Man," were produced by Pathe.

Until acquisition of Pathe R.-K.-O's place in the industry had been more or less one of watchful waiting. Few outstanding productions have been made. The watchful attitude was assumed in view of business conditions.

AGREEMENT SIGNED UPON MEXICAN DEBT

REVISES 1930 PROGRAM

New York, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—A new agreement for settlement of the Mexican debt was signed today to permit postponement of gold payments for two years, because of the sharp shrinkage in the price of silver, which has impaired Mexico's capacity to pay.

Other features of the latest plan for settlement of the long standing debt, amounting to approximately $700,000,000, agreed upon July 25, 1930, were retained in the new agreement signed today by Monte de Oca, Mexican minister of finance, and Thomas W. Lamont, chairman of the international committee of bankers on Mexico.

The agreement, made public by Mr. Lamont, is subject to the approval of the Mexican Federal Congress and the bondholders. The former agreement had not been acted upon by the Congress, and the bankers' committee has been advised that the government intends to call a special session of Congress late this winter, or in the early spring, for the purpose of considering the new agreement. The old pact was declared ineffective by the Mexican government following the drop in silver prices.

Mr. Lamont said that since the original agreement was signed the value of the Mexican silver peso has declined to such an extent that the government, whose revenues are received largely in silver, stated its capacity to pay in gold has decreased so greatly it can not possibly provide the amount of gold called for under the agrement within the limit of its budget revenue.

Under the July 25 agreement the rate of exchange was fixed at 45.25 American cents par peso, which was the prevailing rate then. Since that time the peso has suffered a precipitate drop with the fall in the price of silver. It is now quoted around 41.19.

BANKRUPTCY LISTS DEBT TO WARDMAN

OTHERS HERE ARE NAMED

William Perry Doing, jr., a former Washington real estate man engaged in the same business at New York, filed a bankruptcy schedule yesterday in the United States District Court there, listing liabilities of $648,910 and naming the Wardman Corporation, or Harry Wardman, as the major creditor, in the amount of $293,333.

Mr. Doing, a native and long a resident of this city, lived on Newton street near Seventeenth street northwest until moving to New York about a year ago to maintain offices at 11 West Forty-second street. He gave his assets as $140.

Mr. Doing named the Wardman Corporation as one among various Washington unsecured creditors, all of whom he said held notes indorsed by him. The firms and amounts are International Finance Co., Investment Building, $75,000; Elizabeth Brown, care W. C. Balderston, Evans Building, $5,000; W. W. CONVICTED OFFICERS DETAIL HUGE BRIBES

Border Patrolmen Paid Up to $1,500 Weekly as Liquor Graft.

12 ENTER PENITENTIARY

Detroit, Jan. 30 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Twelve convicted customs border patrolmen today told amazing stories of their experiences on the Detroit River, as they entered the United States Penitentiary in Leavenworth, Kans., to serve 20 months. They told of bribes as high as $1,500 a week, of the diversion of seized liquor for superior officers, of a lieutenant shot at by his own men, because he was honest, of a parade of rum boats which mockingly followed a boatload of high customs officials, who were making a tour of the river.

One of their comrades stayed honest, the racketeering Federal officers said, and died a poor man. They raised money to bury him.

Howard Baker, 27, one of the convicted men, told of accepting $20,000 in bribes during 23 months in the patrol. He had one arm permanently disabled when a rumrunner's car crashed into him. Discharged, he said, for "lack of experience," after nearly two years on the job, he became associated with a down-river bootlegger as "pay-off" man to the patrol.

"If we paid $1,500 for the 'go' signal on a load," he said, "each of the patrolmen got $500. The other $500 was for their sergeant."

Charles V. Basile, another of the convicted officers, told of collecting $6,000 during eight months on the river.

"I was one of the strictest inspectors on the river for three months," he said. "Then I caught my commanding officer drinking some of the liquor I had seized. Honest officers who reported irregularities were transferred, or disappeared from the force.

"Lieut. Louis Monroe obtained names of nine inspectors who were Says: The management of Muscle Shoals demonstrates the utter hopelessness of having any considerable business enterprise conducted by the Congress. Development of this plant was commenced under war-time pressure to furnish power to make nitrates for explosives and fertilizers. More recent discoveries and processes render it if not obsolete at least unnecessary for that purpose. Other domestic sources of supply make it a superfluity.

Like other war property this plant should have been liquidated years ago. But in spite of committee, commission and executive recommendation politics has always intervened. Rivalry among power, industrial and agricultural interests has prevented any decisive action. Nearly all concerned apparently have wanted to get some special advantage out of the Government. That will always be the case with any business with which the Government is involved or any property the Government owns. Meantime, many useful projects on the Tennessee River are held in abeyance.

For the United States to go into the electrical business would be a gross misuse of its powers and involve it in all kinds of political abuses. The thing to do with Muscle Shoals is to dispose of it to private interests with suitable restrictions.

President Appoints Civilian Governor of Virgin Islands

President Hoover yesterday ordered a change in the government of the Virgin Islands, the effect of which will be to replace the naval governor with a civilian governor and to transfer jurisdiction from the Navy Department to the Interior Department.

The new civilian governor, the President announced, would be Dr. Paul M. Pearson, of Swarthmore, Pa., a former professor of public speaking at the college there. He will succeed Capt. Waldo E. Evans.

The reasons behind the change are chiefly economic. As a result of drought, the crash of the sugar market and prohibition (the Virgin Islands were famous for their rum), the native communities have had great difficulty in raising revenue. Uncle Sam, in fact, has been supplying about 60 per cent of the budget.

It was believed a civil administration could better work out these economic problems.

The Virgin Islands, in the West Indies, were purchased by this country from Denmark in 1917 for $25,000,000. In the fourteen years this country has owned them, great improvements have been made by the Navy, with the help of Congress. The natives' health has been improved tremendously and the educational facilities likewise.

Envoys Will Get 'Tip' Fund Despite Senators' Protest

Bratton and Norris Say It Is Improper to Appropriate $125,000 for Diplomatic Fetes While Americans Are Hungry; Heflin Supports Plan.

A storm of debate swept the Senate yesterday over the propriety of appropriating $125,000 for American diplomats to be used next year for entertainments, tips and flowers, while thousands of American people were in need.

Senator Bratton (Democrat), New Mexico, attempted to eliminate the item from the State Department appropriation bill, but lost, 47 to 16. He also failed to cut the amount to $92,-000, the sum appropriated for the same purposes this year.

The New Mexico senator, supported by Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, contended it was bad policy and especially inopportune to spend such large sums for tips and flowers on occasions of births, weddings and deaths of foreign personages.

Senators Bingham (Republican), Connecticut; Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, and Heflin (Democrat), Alabama, contended a certain amount of fees for flowers and the like was essential if men without wealth at small posts abroad were to get along.

Two former American diplomats, Senators Morrow (Republican), New Jersey, who recently served as Ambassador to Mexico, and Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, who served as Minister to Greece, voted to keep the appropriation in the bill.

"I think we are traveling far afield of a democracy if we appropriate this stated that no agreement had been reached—"yet." There also was talk that a prominent Philadelphia attorney would be retained.

At any rate, there is every indication that Gen. Butler is going to put up the fight of his life when the trial begins. Meanwhile the stormy petrel is caged in Quantico, Va., his own prisoner, barred from leaving camp by Secretary Adams and barred from saying anything by the same official.

Trial May Be Public.

Whether the general court-martial will be open to the public or an executive affair will be decided by the members of the court, it was stated yesterday. Their decision, however, will be subject to the approval or disapproval of Secretary Adams.

It is expected that Gen. Butler will make a strenuous fight to have the doors opened at his trial.

Heflin Demands Inquiry.

Mr. Heflin demanded that before Gen. Butler is court-martialed, an investigation be made to determine whether it was true that Mussolini had run over a child and continued on.

"It sounds exactly like Mussolini," Senator Heflin said. "I stood here three years ago and related stories of Italian Masons being murdered at the instance of Mussolini. There were 137 of them in one night, if I remember correctly.

"Why should any American general bow down and crawl in the dust to the most red-handed tyrant on earth —Mussolini, the monarch of the old world?"

Letter Raps Mussolini.

The letter which Gen. Butler wrote to the Navy Department admitting that he made the speech accredited to him is said to bristle with uncomplimentary remarks about Mussolini.

That, it is said, is one reason why Secretary Adams wants to keep the trial a secret one. If it is in the open, the letter would have to be read. It is understood, however, that even if the trial were open, the court could vote at any time to go into executive session.

Bomb Murder Case Retrial Is Sought

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 30.—Claiming that the trend of evidence did not warrant a verdict of second-degree murder, such as was returned by a jury in the Anne Arundel County Circuit Court last night against Lawrence Leroy Brady, counsel for the defense this afternoon filed a motion for a new trial. He was tried in connection with the bomb murder at Seat Pleasant, Prince Georges County, New Year's Day, 1930, which resulted in the death of three persons and serious injury to four others.

Judge Robert Moss, who presided at the trial just concluded, fixed next Thursday for a hearing on the motion.

If the motion is granted, it would provide for the third trial of the case. A previous trial in the Montgomery County Circuit Court having resulted in a deadlocked jury. Chances of securing a retrial, however, were considered very slight, as records of the local court reveal that in only one instance in 46 years has a new trial been granted in such a case, when a verdict of conviction was given by a jury. In the event that the motion is overruled, it is reported that defense counsel are considering carrying the case to the Court of Appeals for a final decision.

Laval Is Confirmed As French Premier

Butcher's Son Stakes Life of Ministry on Laconic Resolution.

Paris, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Pierre Laval, a butcher's son and one of the youngest of France's prime ministers, was confirmed as the head of the government by the Chamber of Deputies in two test votes tonight.

The youthful prime minister staked the life of his ministry on a laconic resolution expressing approval of the ministerial declaration which he had read earlier in the day and in which he asked for peace among the political groups so that he might carry on the country's business without the interruptions of political bickering.

He was accorded a vote of 312 to 258, and immediately raised the question of confidence anew by demanding the rejection of an amendment which had been offered to the original motion.

The result was another vote in his favor of 309 to 258. It was a foregone conclusion, in view of the earlier balloting, but in the opinion of political observers added new strength to the premier's position.

Federation Plans Secure Approval

Montgomery County Heads Believe $2,000,000 Program Possible.

Accomplishment of the major part of the Montgomery County Civic Federation's $2,000,000 improvement program within the next two years without an increase in the county tax rate was believed assured last night following a conference between the executive board of the federation and the county administration leaders at the National Press Club.

Announcement of the agreement was made by Stephen W. James, president, and Frederic P. Lee, chairman of the public finance and budget committee of the federation. The program involves maintenance of proposals of the federation through authorization of bonds by the present session of the General Assembly, to be issued by the county commissioners when economic conditions permit.

County leaders had been unwilling to raise the county rate 10½ cents per $100 to finance the federation program, but believe that it can be financed through planned economies.

PREMIER OF CANADA CALLS ON PRESIDENT

Visits by Prime Minister Are Brief and Formal; Dines at White House.

WATERWAY HELD ISSUE

The Prime Minister of Canada and the President of the United States clasped hands in the White House yesterday for the first time in nearly four years.

Arriving shortly after noon, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada was formally welcomed to the Capital by President Hoover at the White House.

The call there was a brief, formal one, however, a dinner by the President in honor of Mr. Bennett last night having been arranged for a more lengthy meeting between the two statesmen.

Meanwhile, President Hoover said at his semiweekly press conference that he had been "very glad to welcome" the Canadian premier.

"No Formal Discussion."

"We have no formal matters under discussion," he added.

"We are mutually interested in the common welfare of our people. Informal conversations on problems of the future always lead to better understanding. I consider it a great compliment that Mr. Bennett has found it possible to come to Washington."

The premier was officially welcomed at Union Station by Secretary Stimson and State Department subordinates; Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador and the embassy staff, and the staff of the Canadian Legation.

Hume Wrong, Canadian charge d'affaires, joined the prime minister at Baltimore. The prime minister was accompanied from Ottawa by Hanford MacNider, American Minister to Canada.

Waterway Thought Issue.

Word had preceded the premier from Ottawa that during his visit he would engage in discussions with American officials on the St. Lawrence waterway enterprise. It was understood that the prime minister desires to clear up several points on the question of the St. Lawrence seaway, before the opening of the Dominion's parliament.

The State Department asked the prime minister before the recent British imperial conference opened if his government was prepared to push forward the proposed waterway.

The Canadian premier talked for a while yesterday with Secretary Stimson but no word was given as to the subject of their conversation.

There was considerable speculation on the nature of the discussions and particularly whether the prime minister gave a definite indication of the attitude of his government on the St. Lawrence project.

Support for Plan Seen.

The assumption in Washington had been that the new conservative Canadian government, which replaced the Liberal government of Mackenzie King—last Canadian prime minister to visit Washington—would be disposed to discuss pushing the project forward.

The guests at President Hoover's dinner were Secretary Stimson, Minister MacNider, Hume Wrong and William R. Castle, jr., Assistant Secretary of State for western European affairs.

The prime minister spent an unusually busy afternoon, in addition to his conferences. He called at the British Embassy and met a group of Canadian and American friends at tea at the legation.

In an effort to stem speculation on the conversations held during the early part of yesterday, Secretary Stimson held a special press conference at which he said no question of importance had been gone into during his fifteen-minute talk with the premier.

He told newspapermen that the Treasury Department had not yet delivered to the State Department a report on the Josephine K. incident, in which William Cluett, the Canadian captain of the vessel was killed. The Secretary expressed some doubt that the question would be brought up by the premier during his visit.

The indications were that the first conferences were of a formal nature, with the discussions relating principally to personal matters.

Arrangements had been made for the President and prime minister to be photographed on the south lawn of the White House, but George Akerson, secretary to the President, notified photographers the prime minister said he considered his visit "informal" and would not have pictures taken.

Seizure of Boat May Bring Charges

LaGuardia to Confer Today With Billard Relative to Citing Crew.

(Associated Press.)

Serious charges are to be filed with Coast Guard headquarters against the crew of the patrol boat that seized the fishing schooner Good Luck off New York Monday night.

Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, made this announcement last night after arranging for a conference today with Rear Admiral F. C. Billard, Coast Guard commandant.

New York, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Capt. John Bendikson, master of the Good Luck, seized by the Coast Guard on Monday night, and subjected to a rigorous search, which included the boring of holes in all her bulkheads, floor boards, and other woodwork, visited the customs house yesterday and filed a formal protest at the treatment he had received.

BANKERS SUPPORT MELLON ON BONUS

Bond Flotation Would Shake Market, Young and Case Tell House Group.

MOSES PREDICTS VETO

(Associated Press.)

The warning of Secretary Mellon that conversion of veterans' compensation certificates into cash would shake the securities market was supported yesterday by J. Herbert Case and Roy Young, directors of the New York and Boston Federal Reserve Banks, respectively.

At the same time Senator Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, predicted "some form" of legislation for conversion would pass at this session and be vetoed by President Hoover.

Case and Young were called by the House ways and means committee to testify regarding proposals for total or part redemption of about $3,500,000,000 in bonds now held by the World War soldiers.

Effects Calculated.

In millions and billions the financiers calculated effects of floating Government bonds to carry out the project—until Representative Treadway, committee member, asked if they meant "it would cost $8,000,000,000 of somebody's money to pay the soldiers 1,000,000,000."

"That probably would be high," Mr. Young replied in measured tones.

But he maintained that borrowing all the money the market could absorb at existing rates would depreciate present securities "to an amount far greater than we are attempting to borrow."

"I would predict that the reserve system would be compelled to raise its discount rates eventually to protect its own position," Mr. Young said.

Compared With Wartime.

The only possibility he saw of carrying out the plan was an unusually high interest rate, but the only issue he could compare with it was wartime loans sold by vast volunteer organizations aided by prevailing high patriotism.

In reply to questions by Representative Garner, the Democratic leader, Mr. Young said that if the amount of the redemptions were cut to $1,000,000,000 financed by temporary securities, "the degree of the effect would not be so great, but it would still be greatly disturbing."

Mr. Case told the committee enactment of the legislation would cause Government bonds now out to fall off 8 to 10 per cent on the basis of a $3,500,000,000 issue.

Report on Coast Guard Killing Case Received

(Associated Press.)

Coast Guard Headquarters announced last night that a report of the Coast Guard investigation into the capture of the Canadian rumrunner Josephine K. and the killing of her captain had been received.

Rear Admiral F. C. Ballard declined to divulge the nature of the report and said he would have to study it before he decided the next step. The investigation was ordered to determine whether the Coast Guard cutter which captured the rumrunner was justified in using her guns to stop the schooner. It also sought to determine whether the Canadian boat was within the 12-mile limit.

TWO DEPARTMENTAL BILLS PASS SENATE

$446,000,000 for Army; $138,000,000 to Commerce, State, Labor and Justice.

SUM VOTED DRY WORK

(Associated Press.)

With a sudden burst of speed the Senate yesterday passed two appropriation bills and again caught up with its legislative program.

The two were the $446,000,000 War Department and the $138,000,000 State, Justice, Commerce and Labor Department bills.

The Senate has now passed seven of the eleven key measures, and the House eight, but not one has been finally approved. All of those passed are still in conference, several loaded down with relief amendments about which there is controversy.

The War Department bill yesterday carried another such relief measure to conference. It provides for distribution of 20,000,000 bushels of wheat, now held by the Farm Board, for relief purposes.

350 New Agents.

The four-department bill, which was approved after about two hours' debate, carried $11,516,680 for prohibition enforcement, including authorization for 350 new prohibition agents, which will bring the total up to 1,900.

This item went through without a word of debate, though it was the subject of controversy in the House.

Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, obtained favorable action on an amendment providing that none of the $3,000,000 included for detection of crime should be used for investigation of Federal judges.

Jones' Plan Blocked.

Senator Jones (Republican), of Washington, proposed an amendment to permit seized liquor to be stored in districts adjacent to the judicial districts in which it was seized in order to save money, but it was blocked on a point of order by Senator Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin.

There was some doubt about what the Senate would take up today. Senator Howell (Republican), of Nebraska, served notice he would seek to get his bill providing a prohibition enforcement law for the District up again. But other senators were prepared to ask for consideration of their own legislation.

Among these were Senator La Follette ((Republican), of Wisconsin, who wants the Senate to take up the bill for a 44-hour week for postal employes.

Passage Shows Senate Steadfast on Pay Stand

That the Senate has not yet weakened on the question of providing some of the money necessary to eliminate discrepancies in the pay of Government employes was indicated yesterday when it began consideration of the annual appropriation bill carrying funds for the State, Justice, Commerce and Labor Departments.

The bill carried the amounts recommended by the Budget Bureau to provide 30 per cent of the total necessary to eliminate existing discrepancies.

A few minutes before the Senate took over the bill it had given approval to the annual War Department appropriation bill, which also carried the amounts for salary increases which the House has stricken from all annual appropriations bills. In that course it has followed the dictates of the House appropriations committee, of which Representative Will R. Wood (Republican), is chairman. The District appropriation bill for next year, reported yesterday, also had the amounts for increases cut out by the appropriations committee.

money at a time when people here are hungry and cold," Mr. Bratton said.

Mr. Bingham said foreign diplomats in this country spend much more for receptions and flowers than Americans abroad and the question was whether "our representatives abroad are going to represent their country adequately or be criticized for being cheap skates."

Protesting the money was for society rather than official purposes, Senator Norris asked:

"Have we come to the time when, in order to be respectable, we must be rich and extravagant?"

"I believe the President of the United States could do the greatest good for the civilized world," he added, "if he would announce to the civilized world that hereafter no ambassadors would be appointed unless they agreed not to go into the society whirl."

DAY IN CONGRESS

JANUARY 30, 1931.

SENATE.

Met at noon and recessed at 5:40 p. m. until noon today.

Democratic senators drew up own relief program.

Passed State, Justice, Commerce and Labor appropriation bill and War Department supply bill.

Secretary Wilbur informed commerce committee there should be some check on importation of oil.

Indian affairs committee heard charges that Herbert J. Hagerman, former territorial governor of New Mexico, had improperly handled Indian oil leases. Mr. Hagerman denied charges.

Wright Dizer, before campaign funds committee, said he thought John J. Raskob and Pierre S. du Pont had purchased Democratic senatorial nomination in Delaware for Thomas F. Bayard.

Senator Bratton made unsuccessful effort to have eliminated from appropriation bill item for $126,000 for tips, flowers and receptions for foreign officials and diplomats.

Walsh resolution providing for reinstatement of two Naval Academy midshipmen dismissed for violating the Academy rules favorably reported.

Senator Hatfield (Republican), West Virginia, introduced a bill providing Federal appropriations for surgical treatment, education, and rehabilitation of crippled children.

HOUSE.

Met at noon and adjourned at 4:15 p. m. until 11 a. m. today.

Mrs. John B. Henderson proffered the Government a permanent residence for the Vice President.

J. Herbert Case and Roy Young opposed soldier bonus before committee.

Rejected $25,000,000 relief fund for Red Cross voted by Senate.

Paul Bestor, Farm Loan Board commissioner, told banking committee proposals for moratorium on farm loans in drought areas already had bad effect on farm loan bonds.

Received report on District of Columbia annual supply bill carrying $46,596,000.

LOESCH SAYS LIQUOR REPORT NOT SWAYED

Denies President Hoover or Anyone Else Sought to Influence Group.

FAVORS LAW'S REVISION

Chicago, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Frank J. Loesch, of Chicago, a member of the Wickersham Commission, today declared that neither President Hoover nor any one else sought to influence the commission on its report on prohibition. In his individual report Mr. Loesch recommended modification of the eighteenth amendment to give Congress the right to legislate on the entire subject of prohibition.

Making his first public utterance on prohibition since the commission returned its report, Mr. Loesch said he believed the report would be an issue in the 1932 election. He did not amplify this statement, but said also that the work of the Wickersham commission by centering public attention on prohibition, would lead to the adoption of some plan other than that now in force for handling the liquor traffic.

"The Wickersham report on prohibition did not cost $500,000, as has been stated," Mr. Loesch declared. "This report is but one of eleven that the committee was appointed to make. We have ten more to make on other subjects. The report on prohibition did not cost, in my opinion, in excess of $100,000. The balance of the appropriation will be used by the commission in investigating the other subjects assigned to it."

"The Wickersham commission," Mr. Loesch said, "sought to preserve the one big accomplishment of the eighteenth amendment—the closing of the open saloon. Industry and labor appeared to be unanimous in not desiring its return. That is the reason why those of us on the commission who recommended revision opposed the repeal of the amendment.

Mr. Loesch said his study of prohibition as a member of the commission caused him to become an advocate of the Anderson plan.

Collection Managers Open Conference Here

The collection managers conference of the Eastern division of the National Association of Credit Men, opened yesterday in the Hotel Mayflower with approximately 40 representatives present. Discussion centered around new policies and methods to be pursued in collection bureaus.

Addresses of welcome were delivered by Charles W. Clayton and John A. Reilly, president and secretary manager, respectively, of the Washington Association of Credit Men. The principal speeches were given by Walter C. Foster, director of the adjustment bureaus, and Samuel Ardron, jr., Eastern division manager, both for the New York headquarters office of the organization. The meeting will continue through today.

Legion Committee To Convene Today

The national rehabilitation committee of the American Legion will convene in Washington today for a three-day meeting. Representatives of the legion and auxiliary from every State in the Union will attend the conference.

A luncheon will be given Sunday at the Washington Hotel by the past presidents' parley of the legion auxiliary, in honor of Representative Royal C. Johnson, chairman of the World War veterans' committee; Capt. Walson B. Miller, chairman of the legion's rehabilitation committee, and Mrs. George B. Kellogg, of Chicago, the auxiliary's chairman of rehabilitation.

Postoffice Chief Is Called in Quiz

Brown Subpenaed to Give Testimony Concerning Office Leasing.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate committee investigating postoffice leases yesterday issued subpenas for Postmaster General Brown and John H. Bartlett, former Assistant Postmaster General.

Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, the committee chairman, said the postoffice officials will be questioned in open hearing next Wednesday with regard to files in the department. Just what is in the files Senator Blaine did not state.

"I don't know for certain that the files we have in mind are in the department," said Senator Blaine, "but I want to find out."

As for the unusual procedure of subpenaing a Cabinet officer, he said the Postmaster General had been invited before the committee several times.

"He did not decline to come," said Senator Blaine, "but no date ever was fixed and it has been dragging along long enough."

Measure to Reinstate Midshipmen Reported

(Associated Press.)

The resolution providing for reinstatement of two Naval Academy students who were dismissed for taking two girls, dressed as midshipmen, into the mess hall at Annapolis, was favorably reported yesterday by the Senate Naval committee.

The two former midshipmen, Lawrence L. Myatt, of Quincy, Mass., and Miller S. Burgin, of Jacksonville, Fla., appeared before a Naval subcommittee and described the incident as a "prank." Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, was author of the reinstatement resolution.

BEAN, ROVER CLASH OVER GAMING CASES

U. S. Attorney Defends His Assistant in Dismissal of Six Actions.

BLAME IS LAID ON POLICE

The wrangle between the Police Department and the United States Attorney's office over responsibility for dismissal of six so-called "clean-cut" gaming cases in Police Court last Wednesday fired anew yesterday with Inspector Thaddeus Bean placing the blame emphatically on Assistant United States Attorney John R. Fitzpatrick and United States Attorney Leo A. Rover backing his assistant.

Rover's official statement, issued after he had read the statement by the inspector, says: "If Inspector Bean is correctly quoted in the evening newspapers to the effect that 'Mr. Fitzpatrick insisted that these cases be dismissed for want of prosecution,' this statement is not true, as Mr. Fitzpatrick at no time asked that the cases be dismissed; the cases were dismissed by Judge Given on his own motion, because the officers were not in the courtroom at the time the cases were called."

Report by Bean.

Earlier in the day Inspector Bean, in an official report to Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, gave a thorough resume of the events leading up to the dismissal, as gleaned by his investigation. He stressed how the cases had been called and how it had been pointed out to the court that policemen had been called to Mr. Fitzpatrick's office at 9 o'clock and had not reported.

"At that time," the inspector's report said, "Mr. F. W. Adams, assistant United States district attorney, who has always had charge of these cases, announced that the officers were in Criminal Court 1; that he had called Mr. M. F. Schwartz, chief clerek of the District attorney's office, and Mr. Schwartz stated that the officers were in Criminal Court 1 under summons.

"Private F. D. Hilbard, the officer who had made plays in the cases, was in Police Court and when the cases were called one by one he answered his name, telling the court that the officers were in Criminal Court 1.

Fitzpatrick Hits Police.

"Notwithstanding these facts, Mr. Fitzpatrick insisted that these cases be dismissed for want of prosecution, which Judge Given did."

United States Attorney Rover issued his statement after having another conference with his assistant, during which the entire matter was gone over. The statement was issued in Fitzpatrick's presence, and for the first time since the storm broke the assistant prosecutor discussed the matter with newspapermen.

Fitzpatrick, under questioning by Mr. Rover, told newspapermen emphatically that he did not move for the dismissal of the cases. He added, however, that the police, even if there was some justification in their position, had not responded to subpenas and had certainly not reported their presence in the "big court" in the usual and prescribed manner.

Cotton Sale Stirs Diplomatic Affair

Sackett Will Act on Deal of $2,000,000 Protested in German Courts.

(Associated Press.)

The State Department moved late yesterday to open diplomatic representations with Germany over the repudiation by certain German spinners of a $2,000,000 sale of Texas cotton through the New York Stock Exchange.

Secretary Stimson cabled Ambassador Sackett to lay before the foreign office in Berlin what was interpreted as a protest of the decision by German courts, supporting the spinners and declaring the transaction a gambling operation. At the State Department it was said the American Ambassador had been instruced to take the stand that the sale through the New York exchange was entirely legal, and did not constitute gambling as such.

Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, gave the first intimation of the United States' move. After a conference with Assistant Secretary Castle of the State Department earlier in the day, he announced the case would be officially acted upon.

Wilbur Backs Plea To Curb Oil Import

Secretary Writes Senators "Evident Need Is Proration" System.

(Associated Press.)

The drive of the independent oil producers to have a limit placed on foreign oil imports gained support yesterday from Secretary Wilbur.

In a letter to the Senate commerce committee, the Secretary of the Interior said:

"It seems to me that the evident need is proration of imports under the guidance of some fact-finding body, such as the Federal Trade Commission."

While the committee continued hearing pleas of advocates for legislative restrictions on oil imports, Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, gave notice to the Senate of a move to refer the legislation to the finance committee.

Indorsement of the American Federation of Labor and of the Railroad Brotherhoods for a legislative wall against the flow of oil from abroad were heard by the commerce committee.

Home for Vice Presidents Offered by Capital Woman

Mrs. John B. Henderson Would Give Residence to Government; $30,000 to Be Sought for Furnishing and $25,000 for Upkeep.

Mrs. John B. Henderson yesterday offered to the Government her home at 2437 Fifteenth street northwest as a permanent residence for the Vice President.

Her offer was made in a letter to Representative Richard N. Elliott (Republican), Indiana, chairman of the House committee on public buildings and grounds, and Representative Ernest W. Gibson (Republican), Vermont, announced his purpose to introduce a measure providing for acceptance of the offer.

"My Dear Mr. Elliott," Mrs. Henderson wrote, "Ex-President Coolidge in his autobiography calls attention to the need of a permanent home for the Vice President of the United States and approves its establishment.

"I offer in the interest of the Government to give to the United States my home at 2437 Fifteenth street, Washington, D. C., free and clear of any encumbrance, to be used as a home for the Vice President.

"I will thank the proper committee to give early attention to this offer.

"Faithfully yours,

"MARY F. HENDERSON."

Mr. Gibson's bill includes an appropriation of $30,000 to furnish the home and $25,000 a year for its upkeep.

CAPITAL GAINS TAX REPEAL ADVOCATED

New York Banker Blames Levy and Other Factors for Conditions.

QUIZZED BY SENATORS

(Associated Press.)

What were described as new causes for the national depression—bad bank management, careless chartering of banks with small capital, the capital gains tax and rivalry between national and State financial institutions—were outlined yesterday before the Senate banking investigating committee.

George W. Davison, president of the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co. of New York, held these factors, coupled with undue speculation and the transfer of business from rural to larger banks in commercial centers because of improved roads and automobiles, were largely responsible for existing conditions.

More cooperation was needed, he said, rather than changes in the banking laws. He believed bad management could not be corrected by legislation and that endowing the Comptroller of the Currency with authority to remove national bank officers for inefficiency or mismanagement would indicate to the public something was wrong, and start runs on banks.

Blames Speculation.

Joseph A. Broderick, New York State bank examiner, said existing conditions were brought about by "two years of unbridled speculation, which affected every branch of business, including banks."

Asked if he meant to convey the idea that speculation could be bridled, Mr. Broderick said, that would be difficult.

"It is in the blood, and is only dormant now," he replied.

Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the board of the National City Bank of New York, was asked to appear on Monday.

Mr. Davison attributed many of the recent bank failures to bad management, but said the supervising examining authority had great difficulty in determining how to correct abuses when he finds them.

Favors Gains Tax Repeal.

He recommended repeal of the capital gains tax, holding it one of the primary causes for the "tremendous rise in security prices" in 1929. Rather than pay the tax, he said, persons held on to their securities and created a "sort of corner" in stocks and a consequent aggravation of the inflation.

Bank security affiliates should not be abolished, Mr. Davison said, but be placed under simultaneous examination with the banks and be prevented from dealing in their own stocks.

An example of the "abuse" of affiliates, he said, was the failure of the Bank of the United States, at New York.

He agreed "bootleg loans" were bad, but said he knew of no way to control them. He expressed the opinion the Federal Reserve rediscount rate should not, as a rule, be used to curb speculation, but that if such use had been made of it in 1929 it might have stopped the "inordinate rise of all prices, and thereby contributed to stabilization."

New Members Named To Bicentennial Group

Charles Moore, chairman of the Fine Arts Commission, and Dr. George F. Bowerman, librarian of the Public Library, yesterday were appointed members of the District of Columbia Bicentennial Commission by the District Commissioners.

Three vice chairmen were also named: W. W. Everett, Robert V. Fleming and Frank B. Noyes. The appointments were made upon the recommendation of Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, chairman of the commission.

000,000 appropriation but also made known that Senator Caraway, as soon as another general appropriation bill came before the Senate, would reintroduce his proposal to appropriate $15,000,000 for loans to farmers for the purchase of food supplies. This was the original proposal incorporated in the appropriation, now passed and in effect, of $45,000,000 for loans to the farmers for the purchase of seed, &c.

Other Items in Program.

The four other items in the program are the Capper resolution to donate 20,000,000 bushels of wheat held by the Farm Board to the drought-stricken areas, the Robinson measure to take $5,000,000 of the seed appropriation and give it to the intermediate credit banks for capital stock so they can assist in financing the drought-stricken farmers' new crops, an appropriation of $3,000,000 for sanitation in the distressed area to prevent the spread of disease, and, finally, the proposal to make the money collected from the States on the 1930-31 seed appropriation again available to those States.

"This statement is made," Senator Robinson said, "in order that it may be well understood that the provisions referred to, or acceptable substitutes therefor, represent the minimum of emergency measures which, in the opinion of their advocates, are required by existing conditions in order to avoid the necessity for an extra session."

Many Republican regulars have joined with the Democrats in those of the items mentioned in the program, which have come to a vote in the Senate. In fact, the administration has not been able to muster more than 20 or so votes in these instances. And Senator Robinson emphasized that the Republican senators generally were in sympathy with the measures named.

What May Happen.

When it comes to the question of forcing an extra session, however, the Democrats and Progressives probably will be left to carry the load.

In an extra session the prospect is that all of these measures could be passed through both houses, and quite probably over the President's veto. He will have, in the next session, no control over either body.

However, by not calling the session until just in time to pass the appropriation measures for the next fiscal year, the need for the relief measures might have passed. The new session would have other troubles for him, though.

PERSHING STRESSES DROUGHT AREA NEED

Families in Kentucky Must Be Fed for Weeks, Red Cross Worker Says.

FUND TOPS $4,000,000

His words given added significance by the announcement yesterday that thousands of families in Kentucky are still in dire circumstances. Gen. John J. Pershing last night made a radio plea to support the Red Cross drought-relief fund.

Stressing the need which has arisen, Gen. Pershing urged that his listeners, reached over a national network, respond promptly and liberally to the call which the Red Cross is making for $10,000,000 to alleviate suffering.

"Many are suffering," he said, "but do not know that help is available. Red Cross workers must follow trails to find them. In the Ozark Mountains an isolated little community was found. The bleak one-room post-office is at the edge of a small clearing, 45 miles from the nearest railroad. In this primitive community several families were starving. Children and grown-ups were shoeless and in rags. They said that they had heard that the Red Cross was extending relief, but they didn't believe it."

Maurice R. Reddy, who has returned to Washington after a survey of conditions in Kentucky, said yesterday that the Red Cross will have to feed thousands of families in Kentucky for weeks to come.

The total of the drought-relief fund reached $4,475,983 yesterday. Among the larger gifts reported was one of $25,000 from the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey.

According to latest figures, 721,211 persons are being aided by the Red Cross in 701 counties throughout the stricken area.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

IT must have become apparent to everybody by now that what is really wrong with us is that we are over-civilized. We are so deeply tangled up in the intricacies of our advanced civilization that a lot of us are hungry and a lot of us are unemployed and distressed. And there seems to be no very clear idea as to what is to be done about it.

Now, there is the wheat grower who is hard put because he can't sell his wheat, and the Eastern consumers are in such a position that they can't buy his wheat to eat and at the same time put him on his feet.

One would say readily, or rather an uncivilized person would say, that in such a situation the wheat grower had no worry, as all he had to do was to eat his own wheat. But he can't do that because some banker owns it.

* * * *

THEN we look over to the drought-stricken areas where the farmer has no wheat which we Easterners might buy if we had the money or which the bankers might own. This gentleman, in fact, has nothing at all.

It so happens that an element of our advanced civilization, the Farm Board, in an effort to help that wheat grower out of his mess, has purchased more than 100,000,000 bushels of wheat.

Whereupon, it quite naturally occurs to Senator Capper, who is not so civilized as the rest of us, that inasmuch as the Farm Board can't eat all of that wheat it might give 20,000,000 bushels to those drought-stricken farmers who have nothing to eat.

* * * *

BUT quite promptly, we civilization guardians put him in his place and tell him that, of course, that can not be done, because then the wheat grower, who is hard put because others can not buy his wheat, will be worse off if we give away any of the wheat which we have been able to buy.

In other words, we are in a mess if we eat the wheat and in a mess if we do not.

We are not quarreling with the arguments advanced. Manifestly, giving wheat to the drought-stricken sections instead of making them buy it will lower the wheat grower's market.

But surely we have gotten an overdose of civilization when we get into such a fix as this. Now, if we were some barbaric tribe, just roaming over the plains, we would eat all we wanted of the wheat that we raised and all that we had left over we would swap to some fellow for some skins or hogshead of rum.

Civilization is, of course, a handy thing to have around. It makes for bon mots in our best social circles and in other ways makes it possible for us to lord it over our fellow man. It is much more valuable, of course, than a backgammon set. But we should not let it devour us. It then becomes a Frankenstein.

Dunbar Graduates Class at Midyear

45 Are Awarded Diplomas by School Official at Exercises.

The midyear commencement of the Dunbar High School was held last night in the school auditorium, 45 being awarded diplomas by Garnet C. Wilkinson, first assistant superintendent of schools, in place of the Rev. F. I. A. Bennett, member of the Board of Education, who was unable to preside because of illness. The invocation and benediction was said by the Rev. G. Oliver Wing.

Dr. Ambrose Caliver, expert of the office of education of the Interior Department, in charge of work among Negroes, made the address to graduates, speaking on the "Challenge of Progress." The class song was sung by graduates, the words and music by Zenobia Kirkland.

Three Men Executed In Ohio Penitentiary

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Three men died in the electric chair at Ohio Penitentiary tonight. They were Fred J. Massa, 27; Earl Sites, 27, and Kenneth McCartney, 25, all of Mansfield, Ohio. They were put to death for the murder of Ralph Wilcox, Galion filling station operator, during a holdup on June 27, 1930.

Thirty-two minutes were required to electrocute the trio, the second triple electrocution in the history of Ohio Penitentiary.

DISTRICT FINANCIAL BILL BEFORE HOUSE

SCHOOL PROGRAM HUGE

portables, 38 part-time classes and 78 oversize classes.

"On the basis of present enrollment, there will remain in use in the elementary school system, after such eliminations, but 5 portables, 10 part-time classes and 102 oversize classes.

"The testimony before the committee shows that when the construction carried in this bill and now appropriated for is completed, the overcrowding in the Washington schools will have been removed. Construction hereafter will be: First, to meet the needs shown by normal city growth as that need develops; second, to complete buildings now built by addition of such auxiliary structures as auditorium and gymnasium rooms, beginning with the larger schools, and third, replacement of older and less adequate buildings with new and better structures.

$530,000 Asked for Sites.

"The committee recommends an appropriation of $530,000 for school building and playground sites, which is $100,000 more than the estimates and $71,800 more than the current appropriation. The committee has eliminated the budget proposal for the purchase of a site for a junior high school in the vicinity of Florida adn Rhode Island avenues and has added provisions for the purchase of sites for a senior high school in the Reno section, a senior high school in the Manor Park section and land for an addition to the Bancroft School. An unexpended balance of $125,000 is made available during the remainder of the current fiscal year for the purchase of sites without limitation as to price based on assessed value of the property involved."

The committee followed the practice of providing for additional classrooms in the elementary schools than following recommendations of school officials for construction of gymnasium and assembly hall additions to existing buildings. Such things, the committee said, should wait until adequate classroom accommodations were provided. As a result of this policy and because of the reduced cost of construction the committee added four new school buildings to the program carried in the estimates submitted it.

The total amount provided for public schools was $13,518,770, which was an increase of $339,520 over the total carried in the estimates submitted the committee. In addition to that amount the committee reappropriated $80,000 unexpended balance for school construction.

More Teachers Conditional.

"The increase for the coming fiscal year over the estimates," the report said, "is due to the addition by the committee of funds for the construction of four new school buildings and provision for the purchase of three additional building sites."

The committee, though taking the bit in its teeth in providing for new school building projects, was equally determined against increasing the cost of the school system through increasing the existing number of clerks and teachers. It provided for additional teachers only when they would be needed for additional classrooms and refused to provide additional teachers for general distribution through the school system, although school authorities wanted that.

In general, the so-called hard-boiled committee came nearer to reporting favorably to the House the estimates submitted to it than probably ever has been done before.

That the committee did not, however, merely sit back and take the recommendations made to it and gave those its approval is indicated clearly by the record of the hearings which were made public when the bill was reported.

Hit Coercion of Cadets.

Representative Ross Collins (Democrat), Mississippi, took Lieut. Col. W. M. Craigie, commander of the high school cadet corps, rather severely to task about coercion of high school students to join the cadet corps. Col. Craigie said no propaganda was employed to coerce students to enter the corps. But Mr. Collins thought differently and told of a playlet presented in a high school in which the civilian student was not so hot and the girl refused to go out with him, but the cadet was quite clever and the girl jumped at the chance to go out with him. Col. Craigie said he didn't know about that incident; it might be propaganda at that, mightn't it; but he didn't disapprove of it. To which Mr. Collins said he was sure he wouldn't.

Mr. Collins also took Judge Gus A. Schuldt, presiding judge of the Police Court, somewhat to task about the freedom and immunity given to drivers of motor trucks of the Army and other Government agencies. These drivers are frequently reported as injuring persons and escaping punishment and that should not be, Mr. Collins said. Judge Schuldt said he would pass the word around to other Police Court judges.

Pratt Quizzed on Ballistics.

Representative William P. Holaday (Republican), of Illinois, who is destined to be chairman of the District appropriations subcommittee in the next Congress, if the Republicans organize the House, again displayed his interest in the development of the aid of modern science in solution of crime. He asked Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, about the reputed failure of Maj. Calvin Goddard positively to identify bullets in a ballistics test incident to the trial of Herbert Campbell for the murder of Mary Baker. Maj. Pratt inferred that the so-called science of ballistics had not been brought into complete disrepute, but he was careful not to say that Maj. Goddard had demonstrated its infallibility. Maj. Pratt rather talked around the subject and no direct answer was given to the moot question, which has been a subject of public speculation ever since the Campbell trial.

There was a sharp battle with school authorities, accounts of which were published Sunday after Representative Simmons had made that portion of the record of the executive hearing public.

Referring to the $9,500,000 Federal appropriation carried in the bill, the committee report said:

"The committee recommends a Federal contribution of $9,500,000, which is the same as the amount carried in the current appropriation act. A select committee of the House, appointed by the Speaker under authority contained in House Resolution 285, of July 3, 1930, is engaged in an investigation of fiscal relations between the United States and the District of Columbia.

"The committee felt that the present contribution should not be disturbed pending the report of the select committee. Provision is made in the bill that the present tax rate on real estate and tangible personal property shall not be reduced during the next fiscal year."

Exclusive of permanent annual and indefinite appropriations the total provided in the bill is $45,596,228. This is a decrease of $242,789 from the estimates carried in the budget.

Of the $45,596,228 in the bill, $2,000,000 is to come out of the gasoline tax, $2,354,220 is to be provided by the water revenues, $9,500,000 is to be payable from the United States Treasury, and $31,742,008 is to be paid from District revenues derived from taxes on real estate, tangible and intangible personal property, public utilities, banks and other sources.

BUILDING PROGRAM FOR SCHOOLS HUGE

Plans, Embraced in District Appropriation Measure, Now Before House.

WILL CUT CONGESTION

The school building program provided by the House appropriations committee in the annual appropriation bill for the District reported to the House yesterday, probably is the largest building program provided for the District school system in a single year.

The program outlined in the report of the committee to the House follows:

For continuing the construction of the new school building for the Roosevelt (Business) High School, $400,000.

For the completion of the construction of the first unit of the Young School, in Northeast Washington, $30,000.

For the erection of an 8-room building on a site near Connecticut avenue and Upton street northwest, $140,000.

For the erection of an 8-room building on a site near Burleith and Glover Park, $145,000.

For the construction of an eight-room addition to the Douglass-Simmons School and the necessary remodeling of the present building, $130,000.

For the construction of an eight-room addition to the Harrison School and the necessary remodeling of the present building $140,000.

For the construction of a six-room addition to the Orr School, $80,000.

For the construction of an addition to the Paul Junior High School, $180,000.

For the erection of a junior high school building on a site already purchased for that purpose in the Brookland-Woodridge section, $200,000; and the Commissioners are authorized to enter into contract or contracts for such building, at a cost not to exceed $500,000.

For the construction of an addition to the Woodridge School, $110,000.

For the erection of a new school building for the Jefferson Junior High School on a site to be acquired in Southwest Washington for that purpose, $200,000, and the Commissioners are authorized to enter into contract or contracts for such building, at a cost not to exceed $575,000.

For the construction of a gymnasium at the Randall Junior High School, $40,000.

For the construction of a gymnasium and three additional classrooms connecting the Hine Junior High School and the Towers School, including the necessary remodeling of of the present buildings, $55,000.

For the construction of an addition to the Murch School, $30,000, and in addition thereto $80,000 of the unexpended balance of the appropriation for "buildings and grounds, public schools," contained in the District of Columbia appropriation act for the fiscal year 1931, is made immediately available for this purpose and shall continue available during the fiscal year 1932.

34 Are Graduated At Randall School

Student Addresses Feature Junior High Exercises; Awards Made.

The thirteenth annual commencement exercises of the Randall Junior High School were held yesterday in the school auditorium, 34 being awarded diplomas by Dr. J. Hayden Johnson, member of the Board of Education, who presided. The invocation was said by the Rev. J. R. Barnum, pastor of the St. Paul Church. Exercises were featured by student addresses.

Pearl Adams spoke on "How Example Affects the Individual;" Charles Tyler, "How Punctuality Helps;" Nathaniel Lewis, "How Parental Interest Helps;" Ocea Jones, "How Behavior Helps or Hinders." Addresses to the graduates were made by Maj. Campbell C. Johnson, executive secretary of the Twelfth Street Branch Young Men's Christian Association, and by G. C. Wilkinson, assistant superintendent of schools.

Ocea Jones and Joseph Lewis were cited for a perfect record in punctuality during three years. 20 Are Graduated At Cardozo School Business Students Hear of Negro's Progress in Coage's Talk.

Twenty students were graduated from Cardozo Business High School yesterday at midyear exercises held in the school auditorium. Invocation was said by the Rev. W. D. Battle, pastor of Galbraith Church. Jefferson S. Coage, recorder of deeds of the District of Columbia, spoke on "Terminals in Education."

He said that certain bounds had repeatedly been set beyond which, it was believed, the Negro would never progress. He held though, that the Negro had gone beyond these bounds, and also told the graduates of problems which they would be compelled to meet in the business world.

Garnet C. Wilkinson, assistant superintendent of schools, presided and awarded diplomas.

CHURCHILL PREDICTS INDIAN CATASTROPHE

CITES GANDHI'S DEFIANCE

Manchester, England, Jan. 30 (A.P.). Winston Churchill, Conservative, tonight followed up his break with party leaders over the Indian question by predicting "a terrible catastrophe" in India as an outcome of the government's policy.

This policy, as outlined by Premier Ramsey McDonald, looked to a "safeguarded" dominion status for India. The Conservative leader, Stanley Baldwin, in a speech in Parliament, virtually accepted the general principle, and this led to Mr. Churchill's withdrawal from the inner circles of the party's leadership.

"If you continue," he told a mass meeting here this evening, "to spread the doctrine that the British are handing over their power to some new regime, as preliminary to clearing out of the country, then, indeed, you may have upon your hands a situation of the most terrible kind."

The release of Mahatma Gandhi, Indian nationalist leader, he characterized as a terrible mistake.

"It didn't take him very long to launch his new defiance at the government of India," he said. "We have yet to learn what the answer of the government will be to his demands."

That answer, Churchill said, should make it plain to the Indians that "we intend to remain the effective rulers in India in every essential for a very long, indefinite period."

India Warned to Go Slow On Self-Government Plan

Bombay, India, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Warning of the pitfalls of religious intolerance, industrial backwardness and lack of education in India, Rabindranath Tagore, poet and philosopher, today urged that his country go slow in accepting self-government along the lines proposed by Ramsay MacDonald.

"The Indian people first must attain rational mentality and make intelligent social adjustments," he said, on his return from a tour of the United States.

election by Senator Hastings, a Republican, running for reelection.

The investigation of the Delaware elections was completed yesterday. Chairman Nye said it was made primarily for the purpose of revealing shortcomings in Delaware's primary system, in which delegates are elected to party conventions and then permitted to cast secret ballots for candidates.

John Hammond, Georgetown, Del., druggist, said "they went out and bought delegate votes for Bayard."

He and Mr. Dizer advocated changing the primary system. Another witness, Andrew Lynch, Democratic candidate for governor in 1920, dissented, saying there was "overwhelming sentiment for the convention system" because without it Wilmington, the State's largest city, could control the elections.

Senator Nye said examinatino of the expense accounts of the Bayard committees in the three counties of the State showed an average of $4 per vote in the convention was spent in his behalf.

accepting bribes from a big down-river runner. He turned them in and soon after that he was called to the patrol base. Monroe died penniless and we buried him.

"Linus Von Batchelder was another honest lieutenant. He was asked to resign. He was followed by Lieut. Louis Rudd. Rudd was unpopular with the men and was fired on twice by his own details."

Roland W. Ball, 25, another of the prisoners, told of the parade of loaded rum boats following the customs launch carrying Washington officials on a tour of inspection.

CONCERTS WILL AID BUILDING OF CHAPEL

GRAY LADIES IN CHARGE

Although Walter Reed General Hospital is perhaps the best equipped institution of its kind in the world, Congress has never provided for a chapel, such as has proved to be indispensable at the Military and Naval Academies, Army posts, and at military and naval bases in the insular possessions.

Some years ago steps were taken by the Gray Ladies, voluntary workers for the Red Cross at Walter Reed Hospital, to provide the necessary chapel. Congress donated the site and through the generosity of individuals funds were guaranteed, and ground breaking took place on November 11, 1929. This ceremony occurred in the eleventh year after Armistice Day, the eleventh month of the year, the eleventh day at the eleventh hour.

The corner stone of the chapel was laid by the Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon on May 28, 1930.

Serves All Faiths.

The chapel is a memorial to the men of all faiths who served in all American wars. It is nonsectarian and has received the enthusiastic support of all religious authorities. The building is of beautiful design and solid construction, and fittingly completes the provision made by the Nation for the car of its afflicted defenders and for the comfort and consolation of the families of veterans who reach the end of their journey.

One of the many public-spirited citizens who have contributed to the Memorial Chapel is S. L. Rothafel, the famous "Roxy," who equipped every bed in Walter Reed Hospital with radio receivers and gave special concerts for the veterans. "Roxy and His Gang" are the special friends of all disabled veterans.

Concerts for Funds.

"Roxy" has arranged to give two concerts in Washington for the benefit of the Memorial Chapel fund. These concerts will be given at Constitution Hall on Thursday afternoon and evening. In addition to the varied talents of Roxy's symphony artists, Mme. Schumann-Heink will appear.

Mrs. Hoover has taken a box for the concert. Mrs. Gann and most of the Cabinet group are patronesses of the undertaking. The chairman of the committee on patronesses is Mrs. James J. Davis, wife of the senator from Pennsylvania, and Brig. Gen. John A. Johnston, U. S. A., retired, will act as treasurer in behalf of the Gray Ladies.

Many boxes have been taken by the wives of senators and representatives as a means of expressing their appreciation of the careful attention given by Walter Reed Hospital to the disabled veterans of their States.

Mid-Year Graduations Held In High Schools of Capital

Diplomas Are Presented at Farewell Exercises by Students Who Hear Officials Speak—Scholarships, Medals and Honors Are Awarded.

Graduation exercises for midyear classes in high schools and junior high schools were completed last night when diplomas were presented to graduates of Central, Eastern, McKinley and Western High Schools and Jefferson, Paul, Powell, Gordon Stuart Junior High Schools.

Dr. Luther B. Clark, chancellor of American University, last night addressed the graduating class of Central High School which numbered 135. The diplomas were presented by Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent of schools. Dr. H. B. Learned, member of the Board of Education, presided. The invocation and benediction was by the Rev. Dr. J. Tillman Hollister, pastor of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church.

Scholarships were awarded to Clara Mildred Feldman in Strayer Business College and John Carl Perry, Southeastern University and Alicia Howard Mooney in American Upiversity.

At Eastern High School.

Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent of schools, presided at the exercises last night at Eastern High School. The class was addressed by William Knowles Cooper, former national secretary of the Y. M. C. A. The diplomas were presented by Charles Hart, principal of the school. The Rev. F. W. Johnson, of the Grace Baptist Church, pronounced the invocation.

A scholarship in American University was awarded to Henrietta Belmick, who was credited with having the highest scholastic record in the class. Bessie Furr, adjudged to have the second best scholastic record, received a scholarship in Strayer's Business College and Sylvia Dennovitz received a scholarship in Southeastern University.

Miss Furr was also awarded a gold medal for having attained the highest honors, and Marie Verdie received a silver medal in recognition of her work during the four years she has been at Eastern.

Five awards for perfect attendance throughout the four years were given to Mary Elizabeth Ayers, Ruth Clara Laubinger, Annie Isabella Thompson, Roland Creasy Hartman and William Otto Mutschler. James Wilson Reed was awarded a medal for meritorious service in the school orchestra.

McKinley Graduation Exercises.

Dr. Frank W. Ballou addressed the graduating class of McKinley High School, which was composed of approximately 90 students. Frank C. Daniel, principal of the school, presented the diplomas. The invocation was given by the Rev. Simpson B. Daugherty, pastor of the United Brethren Church. The salutatory of the class was given by Edward Barber. Grace Carter offered the valedictory.

Prof. Will Hutchins, of American University, addressed the 67 graduates at Western high school, yesterday afternoon. Dr. Ballou also made a brief address. Elmer S. Newton, principal of the school, presented the diplomas. He was assisted by Miss E. Edna Thomssen and Norman J. Nelson, assistant principals.

Stuart Junior High.

Harry O. Hine, secretary of the Board of Education, presented diplomas to the graduating class at the Stuart Junior High School. The address to the class was made by Dr. Homer J. Councilor, of the Calvary Baptist Church. The Rev. E. H. Swem offered the invocation. Max Holtzman, president of the class, gave the address of welcome, and Eillis Holmes, the valedictory.

Miss Jessie LaSalle, assistant superintendent of schools, addressed the graduates of Powell Junior High School, and also presented the diplomas. Miss Bertie Backus, principal of the school, made a brief address, presenting the class. Class officers who participated were: Helen Finckel, president, Mary Gainey, vice president, Adeline Rivkind, secretary and Philip Gainey, treasurer. Rabbi Abram Simon offered the invocation.

Four speeches by members of the graduating class featured exercises at the Paul Junior High School. Betina Bien spoke on "Perseverance," Edith Ramsay on "Achievement," Ida Cocuzzi on "Unity" and James Burns on "Loyalty." The first letters of the four subjects make up the name of the school. Mr. Haycock presented the diplomas. The farewell speech to the class was made by L. J. Cantrell, principal of the school. The Rev. W. W. Michael pronounced the invocation.

Miss Elizabeth Hummer, supervising principal of the Seventh Division, presented the diplomas at the Jefferson Junior High School last night. J. J. Crane, assistant superintendent of schools, presided. The invocation was given by Dr. Francis Yarnall, pastor of Epiphany Chapel.

Gordon Junior High.

Diplomas were given to 136 graduates at the Gordon Junior High School at exercises yesterday afternoon by Frank A. Woodward, principal of the school. J. S. Correll, president of the Burleith Citizens Association, presided. Linn C. Drake, scout executive of the Washington Council, Boy Scouts of America, delivered the address. Dr. J. Phelps Hand, pastor of the Wesley Methodist Church, gave the invocation.

Names of junior high school graduates, together with those who are being promoted from elementary schools, will appear in the Sunday issue of The Post. A list of the graduates of high schools follows:

Revival Services Attracting Many People From Other Cities Coming to Hear Dr. Cooke Tomorrow.

Large crowds are attending the revival services conducted by Dr. George W. Cooke, musician and evangelist, and his singer, the Rev. Harold Vignuelle, in the Petworth Methodist Church.

In addition to the evening services, which begin at 7:45 o'clock, Dr. Cooke broadcasts daily at 11:30 over WJSV. This has given the revival publicity over the Eastern States. Dr. Cooke has received many letters from radio listeners at Baltimore, Philadelphia, Martinsburg, W. Va., and other places telling him the writers would come here tomorrow to hear him.

In the afternoon the service will be for women only. The sermon will be on "The Ideal Woman." In the evening the sermon will be on "Distinctions Undisputed." There will be no service Monday night, but other nights in the week they have been dedicated to various groups.

CIVILIAN GOVERNOR FOR VIRGIN ISLANDS

ANOTHER UNIT TO RULE

In his announcement of the change in government, Mr. Hoover said:

"We have undertaken to reorganize the government of the Virgin Islands. The Navy Department has asked to be relieved of the administration, and I am assigning it to the Department of the Interior.

"I am proposing to forward to Congress the name of Dr. Paul M. Pearson, of Pennsylvnia, for governor. Other civilian officials will be appointed in replacement of naval officers.

"Congress recently made special appropriations for reorganization and development work in the islands, and the new organization is intended to make these provisions more effective.

"Mr. Herbert Brown, of the Bureau of Efficiency, and Col. Roop, Director of the Budget, have drafted plans for the new administration which are being carried into action."

Mr. Brown went to the Virgin Islands about a year and a half ago, and it was as a result of the study and recommendations he made that the change is now being ordered. Incidentally, while he was there, Mr. Brown encouraged the natives to go in for diversified farming; that is, to plant crops other than sugar. His suggestion now is being carried out, and the result is expected to be extremely beneficial from an economic standpoint.

Dr. Pearson, who is to be the new civilian Governor of the Virgin Islands, is the father of Drew Pearson, a well-known correspondent here for the Baltimore Sun. He was born near Litchfield, Ill., October 22, 1871, the son of Samuel Martin Pearson and Ellen (Cameron) Pearson. He received his A. B. and A. M. degrees from Baker University in Kansas, and did graduate work at Northwestern University.

He married Miss Edna Wolfe, of Parsons, Kans., in 1896. They had four children—Drew (christened Andrew), Leon, Barbara and Ellen.

Dr. Pearson has taught at the Cherryville, Kans., High School, Northwestern University and at Swarthmore College. In 1912 he founded and became president of the Swarthmore Chautauqua Association. He has lectured in all parts of the country.

In the World War he was in charge of the Y. M. C. A. educational program in the Army cantonments. At the same itme he served as an adviser to the Committee on Public Information and the Red Cross.

Dr. Pearson is the author of "Intercollegiate Debates," "Extemporaneous Speaking" and compiled "The Humorous Speaker." He is a member of the Society of Friends, the National Education Association and Delta Tau Delta.

He is expected to leave for the Virgin Islands as soon as his nomination is confirmed by the Senate.

Pastor to Talk On Great Hymns

Calvary Methodist to Have Series of Addresses Next Month.

At the Sunday evening service of the Calvary Methodist Church, on Columbia road, the Rev. Mark Depp will start a new series of sermons on "Great Hymns of the Church."

Four hymns have been selected, in accordance with "request vote" of the congregation—"Rock of Ages," "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," "Lead Kindly Light," and "Nearer, My God to Thee."

For the February Sunday evenings on which the minister will discuss these hymns, Mr. Potter, organist and choir director, is arranging music.

Lecture at Y. M. C. A. To Depict Jerusalem

"Jerusalem" will be the subject of the illustrated lectur by Dr. Homer J. Councilor, at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. In this lecture the speaker will describe the Mosque of Omar and the Church of the Holy Sepulcher.

A moving picture will also be shown, entitled "Zion, David's City."

The Rev. W. W. Slade to Preach.

The Rev. W. W. Slade, the director of the bureau of evangelism of the A. M. E. Zion Denomination, will fill the pulpit at John Wesley A. M. E. Zion Church tomorrow at morning and evening services.

Chevy Chase Union Program Announced

The Unión Protestant Sunday evening services of the Chevy Chase Churches will be held in the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church during February. Tomorrow evening the Rev. John Turnbull Spicknall, of the First Methodist Church, will preach.

Other ministers who will preach during the monta are as follows: February 8, Rev. J. Phelps Hand; February 15, Rev. Henry Teller Cocke; February 22, Rev. Edward O. Clark. The Rev. J. Hillman Hollister, pastor of the church, will preside.

Harned's Choir To Sing for Club

Surgeon General Ireland Plans Men's Program for February 10.

Under the leadership of Maj. Gen. Merritt W. Ireland, U. S. A., surgeon general, the Men's Club of Washington Heights Presbyterian Church has arranged an interesting program for its next meeting, February 10, in the main auditorium of the church.

Dr. Albert W. Harned's National Capital Choir will sing. Before the musical program which Dr. Harned has arranged he will read a paper on "The Ministry of Music." Discussion of his thesis will be invited. One or two of the foremost Presbyterian ministers in the city and others have been asked to take part in the symposium.

Dr. Harned has devoted his life to the ministry of music and for years has been preaching such gospel in Washington, in the hope that ultimately it will be accepted in all churches. His famous choir, composed largely of singers whom he has trained, will give a demonstration of his philosophy.

Gen. Ireland, speaking for the Men's Club, has extended a city-wide invitation to the friends of his church to this club evening.

H. M. Tate to Address Covenant Men's Society

Hugh M. Tate, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, will be the speaker before the Men's Society of the Covenant—First Presbyterian Church Monday evening.

(Pastor of Grace Lutheran Church)

The Law of Growth

"Because it had no root, it withered away." Mark iv:6.

THE seed was good. Climatic conditions were favorable. There was every reason to expect an abundant yield. In this instance, however, there was disappointment. The seed, lacking root, failed of moisture and nourishment. Soon after it withered and died.

Here, in a simple incident from nature, we have a lesson and a law for human lives. If there is to be growth in life, spiritual vision, high idealism, courage and constancy of character, there must be some root that reaches down into the soil of Divine grace and that draws strength and sustenance therefrom. Men who are naturally selfish need to feel the gracious influence of the unselfish Christ. They need to be warmed and renewed by that love which transcends all human love and which feeds the life of the whole world. To lose contact with God is to lose the impulse to generosity and the compulsion that makes for abiding righteousness.

We often wonder at the failure of some man who has had good opportunities. We ask why he should have made moral shipwreck when others, tempted perhaps more strongly than he, have stood upright and gained the victory. If we could look deep into life with the eyes of the Master we would know that character is fed by hidden springs and that the soul of the moral weakling, like the seed in the parable, "has withered away, because it had no root."

C. E. TO CELEBRATE 50TH YEAR MONDAY

District Union Will Give Dinner in Calvary Baptist at 6:30.

OTHERS TO OBSERVE DAY

The Christian Endeavor Union of the District of Columbia will have a part in the world-wide celebration of the golden anniversary of the birthday of Christian Endeavor, Monday. The union will give a fiftieth anniversary dinner at 6:30 that evening in Calvary Baptist Church, in honor of Christian Endeavor and of the late Dr. Francis E. Clarke, who organized the first Christian Endeavor Society February 2, 1881, in Williston Congregational Church, Portland, Me.

Christian Endeavor has so spread in 50 years that there are more than 4,000,000 Endeavorers in the world.

Darrell Crain, vice president of the union, will be toastmaster at the dinner. About 300 District Endeavorers are expected. Lawrence Morlan is chairman of the committee in charge. The orchestra from the Ninth Street Christian Society will provide the dinner music, and well-known soloists will sing. John Knapp, of Metropolitan C. E. Society, will lead the "pep" songs.

Others to Take Part.

The societies from Eckington Presbyterian, Calvary Baptist, Vermont Avenue Christian and Keller Lutheran churches will help to entertain. Dr. William Knowles Cooper, former general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., will be the speaker.

Members of the Intermediate Union will serve as waiters and waitresses.

Greetings will be read from Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president of the International Society of Christian Endeavor, and from other Endeavorers.

Dr. Charles S. Medbury, who is filling the pulpit of the National City Christian Church, will devote his evening sermon to the problems of the youth of today. Before the service there will be a union observance of the Christian Endeavor anniversary, to be presided over by Brook L. Haines, president of the Alpha C. E. Society. Robert M. Lyon, president of the District of Columbia C. E. Union, will speak.

There will be a speaking contest by three members of the Nonpareil Society—Treva Cameron, Edward Taggart and Ellen Pifer; music by a quartet, composed of Janet Jackson, Walter Pagan, jr., Helen Burton and Dallas Battan, and by the Junior C. E. Duo, Edna and Margaret Braithwaite. Mrs. Minnie Kidd, of the Alpha society, will give a historical sketch, "Through Fifty Years." Other speakers will be Dr. Medbury, W. E. Braithwaite, Margaret Bittner and D. Roland Potter.

The service will begin at 5:45. Tea will be served in the Sunday school rooms of the old Vermont Avenue Church, to which all present and former Christian Endeavorers and friends are invited.

More to Celebrate.

At the Ninth Street Christian Church, the Alpha Christian Endeavor Society will commemorate the jubilee with a program at the evening hour as follows:

Theme, "For Christ and the Church;" Scripture lesson, twelfth chapter Romans; duet, "In a Garden," Hubbard Quantrelle and Clinton Gill; short talks, "The Christian Endeavor History," William Ackerman; "Why I Am an Endeavorer," Junior F. Crowell; "The C. E. in the Program of the Church," Charles Critchfield; pastor's message, "What Does Christian Endeavor Stand For?"

At the Georgetown Lutheran Church Arthur P. Black, secretary of the Lutheran Laymen's Movement, will speak before the Christian Endeavor Society on "The Christian Endeavor Society in the Program of the Church."

At Metropolitan Baptist Church the pastor, Dr. John Compton Ball, will preach on the anniversary. The Christian Endeavor Society will be guests.

Louis B. Nichols, associate religious work director of the Y. M. C. A., will be the speaker at the evening service of Keller Memorial Lutheran Church. This service will be in celebration of the C. E. Society jubilee.

Dr. Lacy Will Address Central Presbyterian

At the service at the Central Presbyterian Church tomorrow morning, the Rev. Dr. Ben R. Lacy, jr., president of Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Va., will preach. At night the annual praise service for Foreign Missions, under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary, will be held, and the address will be made by Dr. Lacy.

Owing to the critical need of the Foreign Mission work in the Southern Presbyterian Church, a self denial offering will be made for this cause by the members of the church and congregation.

Preacher at Convent Bethlehem Speaker

The Rev. Winfred Douglas, of St. Mary's Convent, Peekskill, N. Y., who has been the leader of the conference at the College of Preachers at the Washington Cathedral this week on the general subject, "Teaching and Training the People in Worship," will preach at the 11 a. m. celebration of the holy communion in the Bethlehem Chapel.

Sermons on Modern Marriage End Tomorrow

Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, of Chicago, who is filling the pulpit of the First Congregational Church temporarily, will complete his series of sermons on "Marriage in the Modern Manner" tomorrow evening.

Next Sunday night he will begin a new series of the theme on "Modern American Life Revealed."

Church to Honor Wilson's Memory

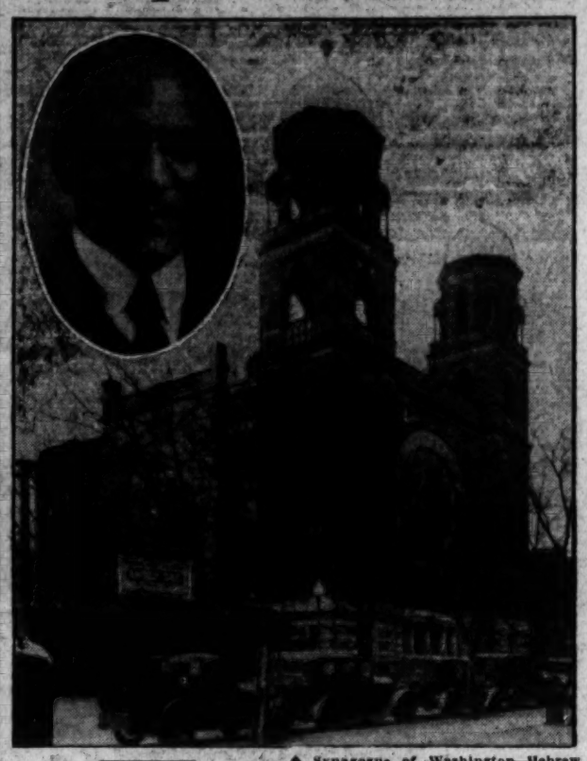
Pew President Occupied at Central Presbyterian to Be Draped.

In memory of President Wilson, who died February 3, 1924, the pew he occupied in the Central Presbyterian Church will be draped with the American flag for a week, beginning tomorrow.

During the World War Mr. Wilson, who was very regular in his church attendance, occupied the third pew from the front in the center of the church.

At the morning service the pastor, Dr. James H. Taylor, will read the address President Wilson made at the laying of the corner stone of the church. Copies of an address by Dr. Taylor on "The Membership of Woodrow Wilson in the Presbyterian Church," will be distributed.

Jews Will Celebrate Temple Anniversary



Synagogue of Washington Hebrew congregation, which celebrates its diamond jubilee next Friday, which is also the twenty-seventh anniversary of pastorate of Rabbi Simon (inset).

Handicapped in Capital Until Congress Granted Full Rights.

By DAVID RANKIN BARBEE.

One hardly realizes in this day that the Hebrew people have not always had a temple in Washington. They were in Maryland and Virginia long before the Revolution, and they were in Georgetown and maybe in Alexandria at the time the Federal City was laid out and its first monumental buildings erected.

However, as an organized group they date no further back than 1856. In that year they bought a lot in the city and started to erect a house of worship.

A question arose as to the validity of their title. Congress had passed a law, in 1844, which permitted Christian people to own and hold property for religious purposes. The Jews were told they could not qualify under that act, and in their dilemma they took their case to Congress.

Cass Backed Jews.

Who introduced the bill granting them relief I can not find from the Congressional Globe, but the fair presumption is that Senator Lewis Cass, of Michigan, did, for early in that year he delivered an eloquent and moving address to the Senate on the Jews, and this was followed by the action of the Senate on the bill, which, as introduced and as it now stands on the statute books, reads as follows:

"'An act for the benefit of the Hebrew Congregation in the City of Washington.

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled:

That all the rights, privileges and immunities heretofore granted to the Christian churches in the City of Washington be, and the same are hereby, extended to the Hebrew Congregation of said city, and that the third section of the act, approved the 17th of June, 1844, entitled 'An act concerning conveyances or devices of places of public worship in the District of Columbia,' shall be construed so as to allow the members of the Hebrew Congregation from time to time, by a vote of two-thirds, to elect their own trustees, and the same, by a like vote, to displace at pleasure; which said trustees shall, during their continuance in office, have the same title in and power over any lot or tract of land as if held by them under the act aforesaid for a Christian church, or as if they were appointed under said act trustees of any Christian church.

Bill Finally Carried.

"Provided, that any and all legal and equitable rights, demands or liabilities of the said Hebrew Congregation, acquired or assumed by and through said trustees, shall be limited to the trust property of said congregation held by said trustees."

This bill went before the Senate District of Columbia committee, was favorably reported out, and after a short delay was called up by the chairman of that committee, Senator A. G. Brown, of Mississippi, and passed unanimously.

It had a different fate in the House, where efforts to call it up were blocked by Representatives Bennett, of Mississippi, and Waldridge, of Michigan. George W. Jones, of Tennessee, "the watchdog of the Treasury," was the champion of the bill, ably aided by Mr. Crumpach, of Indiana, and together they finally got it through.

President Franklin K. Pierce approved the bill on June 2, 1858, but he did not notify the Senate of his action until eight days had passed. What leisurely gentlemen they were in those days.

While this bill was before Congress the Hebrews held what is called in the papers of that day a Hebrew festival, it being a banquet given for the purpose "of raising funds for the purchase of a copy of their Saphar, or Holy Law, which is written on parchment with peculiar ceremonies and care, the least defect or blot rendering the whole useless."

Joseph Friedenwald, president of the congregation, was the toastmaster. The affair was held at Harmony Hall. Only one gentile was present and he was a newspaper reporter.

Rabbi Mela, of Georgetown, "pronounced the blessing in Hebrew, cutting a portion of the loaf baked for Sabbath use, and dipping it in salt before he ate (sic) it. The bread was passed around and then the feast commenced."

Washington Toasted.

Half a dozen toasts were proposed, two of which are worth recalling. The first one was:

"The memory of George Washington, patria patriae: Standing, and in silence."

The last one was:

"Woman, the genius of whose inspiration controls the destiny of man."

Eloquent tribute was paid to Senator Cass, who but lately had fallen down the steps on the Pension Building and had come near dying from loss of blood.

Among those who spoke were the following: Henry King, Capt. Jonas P. Levy, Capt. Lull, Mr. Schloss, Mr. Friedlich, L. Oppenheim, and Solomon Pihram, who spoke in German.

Descendants of these notable men are living in this city and are members of the congregation, which will celebrate the diamond jubilee of the organization of the society next Friday.

It so happens that this is also the twenty-seventh anniversary of the pastorate of Rabbi Abram Simon, a native of Nashville, Tenn., one of the foremost Jews in America, if not in the world. His heart grows very tender as he reads the history of the founding of this old congregation, which has grown so numerous and so strong under his shepherding.

A saddlemaker, George W. Jones, who was a senator in two nations, the American Union and the Confederate States, and Abram Simon, the son of a journeyman tailor, touch hands across the chasm of time with a peculiar understanding.

Ascension's New Rector to Preach

Rev. Francis A. Parsons Will Assume Post Tomorrow.

The Rev. Francis Alan Parsons will assume his office as rector of the Church of the Ascension, Twelfth street and Massachusetts avenue northwest, tomorrow. He will officiate at three services, 8 and 11 a. m., and 8 p. m. Holy Communion will be celebrated at the morning services.

Dr. Parsons was ordained June 4, 1915, by Bishop Gravitt, of West Virginia. He has served in West Virginia, Delaware, Texas, and for the last three years in Collington parish, in this diocese. He succeeds the late Rev. Thomas Worthington Cooke, who was rector of Ascension Church for eight years.

The Ascension is one of the oldest Episcopal parishes in the city; it was for years the procathedral of the Diocese of Washington and has been the church home of many of the Capital's distinguished residents.

Dr. Evans Takes Up Residence in Capital

At the Washington Catholic Radio Hour, broadcast every Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Mgr. Peter I. Ireton, pastor of St. Ann's Church, Baltimore, will speak on "The Catholic Concept of Sin as Opposed to the World's."

At the special Lourdes devotions a solemn Lourdes procession will be made up of the Friars of the Atonement in brown habits, blue and white robed sanctuary boys carrying lanterns, and high school girls in white dresses and capes, also the blessing of the sick, which was originated at the Grotto of Lourdes, in France.

The participants of the blessing are in care of a staff of nurses under Mary McGarry. The musical program of this service is in charge of Prof. Harry Wheaton Howard, director of the Immaculate Conception Choir. Miss Florence Yocum will be the soloist.

At Holy Comforter.

The Holy Comforter Holy Name Society will give an entertainment in Holy Comforter School Hall, Fifteenth and East Capitol streets, Sunday evening, February 8.

John F. McCarron, president of the Archdiocesan Union, will speak. He will have his staff of the "flying squadron" with him, consisting of Charles L. Aiello, president of the Washington section; P. J. Haltigan, and F. P. Gunning.

Col. W. L. Peak, president of the Holy Comforter Branch of the Holy Name Society, will preside.

Minstrel Show.

The men of St. Ann's Holy Name Society are preparing for their second annual minstrel show, which will be held in St. Ann's Auditorium, Greenmount avenue and Twenty-second street, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights. Performances will begin promptly at 8:15.

Twenty men will take part in the show, which is under the direction of William J. Malstrom. Bernard A. Garrity is interlocutor. The end men will be Harry Feihe, Eddie Brown, Jimmy Tydings, Bill Malstrom, Everett Beall and Ted Romans. Solos will be offered by Paul Flynn, Martin Recklenberger, John Bennett, Ogden Knight, Jimmy Osborne and Wallace McCarty.

Solemn Public Novena.

A solemn public novena in honor of Our Lady of Lourdes and the Miraculous Medal will be held at St. Mary's Church beginning Tuesday and closing Wednesday, February 11.

The exercises will be directed by the Rev. Dr. Cuthbert Dittmeier.

The novena mass will be said at 7 o'clock daily. The evening services at 7:30 o'clock will consist of prayers, sermon and benediction.

Tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday Saint Stephen's Dramatic Club, of Saint Stephen's Church, will present "The Absent-Minded Bridegroom," a comedy of Irish-American life.

The play will be given in the school hall at Twenty-fourth and K streets northwest.

The first performance will be especially for the younger members of the parish. The older members will attend on Monday and Tuesday evenings.

Plans for a great increase in membership were advanced this week by the new officers of the Washington section of the Baltimore Archdiocesan Union of Holy Name Societies.

Caesar L. Aiello, of Hyattsville, was reelected president! Patrick J. Haltigan, vice president; Francis Anthony McCann, secretary; John J. Curtin, treasurer, and James J. Galvin, marshal.

Bowermans to Address Universalist Club

Dr. and Mrs. George F. Bowerman will be the chief speakers at the meeting of the Optimist Club of the Universalist National Memorial Church Tuesday evening.

Dr. Bowerman will discuss the activities of the Public Library, of which he is the head, and Mrs. Bowerman will review some of the current books.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR MRS. M'DOWELL

PASTORS TO TAKE PART

The Methodist churches of Washington are to hold a memorial service Thursday night at 8 o'clock as a tribute to the life and work of Mrs. William Fraser McDowell, wife of Bishop McDowell, who died December 27.

Mrs. McDowell was an active member of the Foundry Methodist Episcopal Church during the years since Bishop McDowell was assigned to Washington, so the services are to be held there.

Music will be provided by a choir composed of Mrs. Mary Sherier Bowie, soprano; Miss Ritchie McLean, contralto; J. F. M. Bowie, tenor, and J. E. S. Kinsella, bass. George Wilson will be at the organ.

Ministers from Baltimore and Washington will take part in the service. Addresses will be made by Miss Florence Hooper, of Baltimore, representing the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, of which Mrs. McDowell was national president for thirteen years, and by Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, who was her pastor.

An organ recital of memorial hymns will begin at 7:45.

THE SENATE BEATEN.

When the Senate permitted itself to be placed in a false position by politicians seeking to make capital out of public distress it earned the rebuke that has been administered by the House. The vote in the House stands as a bar against a raid on the Treasury for the establishment of a permanent system for feeding citizens at public expense.

The House decides that public charity shall be administered by the Red Cross and not by the Government.

By its vote the House forbids its conferees to yield to the Senate on the item of $25,000,000 for public charity, injected without authorization of law into the Interior Department bill. The Senate had no right to attach this unauthorized item to an appropriation bill.

No doubt an effort will be made by the Senate conferees to induce the House conferees to accept a modification of this amendment. The House may be compelled to vote again on this subject. But its action of yesterday expresses its fixed determination to reject any proposal to set up a Federal dole.

Foreseeing their defeat, Senate Democrats yesterday adopted a program which they assert must be accepted by Congress. It includes the rejected $25,000,000 item for a dole; $15,000,000 for loans for food; $3,000,000 for medical supplies to the needy; 20,000,000 bushels of wheat; $5,000,000 for organization of relief corporations; and reappropriation of $2,500,000 for flood relief in the Southern States.

The threat is made by Senate Democrats that they will force an extra session of Congress unless their demands are accepted by the House and the President.

It may be that an extra session will result from this Democratic attempt to set up socialism as a substitute for the American system of government. If so, the public will know where to place the responsibility.

The frantic efforts of Senate politicians to find a substitute for the American Red Cross through which to distribute Treasury money as charity have fully exposed to the country the folly and fallacy of the Senate's attempt to set up the dole system. The House accurately reflects public sentiment in smashing this socialism. The Red Cross is now free to go forward with its beneficent work, well assured that the organization is not to be changed into a Federal charity bureau.

A good day's work has been done by the House. It gains in public esteem by standing as the guardian of the Treasury. The people rely upon the House to kill off each socialistic scheme proposed by the Senate, whether an extra session should ensue or not. Senators owe it to themselves to shake off the malign combination which has led them into a blunder that tends to destroy public confidence in the Senate. Democrats who have any regard for American institutions will refuse to be led any longer by frenzied politicians who have made themselves and their followers the subjects of a stinging rebuke by the representatives of the people.

PRICE FIXING.

When Representative Kelly gazed on the mutilated form of his price-fixing bill as it passed the House of Representatives he must, indeed, have been in a quandary. Should he rejoice in victory, or weep in defeat?

For many years this measure has been before the House. Apparently members of that practical body have grown tired of defeating it in one way or another. Instead of sending it back for the interstate commerce committee to worry about the House decided on Thursday to emasculate the bill and let it pass on to a grave in the Senate. When the bill had been maimed almost beyond recognition it was allowed to pass without a roll call.

The Kelly bill was designed to give producers control of retail prices on trade-marked goods. But the House interpolated nearly a dozen amendments, so that the bill as passed forbids producers to fix retail prices on any of the necessities of life. The effect of the measure was reversed insofar as a large majority of commodities are concerned. As it stands the measure is a monstrosity. It recognizes the evils of price-fixing, and yet provides for application of those evils to the industrial system to a limited degree.

The plain intent of this bill was to nullify the antitrust law and allow monopolistic producers to set their own prices. It would have authorized price-fixing contracts between producers and retailers. Proponents of the bill made a great deal of the argument that such contracts would be voluntary. As a matter of fact, retailers could have been forced into price-fixing contracts or forced out of business. Manufacturers would have obtained control over the whole marketing system and the public would have been at their mercy. The competition which now exists between retail merchants would have been destroyed. Retail dealers would have become mere cogs in a monopoly machine.

Congress has declared that contracts between manufacturers and retail dealers to fix prices constitute restraint of trade and are contrary to public policy. The Supreme Court has sustained that act, and experience has proved that its fundamentals are sound. Public interests can best be served by freedom of competition. If a few retail merchants attempt to hold prices up beyond their natural level their rivals get the business. But if producers were given authority to fix their own prices the public would be left without means of redress.

The price-fixers of the House are now looking to the Senate to mend the Kelly bill. But its prospects are anything but hopeful. The best service the Senate can perform for this derelict is to find it a pigeonhole where it can die in peace.

WHY NYE LIVES HIGH.

Senator Nye is much annoyed by the revelation of the itemized account of expenditures by his campaign slush fund committee. He fears that his constituents may not fully understand why it was necessary that he and his sleuths should live like sybarites at expensive hotels and scatter largess to porters, taxi drivers and waiters. The scale of living in North Dakota does not include traveling in Pullman drawing rooms and indulgence in delicacies in selected hotels. North Dakotans may be horrified to learn that their senator has expended sums that compare in their enormity with the wicked disbursements of candidates who have been under investigation.

Not long ago the fund which has sustained Senator Nye and his associate investigators and corps of sleuths became dangerously enfeebled, if not absolutely exhausted. He asked for more nourishment, but members of the committee in control of the contingent fund insisted that he should make an accounting of money already spent before granting him another installment. The account was rendered, and now Senator Moses is guilty of an unpardonable breach of senatorial courtesy by making it public. Mr. Nye feelingly complains that the public will not understand the items, or may regard the expenditures as excessive, or may wonder why his brother was bursar of the magic fund.

The account does not astound a more sophisticated public than that of North Dakota. It is well understood that gentlemen must live and travel like gentlemen. Senator Nye could not have been expected to put on overalls and steal rides in box cars in the pursuit of malefactors who have tried to buy seats in the Senate. His sleuths must be presentable men of the world, not hoboes. High-priced "operators" are a necessity in trailing high-priced campaigns. The investigation of Senate scandals is unavoidably expensive. If the Senate is to go into the States to shadow candidates and slush fund dispensers in primaries, in order to prevent the States from electing men who are unacceptable to senators already in their seats, ample expense money must be furnished. The new system of political sanitation installed by the Senate can not properly call upon the Red Cross or the Salvation Army for support. The United States Treasury is the only reliable source of sustenance.

The people of North Dakota should look upon these revelations in the proper light. Senator Nye was not lapping himself in luxury for any selfish purpose. He was engaged in stern duty. How can campaign slush funds be run down except by the use of Senate slush funds? Would the taxpayers of North Dakota be willing to pay out of their own pockets the expenses of Senator Nye and his corps of operators, and thus relieve the Senate and the Treasury of the burden? If not, let them keep their peace, and try to understand why Senator Nye is compelled to live on a more lavish scale when he travels at public expense than when he is moving about at private expense as a mere citizen of North Dakota.

REGULATING FARM PRODUCTION.

It is only in the last ten years that agricultural experts have generally recognized the need for economic research to adjust, so far as possible, farm production to demand. For years Federal and State agricultural agencies interested themselves almost exclusively with the study of ways to improve processes of production, inducing the farmer to increase his output whether there was a market for his products or not. Eight or ten years ago, however, a movement arose for the collecting and collating of information relating to probable future demand, upon which to plan production. The national and State outlook reports of today are a result of this movement.

There are meeting in Washington more than 50 leading agricultural economists, extension workers and commodity specialists from all parts of the United States to study the immediate and long-time outlook for American agriculture. Their fundamental object is to "assemble and interpret the facts of domestic and foreign conditions that affect the markets for American agricultural products and to place this information before farmers to enable them to organize their farm business with regard to changing economic conditions." At the conclusion of the meeting there will be issued by the Government a report on the national outlook for more than 40 farm crops and classes of live stock.

The report should be of inestimable value to the American farmer provided he will utilize it. Manufacturers have learned long since the folly of letting production run loose. Farmers must learn a similar lesson. The average farmer, however, is content to till his acres as his father did before him. He does not recognize the interrelationship that exists among farmers. He is opposed to new ideas. He is resentful of advice. Here and there may be found a farmer awake to modern tendencies and ready to accept the counsel of agricultural experts. In these farmers, whose number fortunately is increasing, lies the hope of American agriculture. To them the outlook report is a vital document. They are the ones who will read it, digest it and carry its recommendations into practice.

HOME FOR THE VICE PRESIDENT.

The offer of Mrs. John B. Henderson to provide a permanent home for the Vice Presidents merits serious consideration.

Once before, when Calvin Coolidge was Vice President, Mrs. Henderson made a similar offer. Because Mr. Coolidge was unable to assume the upkeep of an elaborate establishment and unwilling to ask Congress for an appropriation for the purpose, nothing was made of the opportunity. Now, however, Representative Gibson proposes to introduce a bill providing for the acceptance of the offer, and asking for appropriations of $30,000 for furnishing the mansion and $25,000 annually for upkeep.

Mrs. Henderson has offered the Government a most generous gift. Situated in upper Fifteenth street, the house she would turn over "free and clear of any incumbrance," was constructed recently at a cost of $300,000. Of adequate size, in an excellent location, the house is suitable as a home for the Vice President. The generous spirit that prompted Mrs. Henderson to proffer the mansion can not be too highly commended.

The House defeats an amendment to preclude the appointment of Representative Cramton as associate director of the bicentennial commission at $10,000 a year. A representative never knows when he'll become a lame duck.

Members of Congress paid the Government Printing Office $67,000 last year for printing their speeches. Some fellows just don't care how they throw away their money.

George W. Wickersham says he feels like a punching bag. That must be an individual report. The commission itself would give eleven different versions of its feelings.

The meaning of a word in Chinese is altered by the tone in which it is uttered. There are quite a few words of that kind in the American language.

The insinuation that the Red Cross is "in politics" illustrates how impossible it is for the Senate to touch anything without getting messed up in politics.

The Asian women's congress opposes polygamy, opium, alcohol, white slavery and early marriage. Include radios and ukuleles and the list is perfect.

"POWER TRUST" MOVIE

From the Wall Street Journal.

What is known in Washington as the power issue is in a fair way to be popularized, even transformed into suitable material for the all-talkies, or substituted in the broadcasting studios for the now slightly too familiar "You're Driving Me Crazy." At any rate the judiciary committee of the Senate has voted to request the United States attorney in the District of Columbia to begin court proceedings to oust from office three of President Hoover's appointees to the Federal Power Board. If both he and the Attorney General refuse to start an action, "an interested person" may do so, with $2,500 for attorney's fees provided.

So the controversy over the title of Commissioners Smith, Garsaud and Draper to their offices is no longer what the legendary Irishman in the saloon of olden days called a private fight. Anybody can get into it. That is as it should be. If President Hoover is wickedly bent upon putting the Hydra-headed or hydro-headed Power Trust in the saddle, or in the chauffeur's seat, or on the bridge of the ship of state, let the inevitable ruction be open to all comers.

It is the considered observation of this newspaper's experienced Washington correspondent that "scarcely any one outside the Senate and even few therein, believe the courts would do anything but uphold the President" against the Senate's audacious assertion of a right to recall its confirmations of presidential appointments after the appointees have been commissioned and sworn. If the Senate agrees with its judiciary committee and invites the courts to repeat the President's rebuke to the chamber's arrogance in this matter, it will be because it has government ownership fish to fry. It will hope to keep that skillet on the fire of agitation against what potential third-party leaders love to describe as the all-devouring Power Trust. And why continue the agitation? Because government ownership may win some victories in a war of exhaustion, as it has finally wearied the country to the point of unwilling consent to Government operation of Muscle Shoals.

This is the real issue between a part of the Senate and the White House in the unseemly row over the Power Commission appointees. The self-styled progressives in the Senate propose to dramatize the struggle, to give it a wider appeal, even if they have figuratively to stop a few custard pies with their heads in order to do so. Movie executives will sit up attentively if the Senate produces a picture of box office potency for as little as $2,500. But this is to be an educational film, not necessarily a thriller.

SHORT CIRCUITS.

"Second-Story Men."

Richmond Register: The second-story men that annoy us most are those who insist on telling their favorite story a second time.

Promotion.

London Punch: In the last year American courts imposed fines totaling £1,400,000 on charges connected with prohibition. It certainly seems to be a financial success.

Neutralizing Noises.

Los Angeles Times: Airplane passengers are now using wads of cotton for their ears and chewing gum for their mouths to neutralize the noises. Then there is soup—and celery!

Inexperienced Speaking.

Kansas City Star: Every now and then some one remarks how much more difficult it is to be a good winner than to be a good loser, but usually when you look him up you find that it's somebody like Knute Rockne doing the talking.

Tough Steaks.

Chicago Tribune: A butcher in Pittsburgh threw a steak at a robber who was about to hold him up and the steak was so hard and tough that the bandit was knocked senseless. 'S nothin'! We've seen steaks so hard and tough in Pittsburgh that we had a notion to have the waiter that brought 'em to us arrested for assault with a deadly weapon.

MUSSOLINI'S TWO FACES.

Those who welcomed Mussolini's peace message to America, as all Americans certainly did, says the Milwaukee Journal, will be interested to learn that his words, heard by radio in thousands of American homes, were not even published in Italy. Instead, a correspondent cables the New York Sun, Italians were given a different address by their premier, an address demanding revision of peace treaties and insisting on increased armaments to resist the "military hegemony" of France. Thus does Il Duce again make sharp differentiation between home consumption and consumption abroad. To America he sends the peace dove, but in Italy he pulls the tail feathers of the screaming eagle.

To say that the two addresses are incompatible may be going too far. It is always possible, of course, that the premier is sincerely concerned only in defensive armaments for Italy. But the address at home certainly lessens to a small degree the effect of the address abroad. Those who fondly, and perhaps a little foolishly, hoped that Mussolini was now a convert to the theory of settling international disputes by peaceful means will again have doubts.

Perhaps the dictator recalls that January is for Janus, the god who faced both ways.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE PASSER-BY.

I'd rather be the passer-by,
With time to loiter day by day
And gaze on field and stream and sky,
Than live in such a hurried way
That I must race a garden through
And never once its beauty view.

For one there is I know right well,
Who has no time to neighbor now,
At him Time rings its urgent bell,
Grim care dwells ever on his brow,
And all day long he sits and looks
At figures in the ledger books.

At ten o'clock he must be here,
Eleven must find him over there;
And so he races through the year
With not a moment he can spare;
But on his path are blossoming trees
With nesting birds he never sees.

And round about him day by day
Are scenes of infinite delight,
God's people endless dramas play
He passes scenes of beauty rare
And never knows that they are there.

I'd rather be the passer-by,
With time to loiter now and then
To see the splendor in the sky
That canopies this world of men,
Than look at ledger books all day
And miss the people at their play.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE—Yesterday I heard you express your opinion of a girl who "told tales out of school," and I heartily agreed with it.

But there is a time to tell as well as a time not to tell, and you must learn which is which.

There are few things in this world more despicable than a "tattletale." In all ages the spy and the informer have been despised and mistrusted, even by the authorities that made use of them.

The "stool pigeon" used by all police organizations is a contemptible creature who makes dishonor a profession, and the criminals he brings to justice are more respected and more worthy of respect than he.

You can not associate with tale-bearers and escape unsmirched. The Judas is wholly vile. His capacity for treachery is proof that he has no conception of honor, and that means he will stoop to any evil that promises him a profit or an advantage.

The thief may be a normally decent man who in some extremity was overcome by temptation, and the murderer may be one whose normal decency was overcome by a jealous passion; but the informer who abuses the confidence of his associates and wears a mask of friendship to conceal his treachery is rotten through and through—a loathsome creature who merits the scorn of all mankind.

But, my dear, you can not hang all spies to the same tree, for some of them will be heroes serving the cause of freedom.

It is one thing to say: "Mamma, Willie is snitching the jam!" and quite another to cry: "Mamma, Willie is trying to set the house afire!"

Sometimes it is your duty to tell, and to remain silent would be as cowardly and contemptible as treachery itself.

It is largely a matter of the effect your telling will have. If the only effect will be trouble or punishment for somebody, and the whole affair is none of your business, you can't tell without joining the stool pigeons. If by telling you can save those who are threatened, or rid the world of one whose evil is a menace to decency and justice, then you must tell or be a traitor to all those who are endangered.

You won't go far wrong if you attend to your own business and yell for a cop only when right is getting licked. Love, DAD.

Obstructing Red Cross Relief.

New York Herald-Tribune.

While the food-dole statesmen are posturing on Capitol Hill the plain people of the country are giving generously to the Red Cross and relief is being brought to the sufferers in the senatorial constituencies in the South and Southwest. Needless to say, if the senators stopped their wantonly obstructive tactics the money would pour in even faster and relief measures would be correspondingly improved.

But nothing indicates that the senators are going to stop. Having started out on the assumption that the voters have virtually no more brains than guinea pigs, these statesmen are loath to admit that the United States is full of people who can think for themselves. These senators are now reduced to ignoring all that is most obvious. Having set American generosity at naught, they shut their eyes to the contributions being made to the Red Cross in such a splendid manner. Having set their hearts on a Treasury raid, they deliberately ignore such matters of historical record as the fact that the Red Cross is a voluntary organization and would not be the Red Cross if it were anything else.

Rubber Money.

Christian Science Monitor.

Will not the Congress of the United States, while considering a proposed bill to make money last longer, consider at the same time one that will make it go farther?

But They Won't Pass It.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

If they pass that bill to raid all homes under suspicion of having a wee drop in Washington, many a representative will have to fall back on his official immunity.

Adams at the Front.

Indianapolis News.

The Secretary of the Navy is going to stay in Washington as long as Congress is in session, showing that he knows where naval battles are won or lost.

Let the Red Cross Alone.

New York Times.

It is not likely that occasions will arise in which the country will not be able to meet them by voluntary gift. At any rate, it should be the responsibility of the Red Cross to determine the need and to devise measures of relief.

For the present emergency it is raising a fund to give relief in the drought areas, while the Senate proposes to give it $25,000,000, to be expended "anywhere in the United States to persons otherwise unable to procure relief." This would mean the displacing or duplication of existing local agencies by setting up Red Cross committees in thousands of communities. Besides all this, the enactment would tend to dry up the sources of voluntary aid and seriously impair this organization of mercy which has written in its half century of existence one of the most creditable and beautiful chapters in the history of mankind.

Shut the Gates Closer.

Atlanta Constitution.

The proposal in Congress to reduce immigration by 90 per cent for the next two years commends itself most highly to those who wish to cure, as far as possible, the unemployment conditions in the country.

Organized and unorganized labor are suffering from the overplus of workers, amounting now to near 5,000,000 persons, officially estimated by Col. Woods, head of the President's emergency committee for employment. That is far and away too many willing workers to be jobless in a nation as rich and as incomplete in public improvements as is the United States.

Beware of Hit-and-Run Drivers.

Minneapolis Journal.

The world may have been made safe for democracy, but it would be well for democracy not to cross the street without looking both ways.

What Democrats Think.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

A few more "bad Republicans" like Senator Norris wouldn't hurt the country or the Republican party just now.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Protest Against Kelly Resale Bill on Ground That It Will Raise Prices.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have come to Washington on behalf of 3,700 retailers throughout the country who are opposed to the Kelly price-fixing bill. These retailers employ about three-fourths of a million people and serve most of the consumers in the land.

Letters and telegrams from these numerous retailers give unmistakable evidence of public resentment regarding the Kelly price-fixing bill.

The American public will not cheerfully submit to any legislation which will increase prices, at this particular time, of the necessities of life.

The Kelly bill will do just that and will raise prices on every necessity of life that happens to bear an advertised name. It will also increase unemployment by slowing up production.

It is most unwise at this time to propose legislation of any character which will create additional uncertainties into an already confused business situation.

Housewives, consumers, farmers, growers and laborers will be thoroughly aroused when they learn that Congress has passed a law to prevent legitimate price reductions on the necessities of life.

I have no hesitancy in saying that a vote for this bill will defeat any man in Congress in whose campaign price-fixing legislation is made a prominent issue.

BENJ. H. NAMM.

Fine Meat and Hide Supply in the Reindeer Herds.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If the reindeer herds continue to multiply in Alaska, the meat of this animal will be a common thing throughout the United States. Many hotels already serve this kind of meat. Most of the herds in Alaska are owned by natives. They were brought into Alaska from Siberia about 40 years ago. It is estimated that there are a hundred herds comprising a total of about 1,000,000 reindeer. The herds are multiplying so rapidly that it is feared the grazing grounds will soon be insufficient to support these animals.

As there is a market for this type of meat, and if the herds are increasing too rapidly, it would be wise to enlarge the market. The hides make good leather and a good one is worth from $5 to $10.

In November the deer are prepared for the market and held in cold storage. At present this meat industry is in its infancy, but it is estimated that 150,000 carcasses a year could be supplied to the market without unduly depleating the herds.

An Unemployed Mind Begrudges a Little Liquor to Dentists.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Lickersham report graduates more bartenders. Now it's the dentist who is to be able to hoodle his friends with prewar stuff. Next it'll be the optometrists who'll make the patient see the wisdom of selecting the right eyeglasses. And the morticians, too, perhaps, will not only give 'em a ride, but a drink.

Of course, the dentists have a lobby working on Congress, with the object of providing themselves with a monthly supply for home consumption. It would be a better plan and confer greater benefits to give the four of five quarts each month to the electricians, who could send along with the monthly bill a gill for the chill.

Better still, let the unemployed apple magnates on the street corners give a prescription with each apple.

AN UNEMPLOYED MIND.

TO PAVLOWA.

(Birthday, January 30.)

They say that you are dead—
That never more, as wisp of thistle down
And with a wreath of roses round your head
You will delight the world—
How could you, being dead?

They say that from your lovely eyes
The light of the eternal fires has fled,
And that your nimble feet—the gods' own gift,
Are stilled forever, and the grace
That was all you—is dead.

The flying rose-mist scarf you now let fall,
As eagerly, with smiling, parted lips,
You take your first immortal curtain call!

LEGISLATION VS. PAY ROLLS.

Nineteen hundred and thirty-one, observes the Mining Congress Journal, will see the legislatures of forty-four States in regular session. It is a safe assertion that forty-four sets of tax laws will be formulated. Forty-four separate attacks will be made on general business in the great game of "Raise the Money."

It is recognized that, while the State has no source of revenue except taxation, no economic law operates more ruthlessly than the "law of diminishing returns," and no one factor serves to stagnate industrial development so effectually as misdirected and unscientific taxation.

Concerted effort in the development of natural resources will create the necessary values as a basis for sound taxation, while avoidance of legislative interference with industry will promote harmonious relations between men of capital and holders of natural resources.

Industrial counties invariably carry the burden. To continue assessing higher and higher levies on existing industries is to penalize thrift and drive capital elsewhere. To survey and analyze the flow of goods in and out of a State, and then to scientifically predicate necessary development, is a practical method of increasing assessable values and of securing additional pay rolls, which latter, in turn, supply industry with working capital, and result in prosperous stores, improved markets for farm produce and avoid the imposition of burdensome and destructive tax measures.

As Confucius once said: "Good government obtains when those who are near are made happy, and those who are far off are attracted."

HIGHEST COURT GETS PRESS LIBERTY CASE

Minnesota Publisher Fights State Law Permitting Curb on Expression.

(Associated Press.)

The Supreme Court was asked yesterday to decide whether a State statute authorizing the granting of injunctions to restrain future publication of certain articles was consistent with the constitutionally guaranteed freedom of the press.

The arguments were presented against the Minnesota statute under which the publication of the Saturday Press of Minneapolis was enjoined in 1927.

No case in recent years attracted more attention from members of the court. They interjected a constant flow of inquiries during the two hours of oral argument.

J. M. Near, publisher of the Saturday Press, brought the appeal and was represented in the oral arguments by Weymouth Kirkland. The defense was presented by Deputy Attorney General James E. Markham and Assistant County Attorney Arthur L. Markve.

A temporary injunction started the controversy. It was based on articles appearing in nine issues of the Saturday Press which the State declared were malicious, scandalous and defamatory. The temporary injunction was later made permanent.

The articles charged that certain officials were not energetically performing their duties in ridding the city of organized crime.

Mr. Kirkland contended that the articles in question were aimed to clean up gang rule in Minneapolis. He declared States and the Federal Government had no right to suppress a newspaper because of such articles insisting there was an ample remedy under the libel laws.

Asserting that the Constitution was not intended to protect an individual in the commission of a wrong, Mr. Markham insisted that Near had been given an opportunity to defend himself by showing that the articles were true and not inspired by mischievous motives. This he said Near had refused to do.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

PALATIAL homes for the great of filmdom have become so proverbially the thing in Hollywood that when a screen actor of prominence declines to go in for hillside mansions, swimming pools, imported cars and the other accessories of celluloid success he immediately becomes the man who bit the dog—if you know what I mean.

Fred Kohler is one of these. For 20 years or so Kohler was a character actor who never won any particular recognition until the vogue of leading men of the Bancroft-McLaglen-Beery-Bickford type came along two or three years ago. He joined on as a tough egg and producers scrambled for him, as you might say.

When he got into the big money, he betook himself about 25 miles from Hollywood to a three-acre farm instead of hiring himself a palace on a mountain and a flock of servants. His flocks are of geese, turkeys, pigeons, ducks and pheasants, which he raises along with alfalfa, apples and citrus fruits. He has two cows, two horses and an onion patch. His farm, although tiny in comparison with the one he was reared on in Iowa, is self-supporting. And it is anything but a dude farm. Its pens and barns are built in substantial Iowa fashion and the fences are plain barbed wires—the kind you snag your pants on.

I understand that when Fred craves a mess of buttermilk all he has to do is walk past his cows wearing his best "heavy" scowl!

Speaking of how and where the stars live on the West Coast, when Al Jolson adopted Hollywood as a permanent residence he began to look for an apartment (because a house is too much trouble) and his friend, Joe Schenck, the producer, made him a proposition.

Schenck, who has an interest in the Talmadge Apartments, named after his wife, Norma, offered to throw the dice once to decide whether Jolson would pay him double or nothing for a life-long lease on a suite. Schenck lost.

That's even better than getting it for a song!

Just as this paragraph was about to be written anyway, cards trimmed in delicate baby blue arrived announcing the birth last Saturday, January 24, of a son to Mr. and Mrs. John J. Payette, 3610 Sixteenth street.

Since his older sister was named Dorothy Dolores, after her mother, a nice family balance is maintained by naming the new ruler of the household John Joy, junior, after his father.

Mr. Payette, it seems needless to remind you, is manager of the Warner Brothers interests in the Washington territory, and Mrs. Payette, the former Dorothy Crandall, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Crandall, affectionately known to her intimate friends as "Dixie."

It is a pleasure to report that both baby John Joy, junior, and his mother are flourishing and to add heartiest congratulations to those with which the proud parents are being deluged.

Lovers of the newsreels will encounter no end of celebrities in their favorite short subject this week.

In the Fox Movietone News Frank J. Loesch, one of the members, and Al Smith, effulgent in a striped suit, assertive striped shirt with collar to match and a razzle-dazzle necktie, both discuss the report of the Wickersham Law Observance and Enforcement Commission; Senator Couzens bears down on the necessity of charity relief for unemployment and drought sufferers; Will Rogers kids with David Ingalls, undersecretary of the Navy for aeronautics, and Frank Hawks whisks him away in the secretary's speedy plane.

In the Pathe News, at RKO-Keith's, President Hindenburg observes the sixtieth anniversary of the confederation of German states; Jim Londos, the Greek Adonis, tosses Jim McMillen out of the ring, and then on his back, in a rasslin' match, and Max Schmeling, the synthetic heavyweight champion, does an Emil Jannings with a speech that is longer, but not thicker, than his dialect.

By the way, in conjunction with the regulation screen trailer announcing "Cimarron," the next attraction at the RKO-Keith Theater, there is to be shown, beginning today, an eight-minute pictorial resume of the goings-on a week ago last night, when "Cimarron" was previewed by two invited audiences. Floyd Gibbons delivers a running account of events, as he did of the flight over the South Pole in Byrd's epic of the bottom of the world, "With Byrd at the South Pole."

Edna Ferber, incidentally, is not doing so badly at RKO-Keith's just now. She is coauthor with George S. Kaufman of "The Royal Family," from which Paramount's "The Royal Family of Broadway," which opened last night to an overflow crowd, was adapted, and wrote the book "Cimarron" from which Radio Pictures adapted the vehicle that marks Richard Dix an actor of the first water.

Reverting momentarily to the Fox Tom Olsen, formerly director of advertising and publicity for the F Street Cathedral, is to be succeeded, for the time being, by Louis Brown, transferred as a stop-gap publicist from the Fox New York office to relieve Hardie Meakin, managing director, of double duty.

Mr. Brown is well-known in Washington, having long been a resident of this city. He was last associated here with the Henry Miller News Picture Service.

When, as and if this is being read, your reporter will probably be enjoying an unaccustomed sort of weekend, which the surgeon insists will hurt him more than it does me.

Having a swell time—wisht you wuz here!

Estate of $500,000 Is Devised in Will

Mrs. Lockett Bequeaths $100 a Month for Life to Her Husband.

An estate valued at approximately $500,000 was left by Mrs. Pauline Lockett, who died January 12, according to the petition for the probate of her will filed yesterday in District Supreme Court.

The National Savings & Trust Co. is named as executor and trustee. Under the terms of the will the husband, James W. Lockett, is to receive a life annuity of $100 a month. A daughter, Mrs. Pauline A. Kaiser, of St. Louis, will receive one-third of the remaining income, while two grandchildren, Pauline A. Hyatt and Franck Hyatt, will divide the remainder.

Mrs. Lockett's estate consists of premises at 1776 Massachusetts avenue northwest, assessed at $45,000, and personal property estimated at $432,514.91.

Land Condemnation Proceedings Begun

Proceedings to condemn land on Pennsylvania avenue southeast at Thirty-eighth street wanted by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission were instituted yesterday in District Supreme Court by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and Special Assistant United States Attorney General Henry H. Glassie.

The property is in the tract known as Aaron and is assessed as parcel 207 over 24. It contains 4.3493 acres.

WILL $7.12 A WEEK FEED FOUR ADULTS?

RECIPES STILL OFFERED

Can a Washington family of four adults be fed at an average cost of $7.12 a week by following the food guide prepared by the Bureau of Home Economics, United States Department of Agriculture?

The bureau says that three meals daily can be provided for a week for that amount. The statement was made in connection with the bureau's cooperation with the woman's division of the President's emergency committee.

The average cost was derived from figures obtained in twelve cities. Naturally, the variety of the food in this $7.12 market basket is not great, but they are what is known as protective foods.

Dr. Louis Stanley, chief of the Bureau of Home Economics, explains this as meaning that there is a goodly supply of vitamins, protein, calcium, phosphorous and iron, as well as enough calories to provide for growth and health.

Qualities Necessary.

At the request of the woman's division, of which Dr. Lillian Gilbreth is head, the bureau developed this food guide to meet the needs of families who must live on a very small sum of money because of the present situation. It was designed as a minimum food guide, and wherever the family pocketbook permits, the allowance should be increased.

The bureau suggests that the cheapest and best way to augment the weekly allowance is to increase the milk and tomatoes one pound per person per week. The quantities of milk, vegetables and lean meat listed are absolutely necessary to maintain health, and Dr. Stanley cautions against reducing these essentials. The food guide gives an excellent foundation on which a more expensive diet may be built:

A family of four adults should buy every week:

Flour, cereal and rice (1½ pounds bread count as 1 pound flour), 22 to 27 pounds.

Milk, 4 to 8 pounds.

Potatoes (14 pounds in 1 peck), 1 to 1 1-3 pecks.

Dried beans, peas, lentils, 1 to 3 pounds.

Tomatoes, 3 quarts.

Other vegetables (including some of green or yellow color, and inexpensive fruits), 20 to 25 pounds.

Fats, such as lard, salt pork, bacon, margarine, butter, &c., 4 pounds.

Sugar and molasses, 5 to 6 pounds.

Lean meat, fish, cheese, eggs, 5 to 10 pounds.

The home economic editor of The Washington Post would like to hear from its readers what it costs them actually to feed a family of, say, five persons, two adults and three children, weekly.

Write Your Experiences.

Send in your food buying experiences. A special book prize will be awarded each week for the most interesting and helpful account received. Your names will not be published, unless you so desire.

All entries must be signed with the names and addresses of the contestants, in order that they may be considered.

Address all entries to the Home Economic Editor The Washington Post. Write in ink or typewrite—on one side of the paper only.

In response to the request of The Washington Post for suggestions for its Saturday home economics page many housewives have been kind enough to hint their desires for certain stories they would like to see on this page. The contest for suggestions will not close until tomorrow. If you have a thought along this line, write it down and send it to the Home Economic Editor.

Mrs. James F. Pickett, of the Hotel Driscoll, sends the following interesting letter in which she says:

"I find your food and home economics page most interesting. Couldn't we have, besides tested recipes and recipes by readers of The Post, menus for a week—vegetarian and meat platters—vegetables in season and how to prepare them, useful hints pertaining to the home from cellar to garret, &c.

Gives Old Family Recipe.

"Now I want to give you an old family recipe for Cream Chocolate Cake.

"One-half pound butter, 5 eggs, 2 cups granulated sugar, 3 cups flour—level, 1 cup water, 2 level teaspoons of yeast powder, 1 teaspoon vanilla, cream, butter and sugar, very light. Add eggs, one at a time, beat a few minutes between each egg. Add flour sifted with yeast powder, then water and vanilla.

"Filling—3 cups granulated sugar, 1½ cups milk. Boil 15 minutes. Add one teaspoon vanilla, then beat until thick enough to spread. Ice all three layers with white icing first. Dissolve one-fourth pound chocolate over hot water, spread on icing, then put together.

"Please let us have some more 'contests.' They are stimulating and helpful."

From another reader comes this suggestion:

"Home Economics Editor, The Washington Post.

"Dear Madam: The most puzzling question which confronts the housewife, whether modern or otherwise, is the daily 'What shall we have for dinner?' Yet, if we make of this a problem to be solved as each day comes, one falls into the trap of unthrifty buying. To plan by the week allows one to purchase in larger quantities—to dismiss for the six other days the brain-racking to make allowances in advance for company dinners and for leftovers.

"This is the problem I would have The Washington Post solve—lunches and dinners, or mayhap only dinners, for the week, well balanced and containing products in season. This should be put in the form of a table, which could be clipped and tacked on the kitchen bulletin board for ready reference.

"This chart I would have as the very heart of the Saturday page of home economics. The rest of the page could very easily be built around it.

"For instance, a shopping list for the menus of that week could be appended. This would have the merit of appearing on Saturday morning in ample time to take advantage of Saturday's bargain prices. New recipes could be worked in readily. Short explanatory articles on the use and handling of foodstuffs, hints as to the condition of the food market, how to buy meats, how to buy in quantities, how to cook tastily the inexpensive foods, how to prepare tough cuts.

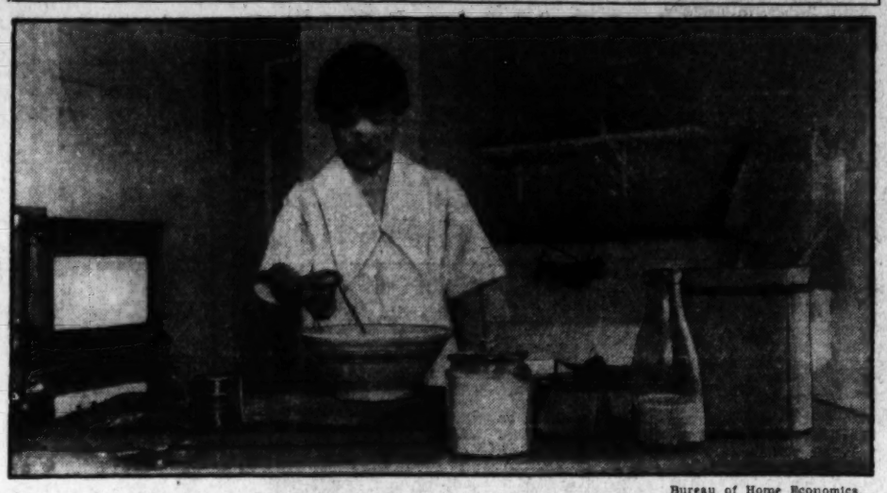
"Fitting the children's needs into the family menu could and should be discussed. Food preservation should be featured in summer. Short cuts in cooking could be indicated, as, for instance, cooking double quantity of potatoes on Wednesday to have riced or mashed that night and, next day, cream of potato soup, hashed brown or potato cakes. Bake a pie shell along with Tuesday's apple pie to have filled with coconut cream for Thursday.

"Perhaps you will think me overinsistent, but I'm really very enthusiastic over this plan. Loose leaf binders could be used. In these the menu charts would fit. Saving these sheets, one would soon have a layout for an entire year. It would be an enduring record of the help The Washington Post offers its woman readers, and not just another scrap book.

"I have lived in Washington only since September, 1930, but I haven't missed one issue of The Post since then.

"Respectfully and interestedly yours,
"(Mrs.) CLARA McGREW CASSIDY.
"5111 Forty-fifth street northwest."

BREAD DOUGH SHOULD BE TESTED BY TEMPERATURE



Bureau of Home Economics.

Thermometer Is Big Help In Bread Baking at Home

One of the important uses of the general purpose cooking thermometer is in making yeast-raised bread. The temperature of the dough should be kept constantly at about 82 degrees F. throughout the mixing and rising periods. This can only be done exactly when a thermometer is used. An oven thermometer, too, will be wanted when the bread is baked. The following directions for making bread at home are given by the Bureau of Home Economics. The materials indicated yield about 3½ pounds, that is, three large or four small loaves of bread.

Hard-wheat or bread flour is called for. If a soft-wheat flour is used, a larger quantity is needed; also more yeast and sugar. For the same amount of liquid about 2½ pounds or 2¾ quarts of sifted soft-wheat flour will be required, and about double the amount of yeast and sugar. The liquid in either case may be milk, water, potato water or any combination of these. The directions are:

About 2¼ pounds or 2¼ quarts of sifted hard-wheat flour.
2¾ cups liquid.
4 teaspoons salt.
2 tablespoons sugar.
2 tablespoons fat.
1 ounce (2 cakes) yeast.

With the temperature about 82 degrees F. bread can be made by the straight dough method with the above ingredients in about four hours from the time the dough is mixed until the loaves are put into the oven. A small quantity of the liquid, about one-half cup, must be set aside for softening the yeast. If milk is used, it must be scalded first to check the growth of bacteria, and then cooled.

The part reserved for soaking the yeast should be cooled quickly, and the rest may be poured while hot over the sugar, salt and fat. Other liquids than milk do not require heating, but often this is done for convenience in dissolving and melting the sugar, salt and fat. In any case the liquid mixture should be brought to a temperature below 100 degrees F. before mixing with the yeast. The temperature should be adjusted so as to bring the temperature of the dough to about 82 degrees F.

The flour, except about one cup, should be added to the liquid and mixed thoroughly with a spoon, the hands or a mechanical bread mixer. When the flour and liquid are thoroughly mixed and the dough no longer sticks to the sides of the bowl, it is ready to be kneaded. If a bread mixer is used, it kneads as well as mixes. To knead by hand, turn the dough out on a clean floured board and work quickly with the palms of the hands until it is smooth and elastic.

Allow the bread to rise to about double its bulk in a place where the temperature is from 80 to 85 degrees Fahrenheit.

Divide then into loaves, mold, grease the top surface lightly, and place in pans to rise again, regulating the temperature carefully as before. Start to bake in a fairly hot oven, 400 to 415 degrees Fahrenheit, depending on the size of the loaf. A pound loaf should be baked at a higher temperature and more quickly than a pound and a half loaf. Turn the loaves around after twenty minutes and lower the temperature of the oven. Bake from 45 minutes to 1 hour.

Gelatin Is Declared Valuable in Nutrition

Edible gelatin is a hard, tasteless, odorless substance which is almost white when dry and transparent or translucent in solution. It is a protein food of high nutritive value. It is extracted by heat from the bones, white connective tissue, and skins of food animals.

Gelatin is a colloid and, therefore, tends to prevent the growth of crystals in any medium in which it is present. It is an emulsifier and helps to hold in union two liquids that would otherwise separate. It aids in the digestion of other foods.

Guessing Avoided By Cooking Timer

New Device Constructed on Hour-Glass Principle; Insures Accuracy.

A cook may choose and blend her ingredients with skill and then spoil the dish by undercooking or overcooking. Correct cooking time is an absolute essential to perfect results—yet many housewives "guess" at the time and then wonder why the dish is far from perfect.

To overcome this fault, the C. F. Mueller Co., famous for Mueller's macaroni products, has perfected a new cooking timer. It may be used to time the cooking of all foods that require from three minutes to one hour of cooking.

This new timer is built on the hour-glass principle and is tested for accuracy before being sent out. The glass is mounted on an attractive, colorful background and the device will be an ornament in any kitchen. Aside from this, however, it is a valuable aid to every woman who cooks.

In order to help pay for packing and postage, the C. F. Mueller Co., Jersey City, N. J., asks housewives to send 25 cents in stamps or coin for the Mueller macaroni timer.

Sausage En Casserole Method Is Described

1 pimiento, minced.
2½ cups canned tomatoes.
1½ teaspoons salt.
¼ teaspoon pepper.
3 cups cold boiled macaroni or spaghetti.
1 medium-sized onion, minced.

Cut the sausages into ½-inch lengths. Cook until brown. Remove sausage to hot dish. To the drippings add the onion, green pepper, salt and pepper. Then add the tomatoes, pimiento, macaroni and sausage. Turn into a well-greased casserole and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) twenty minutes, or until thoroughly hot and a delicate brown on top. Serves four or five.

Sausages With Sweet Potatoes Is Held Treat

3 large red apples.
3 medium-sized sweet potatoes.
¼ cup brown sugar.
¼ cup sausage drippings.
¼ cup boiling water.

Boil sweet potatoes until soft, peel and cut into halves lengthwise. Line the bottom of a well-greased, shallow dish with the sweet potatoes. Fry sausage links until golden brown, place the sausages over the potatoes and cover with the sliced apples. Sprinkle with brown sugar and pour over the drippings combined with the water. Cover dish and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 40 minutes. Serve from dish in which baked. Serves six.

Sweet Potatoes Put Into Pineapple Dish

Sweet potatoes appear so often in the winter menus that it is pleasant to vary the way of preparing them occasionally. Here are two suggestions from the Bureau of Home Economics:

3 medium-sized sweet potatoes.
1 can crushed pineapple.
4 tablespoons melted butter.
¼ teaspoon salt.

Select a dry, mealy variety of sweet potato and cook in the skins in water to cover. When tender, scrape, cut in slices or rounds of uniform thickness and place on a flat buttered baking dish. Pour the pineapple over the potato, sprinkle with salt and add the butter. Bake in a medium oven until light brown on the surface and the sirup of the pineapple has become thickened. Serve from the dish in which cooked.

Nut Biscuit Is Treat Held Easy to Prepare

An easily made treat for luncheon or supper, in combination with preserves or cream cheese or both, is nut biscuit. These are ideal if served hot, but you will find that any left-over biscuits will not go begging, if your household includes one or two active boys who come around in the middle of the afternoon or at the end of a game of tennis or baseball, looking for a little extra snack to restore the energy they have given out. Take some, too, for the picnic lunch. The directions are as follows:

2 cups sifted soft wheat flour.
4 teaspoons baking powder.
¾ teaspoon salt.
1 tablespoon fat.
½ cup ground nuts.
2-3 cup milk, or enough for soft dough.

Sift the dry ingredients and cut in the fat and nuts. Add the milk and stir from the center with a fork, until a soft dough is formed. Toss the dough lightly on a floured board. Press into a sheet about ¼ inch thick with the palm of the hand. Cut in small rounds, brush the tops with butter, and place one round above the other. Bake in a quick oven until lightly brown. Serve hot with marmalade or cheese and jelly.

Biscuit Recipe Is Given For Sausage Surprises

Make a biscuit dough as follows:

2 cups sifted flour.
3 teaspoons baking powder.
½ teaspoon salt.
4 tablespoons leaf lard.
2-3 cup milk or sufficient to make a stiff dough.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in the leaf lard and then add milk to make a stiff dough. Roll out on a floured board and cut ½ inch thick with a large biscuit cutter. Place a sausage link on each, fold over and brush the tops with milk. Bake in a hot oven 20 minutes. Serve with tomato sauce. Serves 6.

There Won't Be Any Baking Disappointments

ELECTRIC COOKERY MEANS CERTAINTY

They used to say "good cooks are born, not made" when each stove had its own artistic temperament—and cookery was done on the "trial and error" method.

But now recipes are given with degrees of heat to be applied for certain periods—just like the ingredients you put in your dishes. No more vague terms like "simmer slowly" or "cook until done." Electric cookery is a science—not guesswork.

There's nothing like an Electric Range for preparing all kinds of food. Electric heat can be absolutely controlled. It gives you precisely the temperature that the recipe calls for. It cooks the most difficult dishes perfectly. And, with its marvelous dial controls, you don't even have to be there to watch it. And, too, with the exceptionally low rates for "Matchless Service" Electric Cookery is cheaper than ever before!

When all's right with the world

Next to the breakfast cup of coffee nothing helps more to waken your sleepy self (and put you in a sunny mood!) than a basin full of good old hot water. When you jump out of bed for one of those hurry-up mornings, glance in the mirror and see a face still taut and pale from lack of sleep...

Just let the hot faucet run a bit, dip the brush, and feel hot water and soap softening beard, freshening tissues and cleansing those sleepy pores. The razor meets a ready skin and glides with feathery touch. More hot water. Towel. Then look—see a face that's fit—ruddy and ready for a smile!

But those dismal mornings when the hot faucet runs cold—and the razor bites and nicks and slices...what would you give then for a pipeful of good ol' hot water?

Install a Self-Action Gas hot water heater and never again will you be disappointed when you turn the tap. Plenty of hot water for bathing, shaving and housework—for a few pennies per day.

A small down payment and the balance on easy terms will put a Self-Action Gas Water Heater in your home. A $10 allowance for your old heater. There is no extra charge for financing.

Drop in at any of our display rooms to choose your model.

Engagement Of Mary Reed Is Announced

Will Wed Lieut. Royce in Columbus, Ga., on April 22.

COL. WALTER LAWRENCE REED, U. S. A., and Mrs. Reed, who are now stationed at Fort Benning, Ga., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Berkeley Reed, to Lieut. Charles Royce, U. S. A., aide de camp to Maj. Gen. Campbell King, commandant at Fort Benning.

In announcing the engagement, Col. and Mrs. Reed send to Washington news of a family whose associations here on both sides date back many years. Col. Reed is the son of Mrs. Walter Reed, widow of Maj. Reed, for whom the Walter Reed Hospital was named. Mrs. Reed still makes her headquarters here, although she has a lovely place, Sunny Acres, in Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., where she spends the summer.

Leaving behind them a host of friends, Col. and Mrs. Reed, after being stationed here for several years at the close of the war, went to Newport, where Col. Reed was on duty at the Army War College. There Miss Mary Reed, better known as "Daisy," made her debut. She attended Holton Arms School during her residence in Washington, where she enjoyed much popularity with the coterie of Army girls.

Her marriage will take place April 22 at Trinity Church, Columbus, Ga., where Col. and Mrs. Reed have a house. After the wedding Lieut. Royce and his bride will sail by way of the Panama Canal for Tientsin, China, where the former has been ordered for duty. Miss Landan Reed, only sister of the bride-elect, will be maid of honor.

Mrs. Reed was formerly Landon Blackford, of Georgetown. She lived in that picturesque community until her marriage. The old Blackford home is near the house where the late Maj. Reed and Mrs. Reed lived, where Col. Reed, in fact, grew up. Other members of the Blackford family, sisters of Mrs. Reed, are Mrs. Charles G. Sawtell and Miss Lily Blackford, who live in Asheville, N. C.

Col. Reed has one sister, Mrs. Evelyn Lawrence Reed, otherwise known as "Blossom" Reed, a name she was given as a girl.

Mrs. Mesta to Entertain For Vice President.

The Vice President, Mr. Charles Curtis, is the guest in whose honor Mrs. George Mesta will entertain at dinner this evening at her home on Massachusetts avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Goodhue Livingston will come from New York today to be the guests of Secretary Mellon until Sunday and to attend the dinner.

The Vice President will be the guest in whose honor the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Arthur M. Hyde will entertain at dinner on Friday, February 6, at the Mayflower.

The Minister of South Africa and Mrs. Louw and their sons, Jan and Martin, went to New York last night, whence Mrs. Louw and the younger son, Martin, will sail today on the City of New York for their home in South Africa. The steamer will dock at Cape Town, the trip occupying 23 days. Mrs. Louw and her son will be absent from Washington several months.

Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, will be the guest of honor and speaker at the weekly forum luncheon which the Woman's National Democratic Club will give next Monday. His subject will be "Our Relations With Cuba."

The Commandant of the Army War College and Mrs. William Durward Connor will be "at home" tomorrow from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Back From Geneva Conference

CAPT. AND MRS. PIERRE DE L. BOAL and daughter, Mathilde, of Alexandria, Va., have returned from abroad, where Capt. Boal served as advisor from the Department of State to the Disarmament Conference at Geneva. They have been absent from the United States about three months. Capt. Boal is assistant chief of the division of Western European Affairs.

Canadian Head Is Honored at White House

Hoover Gives Dinner to Prime Minister Bennett.

President Hoover entertained a small group of men, including the Secretary of State, Mr. Stimson, and the Charge d'Affaires of the Canadian Legation, Mr. Hume Wrong, at dinner last evening at the White House in honor of the Prime Minister of Canada, Mr. Richard L. Bennett, who is making a brief "unofficial" visit in Washington.

The brilliance which attended the visit of the former Canadian premier, Mr. Mackenzie-King, to Washington during the Coolidge administration, however, is lacking, for two reasons. The Canadian Legation is observing a period of official mourning for the princess royal, and also the United States is still without an envoy from Canada, a fact which would naturally alter the formality of the visit of so distinguished a person.

Thus, in accordance, any fetes being given for Premier Bennett will be small and informal. After his arrival in Washington yesterday the prime minister had luncheon at the Canadian Legation and, after conference with President Hoover and the Secretary of State, he was entertained at tea at the legation.

When Mr. Mackenzie-King was visiting here, as a guest of the Canadian Minister and Mrs. Massey, a whirl of brilliant parties were tendered him. He dined at the White House, when the former President and Mrs. Coolidge were hosts to a company of distinguished statesmen and diplomats and their wives. He was also feted at the British Embassy by the former Ambassador and Lady Isabella Howard.

Senator to Give Dinner Before Dance Class.

Senator and Mrs. Walter F. George will be among those who will entertain at dinner preceding the third of the series of Friday evening dancing classes at the Willard, Friday, February 6.

Sir Willmott Harsant and Lady Lewis will be the guests in whose honor the English speaking union will entertain at luncheon at the Willard, February 13.

Mrs. William Howard Taft has joined friends at the Villa Margherita, Charleston, S. C., where she will remain until March.

Mme. Skalicky, wife of the Charge d'Affaires of Czechoslovakia, was a guest at the luncheon given yesterday at the Mayflower by Mrs. George His and Miss Vera Bloom.

Others in the company were Mlle. Maioli Pfaeffli, niece of the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Peter; Miss Elizabeth Roberts, Miss Victoria Catalani, Miss Mary Louise Johnson, Miss Catherine Starr Eaton and Miss Jean Eaton.

Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, of New York, will be the guest in whose honor Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong will entertain at luncheon today in the Chinese room of the Mayflower.

Mrs. James will make an informal talk on the work of the World Service Council of the Y. W. C. A., of which she is chairman and of which Mrs. Strong is also a member.

Vice President Dinner Guest Of Mr. Mellon

Distinguished Company Is Invited to Meet Mr. Curtis.

Following close on the heels of his dinner in honor of the President and Mrs. Hoover, the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Mellon, was host at a second official function last evening when he entertained a distinguished company in compliment to the Vice President, Mr. Curtis.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Mellon, of New York, came to Washington for the fete, the latter acting as hostess for the Secretary. Mr. Mellon is his nephew.

Entertaining in his apartment on Massachusetts avenue, Secretary Mellon had as his other guests Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, the former Postmaster General and Mrs. Harry S. New, the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Seymour Lowman; Dr. Leo S. Rowe, Director General of the Pan-American Union; Mrs. Anne Archbold, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Phillips, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Goodhue Livingston, of New York; Miss Mary Patten, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Benning Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Bennett, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. David H. Blair, Miss Mabel Boardman and Mr. David H. Finley, of the State Department.

Mrs. King W. Snell, accompanied by Miss Mabel L. Hawley, of Malone, N. Y., are spending several days at the Dodge Hotel.

Mrs. Merritte W. Ireland, wife of the Surgeon General of the Army, will be at home this afternoon at her apartment at the Wyoming.

Col. and Mrs. Cootes Entertain at Fort Myer.

Col. and Mrs. Harry N. Cootes entertained at luncheon yesterday at the commandant's quarters prior to the exhibition ride at Fort Myer. Their guests were Col. Shohei Washizu, I. J. A., Military Attache of the Japanese Embassy; Brig. Gen. F. LeJ. Parker, chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs; Mr. and Mrs. R. Latimer Doble, of Norfolk; Mrs. Andrew J. Montague, of Richmond, and Mrs. Frank C. Granby, of Norfolk.

Maj. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, commanding the Third Corp Area, in whose honor the ride was given, was accompanied by Dr. and Mrs. Winford Smith, Maj. and Mrs. Stryker, Capt. and Mrs. John T. B. Bissell, Miss Betsy Sladen and her guest, Miss Natalie Jewett.

Also of interest at Fort Myer is the Women's Sewing Club, recently organized to sew and make garments for the unemployed. Completed work is turned over to the American Red Cross for distribution. The club meets each Tuesday.

The former Ambassador to Great Britain and Germany, Mr. Alanson B. Houghton, and Mrs. Houghton have come from their home in Corning, N. Y., and will be in Washington for a few days at their apartment at 1785 Massachusetts avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Doeller, accompanied by Mrs. William D. Thomas, will sail today from New York for Panama, where they will spend three weeks.

Mrs. Thomas will join Lieut. Comdr. Thomas, who is attached to the U. S. S. Arkansas, now cruising in southern waters.

Stimson Host Today to Yale Classmates

Elaborate Entertainment Planned by Secretary Throughout Day.

Into the limelight of Capital society today marches the class of '88, of Yale University, who have come as guests of the Secretary of State, Mr. Henry L. Stimson, host tonight at dinner at historic Woodley. The members of the class, who generally assemble in reunion in New York, this year responded to the invitation of Secretary Stimson and arrived in town yesterday to occupy headquarters at Wardman Park Hotel. With the Secretary they will be received by President Hoover this afternoon at 2:45 o'clock and will then visit points of interest in the Capital.

Woodley has been put in gala array. The squash court, tennis court, bowling green, archery and tennis courts are quite in order, for the group will remain in town part of tomorrow and will reassemble at the Stimson home for the morning hours and will remain for luncheon. This afternoon Mrs. Stimson will be hostess to tea to members of the class and their families, the tea taking place at Wardman Park Hotel at 5 o'clock.

The alumni who will be at the dinner tonight are Mr. Albert C. Lux, Clyde, N. Y.; Mr. Frederick H. Paine, Brooklyn; Mr. William A. Parshall, Port Jervis, N. Y.; Mr. William H. Seward, jr., Auburn, N. Col. W. T. Mollison, retired, is a guest at the Powhatan for several days.

Mrs. George F. Becker will have as her guest today Miss Katharine Gregg, who recently came to Washington from Bengal, India, where she was associated with the Young Women's Christian Association as secretary. On Wednesday Mrs. Becker entertained at luncheon Mr. N. C. Hanks, whose father was the first cousin of Nancy Hanks, mother of Abraham Lincoln. Mr. Hanks will be the guest today of the Harvard Club at luncheon.

Luhrings Entertain At Dinner for Cousin.

Justice and Mrs. Oscar R. Luhring entertained a company at dinner at the Shoreham last evening in honor of Mrs. Luhring's cousin, Miss Molly Graham, of Spokane, Wash., who is their guest.

The guests included Mrs. Mary Lee Willis, Miss Helen Bland and her guest, Miss Betty Gardner, of Detroit; Senorita Lucia Tesada Guzman, Miss Mary Martha Wrenn, Dr. Howard Strine, Mr. Donald Meeks, Lieut. Thomas Q. Ashburn, Mr. Ole Olesen, Mr. Willis and Mr. Durham Rogers.

New Attache From France Coming Here

Col. Pillon to Succeed Brig. Gen. Casanave at Embassy.

Appointment of Col. Francois Jules Philibert Pillon, of the French artillery, as military attache of the French Embassy in Washington fills the vacancy of several months occasioned by the retirement of Brig. Gen. Raymond Casanave. Col. Pillon will arrive in Washington early in April to assume his duties. He will be accompanied by Mme. Pillon. The French officer, who has been chief of staff to the military governor of Paris, will serve also as French military attache to Mexico, Panama and Cuba.

The assistant military attache for aeronautics, Maj. Georges Thenault, was acting military attache until the arrival in November of the assistant military attache, Maj. Emmanuel Lombard, who returned for duty after an absence from Washington of two years, during which time he was stationed at Grenoble, France. Maj. Lombard and Mme. Lombard, the former Miss Helen Carusi, of Washington, make their home at 2015 Fifteenth street.

Mrs. Victor Kauffmann left early this week for St. Petersburg, Fla., to join Mr. Kauffmann, who has been there some time. They will remain until the early spring.

Maj. and Mrs. Frank M. Kennedy will entertain a party of fourteen at dinner this evening at the Shoreham Hotel.

Mrs. William Livingston Crounse will be at home today for the only time this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Norment will leave Washington today for Palm Beach, Fla., to pass about a month.

Virginia and Maryland will be well represented at the third and last of the 1930-31 series of Washington Bachelors' Cotillions to be given on Feburary 9 in the grand ballroom and Chinese room of the Mayflower.

Mr. Edward Burr Powell, treasurer of the club, will lead half the cotillion figures with Miss Eleanor Calvert as his partner, and Mr. Charles Mason Remey will lead the other group of dancers having as his partner, Miss Margaret Peyton Calvert.

Brig. Gen. William E. Horton, U. S. A., president of the Washington Bachelors, will make the introductions.

News Corps Honors New English Knight

Sir Willmott Lewis Is Treated to Skits at Big Dinner.

Sir Willmott Harsant Lewis, American correspondent of the London Times, who was recently made a Knight of the Order of the British Empire by King George, and Lady Lewis, formerly Miss Ethel Noyes, of Washington, were guests of honor at a dinner tendered them by Sir Willmott's Washington colleagues in the Chinese Room of the Mayflower Hotel last night.

An elaborate program of entertainment was provided, entirely of the Gridiron character, with Sir Willmott the butt of a torrent of merry quips aimed in the direction of his talents and foibles. One of the special features of the "razzing" program was a make-believe radio broadcast between Washington and London, including a psuedo exchange of messages between a speaker at the dinner and some one with an unmistakable Scottish burr in his voice, who impersonated Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, British prime minister.

Other skits included a burlesque knighting ceremony at Buckingham Palace, in which Mr. James L. Wright took the part of King Mob and Mrs. Jay G. Hayden enacted the role of Queen Mab. Others participatnig in the enteratinmnet numbers included Mr. and Mrs. Henry Suydam, Mrs. William Hard, Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Essary, Mr. George R. Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Mellett, Mr. Frederic William Wile, Mr. A. J. Montgomery, Mr. Mark Foote and Mr. Denys Smith. Mr. Richard V. Oulahan officiated as chairman of the dinner—English for presiding officer. Mrs. Oulahan was also in the knighting ceremony.

The guest list included Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Anderson, Mr. Carlisle Bargeron, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick R. Barkley, Mr. and Mrs. Ulric Bell, Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Berryman, Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Brandt, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. C. THE Federal Radio Commission would be empowered to pronounce sentence of 30 days on broadcasting stations which violated regulations, under a bill introduced by Representative Wallace H. White, jr., chairman of the House committee charged with radio legislation.

Representative White believes that the silencing of some of the obstreperous stations for a month would have a good effect.

The National Republican Club Saturday discussion will present Senator Bronson Cutting, from New Mexico, and Matthew Woll, of the American Federation of Labor (WRC, 2 p. m.).

Weber and Fields will do a fifteen-minute turn this evening (WRC, 8 p. m.).

Will Rogers and five unnamed sufferers in the drought area will broadcast a human-experience picture of the impoverished conditions in the Southwest (WMAL, 10 p. m.). A farmer and farmer's wife, a boy and a girl will be included in the group.

The forthcoming series of 26 broadcasts by Maurice Chevalier will net the star $100,000, according to reports from New York. He will sing three songs and play a leading part in short comedy sketches during each of the programs, scheduled to start Sunday, February 8.

EIGHT numbers have been chosen by Harold Veo for his Wilkins Coffee Orchestra broadcast tonight (WRC, 7:30 p. m.) in which he will be assisted by Marguerite Clark Cromwell and Lewis Smith, soloists. Among these are "Can This Be Love," "Just for Tonight," "Peanut Vendor," "Why" and Chaminade's "Scarf Dance."

It seems that Fred Paint of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra claimed the world's speed record for his xylophone playing of "Flight of the Bumble Bee" too soon. Salvy Cavicchio, xylophonist at station WNAC, declares he played the 964 notes in exactly 60 seconds, bettering Paine's time by 5 seconds.

Bud Fisher and Bugs Baer are said to have pending an offer to make a nightly radio broadcast of the former's comic strip "Mutt and Jeff."

G. W. Cooke, chief engineer of station WBAL, has several radio developments to his credit among them a new type of condenser microphone used at his station and new type of electrostatic loud speaker.

CONTROL of the radio set from any part of the room or house is made possible through the use of the new apparatus being distributed known as Westinghouse remote control equipment.

Bert Lown owns sixteen orchestras as well as the one he directs in New York. He arranges his own dance scores. He is the composer of "You're the One I Care For" and several other hits. His programs, broadcast regularly, have brought him Nation-wide fame. And yet:

"I don't know the first thing about music," he will tell you. "I can't even play by ear!"

Slumber Music for tonight (WJZ network, 11 o'clock) will include the overture to "Mignon," selections from "The Firefly," "Wedding of the Rose," "La Nuit et l'Amour" and "Glow Worm."

The latest nightmare of the radio manufacturers is a report that Henry Ford will put out a $10 radio set.

NOW the airmen have taken up the expression, "O. K. Colonel," made famous over the radio by Phil Cook. A current newsreel shows the transfer of mail bags from an airplane to a Europe-bound liner far at sea. The successful transfer was announced from the air with the familiar "O. K. Colonel."

Guiding Your Child

BEFORE BEDTIME.

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

A good deal of the difficulty which mothers find in persuading children to go to bed and to sleep promptly and cheerfully is due to mismanagement of the hour immediately preceding bedtime.

It is the hour when the adults are themselves in a relaxed and playful frame of mind. It is literally the only time when the average American father has a chance to play with his child.

It therefore becomes a time for exciting games, high laughter and rough-and-tumble play. Never does the atmosphere of home seem so gay, never do children have more fun with their fathers and mothers, and with each other, than just before they must be driven into exile and oblivion.

No wonder that they strenuously object, and that even when they are submissive, it takes an hour or even two or three, before sleep comes to them.

It is quite possible to prevent this without sacrificing the spirit of family comradship which such bedtime play encourages. There are games which are not exciting, but good fun nevertheless. Bedtime is a good time for picture books, puzzles, sitting-down games and any sort of easy hand work. From such activities the child may go to his bed in the serenely happy mood which best induces sleep.

Anything like nagging, correction or punishment is likely to make the child nervous, excited and angry—feelings which tend to increase wakefulness, and to arouse resistance to any program that father or mother is bent on putting through.

The Bachelor Girls Decorate Their Studio (a Dah-ray Story)

Paris, Jan. 30.

HARD times? Pouf! Active times, you mean, when that little ol' laziness that simply was creeping in is routed, and the rest of you gets on mental toes and says, "well, what shall I do about this!" And up and does something, I'll bet you anything.

For instance, I have in mind two girls I know who had a lovely apartment, and suddenly found themselves without a job apiece, and no money saved from their very good positions that they had formerly held. After a couple of gasps for breath, a couple of surprised "e-e-e-e-e-eks!" apiece, they got going. And firstly, they moved—and did it in a big way—moved to a one-huge-room studio bare as bare, and pretty cheerless, too.

Within one month, applying themselves to it and working in an effort to make activity replace desperation, they had one of the most delightful studios any one ever saw—with the result that an interior decorating firm offered them both jobs, one of which was accepted. The other girl, well, she works for the Dah-ray department now, because we like people here with "interior fortitude."

It all makes one think that hard times aren't so hard after all.

• • • •

And what these two girls did you can do, too—with their help. A leaflet available next week tells you how they made furniture out of absolutely nothing, decorative and attractive furniture, too—furniture that landed them both good jobs, so you can imagine that it wasn't "junkey." And window drapes which cost a couple of dollars all told, for a studio that had lots of windows—and wall decorations that covered a multitude of sins in an artistic way—oh, lots of things that you will be just crazy to try out, whether you have to start a new home on your part or not! Better send that stamped self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for the leaflet and see for yourself.

• • • •

About evening hats again. The formality of your evening hat depends entirely upon the formality of your gown. For a very formal, decollete gown, your evening hat must be lame (lah-may) or jeweled, and sport real jewels for the trimming, real aigrettes or birds of Paradise, f'stance. For a less formal gown, one that can even be called a very formal afternoon gown, the hat, of course, must be more simple in shape and material, but elegantly trimmed, trimmed in a way that you would not trim a street hat, you see—aigrettes or flowers, or strass, and cunning veils of real lace or strass bordered tulle. An evening hat requires some taste in selecting and wearing, you know!

• • • •

How would you like to make a dressing table full of shelves on which to put everything under the sun in the way of cosmetics—and have it close up into a square chest affair when you weren't using it for beauty? A sort of an overgrown Chinese beauty box, you know. Dare tells you how to make this interesting article of furniture in next week's leaflet, too.

• • • •

Moleskin is going to be back in style, as I told you some time ago. Just now it is trying to creep into favor by disguising itself with color—mole dyed purple, red, green. And it is chic, and very suitable as a trimming for summer and early fall.

• • • •

Tomorrow's the day again for the weekly Dare fashion letter. You'll find it in the big Sunday Washington Post.

FRANCES M'DONALD

We Lose a Customer.

RIGHT here is where we lose a "real admirer" and make an enemy for life. And enjoy doing it. Whenever a man takes pen in hand to outline the things his wife should do to "hold" his interest, something shoots off somewhere inside of us and we find that we are giving off sparks.

Here is a man 35 and the father of five children and he has time to sit down and describe the shortcomings of his wife. We venture the guess that she has not had time in all her married life to sit down and describe anything.

Where do these critics imagine the mother of five children is going to find the genius to cook, sew, mend, market, tend a baby (there is always a baby) and "keep up her appearance?" Theoretically she could, of course, but we are speaking of practice, not theory.

We offer our admirer's letter and tender our sympathies to his overworked and unappreciated wife. Only the miracle of woman's patience can explain how these women carry on at all with their crying children and their whining husbands. We nominate this particular correspondent as the prize-winning competitor in any wife-baiting contest held here or anywhere on earth. All in favor so signify.

Dear Frances McDonald: As my wife reads your column when she might with benefit be repairing her wardrobe, I trust you will find room for a few words that she and many more could read with profit. I am a man 35 and work all day with attractive women. At night I come home to a mad house. We have five children. They are all small, but my wife has no control whatever over them. The minute I get in it is a long tale of woe. Not a night but I must punish at least one of them. They are ill-behaved and unattractive. At the table they are so unruly that I prefer to eat before I come home. This leads to anger on her part. She accuses me of eating dinner with my associates from the office. This is the fact and I make no bones about telling her so. I work all day and am entitled to my meals in peace. I like women. I admire well-cared-for women. My wife has neglected her appearance from the time of the birth of our first child, and it is so long since I have seen a wave in her hair that I think I would drop dead if I were to see one now.

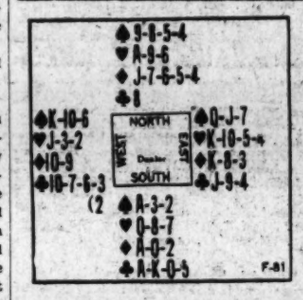
I no longer love my wife, for I long since ceased to respect her intelligence. If I handled my part of the bargain as inefficiently as she has handled hers we would all be begging in the streets. I am disgusted with my home and my marriage. I wish that I was free, and if I ever am I will know enough to stay that way.

Will you kindly give your opinion of the woman who promptly goes to the dogs as soon as she has bagged a man?

A REAL ADMIRER OF YOUR COLUMN.

And this chivalrous soul is the father of those "unattractive" five children who so distress his sensitive spirit. He hopes to be free. Will the helpless woman he has saddled with his five children ever be free while even one of those "unattractive" ones remain on earth? Small wonder they are unattractive. Small wonder they howl and squall. Are they not replicas of their sire squalling of his hampered freedom while his wife slaves to feed his brood? Graceless brood of a graceless sire. But in that mother's eyes at least loved. What a father!

WORK ON BRIDGE



(This article is intended for the Auction and Contract Bridge beginner.)

With the above hand at Auction Bridge South would bid one No Trump and obtain an uncontested contract.

At Contract Bridge South, unless unduly timid, would bid two or three No Trumps; and in the former event North would bid three.

In either game West would lead the Trey of Clubs and South would falsecard by winning the first Club trick with the Ace or King.

If North then should be put in with the Ace of Hearts and lead a small Diamond, and South should finesse the Queen, the finesse would win; but then South's Ace of Diamonds would not capture East's King and dummy's suit would be blocked. Dummy's long Diamonds would be useless without an entry, and Declarer would be limited to three Club tricks, two Diamonds, one or two Hearts and one Spade.

It is important when there is a suit to establish in dummy to make it up while that hand has an entry. South can count his sure tricks in the three suits as one Spade, one Heart and three Clubs; and these five tricks with four Diamonds would be sufficient to make game. There is every reason to expect that the adverse Diamonds will be divided 3-2; so South should lead the Ace of Diamonds to trick 2 and the Queen to trick 3; and if that should not be taken by East, follow with another Diamond to trick 4. With the long Diamonds established in the dummy hand and the Ace of Hearts as an entry, game is assured. It would be fatal to take that Ace out of the hand until after the long Diamonds have been made good.

With two sure entries in dummy, one could have been used to try the Diamond finesse; but with only one entry the adverse King of Diamonds should have been allowed to win and in that way the making of the long Diamonds have been ensured.

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS."

IF January 31 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from noon to 2 p. m., from 4:30 p. m. to 6 p. m., and from 8 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. The critical periods are from 10 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., and from 4:45 p. m. to 5:30 p. m.

January 31 is, according to the planetary aspects, a day full of promise. Effort will be stimulated; vision will be keen; and many of yesterday's problems will be solved.

What was difficult then will be easy of accomplishment today. Very soothing influences will prevail after sundown.

Children born on this January 31 will always be the product of environment. They will lack originality, and be imitative. What they learn from their parents will govern their thoughts and their lives. They will never become free thinkers—in the broadest sense of the term as their parent's creed will be theirs.

If you celebrate your natal anniversary on January 31, you are gifted with a pleasing, but not strong personality. You can charm, but cannot command. Your character is not rugged, and what cannot be gained by diplomatic methods is, so far as you are concerned, lost. You will never take off your coat, roll up your sleeves and fight. Nature made you a pacifist, and you are contented to turn the left cheek, after the right one has been smitten.

The lack of aggressiveness on your part is rather a pity, for you are endowed with exceptional ability, and could achieve much—if you only carried a punch. There is a world of difference between being pugnacious and assertive. The former is a sign of weakness; the latter, in your case, would be an element of strength. You are industrious, have clear vision and are a good judge of character. Your weakness is that, although you know when to strike, you never do so.

As a companion, you leave nothing to be desired. You are congenial, "simpatico," amusing, a good talker and a patient listener. Up to a certain point you are a good friend. When it comes, however, to "sticking up" for one in time of difficulty, you are "not there." Your disposition is easy going. In your home life, you will rather efface yourself, but, on the whole, constant contact with you will breed contentment, whilst it will, in all probability, damp ardor, and stifle enthusiasm.

Successful people born January 31:
1. William Wallace Atterbury, railroad official.
2. Rupert Hughes, author.
3. Nathan Straus, merchant.
4. George W. Perkins, financier.
5. Joseph Wright Harriman, banker.
6. James G. Blaine, statesman.

Improve the Texture of Your Skin With Elizabeth Arden's Pore Cream . . . .

Harsh winds of winter tend to destroy the smooth texture of your skin and enlarge the pores—to counteract this, use Arden's Venetian Pore Cream. It is a greaseless astringent cream which contracts distended pores and refines the coarsest skin.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

Please tell me something of the appearance of thrips. A neighbor tells me these are the insects which have attacked my ferns. Also tell me how to get rid of these pests.

MRS. JAMES K. K.

Thrips are small, slender brown or black insects, about one-fourth of an inch long, which eat the epidermis of the leaves. They are readily controlled by any contact insecticide, or by Paris green—one teaspoonful to 12 quarts of water. As a rule, it is scale and not thrips which attack ferns. These hard-shelled brown insects must be dislodged by means of a small brush. Then, to prevent their return, the plants should be constantly sprayed with cold water.

I am unable to keep bulbs in pots for house use outside, as I have no garden. Can I keep them with any hope of success in a cold cellar?

MRS. THOMAS F. R.

Yes; if you have a cool cellar, put the pots in some dark, out-of-the-way corner and cover them with a foot or so of soil. Here they will always be handy for bringing into light and heat as required. It is well to watch them carefully while in the cellar to see that they are not disturbed by rats or mice.

Can a strawberry geranium be increased from the runners?

ONE OF YOUR OLD READERS.

Yes, if you cover the ends of the offsets with soil the plant will form new leaves on these runners before roots are developed. If there is not a chance to allow them to root in the pot before separating the young plantlets from the parent plant, they may be taken off and put in sand like any ordinary cutting.

Can I grow poppy-flowered anemone (a coronaria) in the house with any measure of success, or are these bulbs only for garden use?

Poppy-flowered anemones are just the bulbs for some cool window. They make excellent pot plants. They must have a light, cool but frost-proof place in which to start growth, because they begin to top growth and root development at the same time. After top growth begins to show to any extent, move the plants to a south or east window. Anemones require more water than most other forcing bulbs and should be watched while in the cool place and kept moist but not soggy. After removing them to the sunny window, more water should be given and after they start to bloom water should be kept standing in their saucer. As the anemones give a succession of flowers, they may be kept continuously in a sunny window until through blooming, or until their season of growth is past, as the foliage of these plants is attractive at all times.

Can I grow ranunculus in or about Boston? MISS MARGARET B.

No. In this country ranunculus are not reliably hardy north of the Potomac, except in warm, sheltered borders. Of course, if you have a cold frame, you will be able to grow them.

Please tell me how often to water a crassula which I have in a warm, well-ventilated place in my living room. So far, though I have only had it six weeks, it is doing beautifully. I am watering it only once in two weeks, which is what the florist suggested. Do you agree with him?

ALICE T. R.

Yes. One of our large greenhouse establishments waters the crassula only once in three weeks.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

The Life Story of Gen. Wood

By HERMANN HAGEDORN

CHAPTER XXVIII.

As the delegates early in June gathered in Chicago for the two conventions, Republican and Progressive, the boom for Gen. Wood began to gain impetus. Among the Republicans, Charles Evans Hughes was the leading candidate. But the politicians did not love him. Men high in the councils of the party asked hopefully about Wood's personality, his career, his way of doing things. Did he believe in party organization? Would he play ball?

Representatives of the two parties, meanwhile, were trying to find some basis of agreement without notable success. The Progressives had made up their minds that Roosevelt must be the nominee of the Republicans as well as of the Progressives, and refused to budge from that position. The Republican leaders did not want Roosevelt, but it was clear that they wanted his support. "We will take any man the Colonel will name," "Joe" Cannon said to Gutzson Borglum, who was working for Wood, "provided the Colonel will go with the man." But a telegram to Roosevelt brought no response. The fact was that Roosevelt, having named one President, with dire results, was reluctant to name another.

"Went to Oyster Bay in p. m. by motor," Wood wrote in his diary, "while the committee was in session. Long talk with the Colonel. His views unchanged and purposes to do all he can." * * *

Has Urged Harmony.

"The Colonel has urged harmony and union of two forces. He will reply forcibly to any request for information as to his attitude on my speech; anything which will give R. a chance will bring his indorsement."

Through the night hours representative of the Republicans wrangled with representatives of the Progressives endeavoring to agree upon a candidate, with the Progressives declaring that the Republicans must name Roosevelt or face another three-cornered campaign. Shortly before 2 o'clock on Saturday morning Nicolas Murray Butler called Roosevelt on the telephone.

Butler—The joint conference committee is locked up tight and we can not make them move. A stampede is expected at any moment and no one knows what will happen. The joint conference is waiting to hear from you and you simply must announce your candidate.

Roosevelt—As I have told you from the beginning, I refuse to name a candidate.

Butler—But you must name a candidate, and one whom you will support absolutely and entirely.

Roosevelt—I will not name a candidate.

Butler—Then you must name some one to whom you will give your entire and energetic support.

Roosevelt Suggests Wood.

Roosevelt—I think Leonard Wood is the best possible man you could select. Wood is sound, shrewd and very diplomatic. I am sure he would support all the policies which I favor, and I believe would be acceptable to the people.

Butler—But we will not nominate a soldier.

Roosevelt—Then that's all.

Roosevelt subsequently told Gordon Johnston that Butler had thereupon asked him whether he would support Henry Cabot Lodge. He had hesitated, he said, hardly knowing what to say. Lodge was his life-long friend; he had the greatest respect for his ability; but he knew that Lodge had no chance. "Yes, but——"

Butler, Roosevelt said, did not wait to hear his objection, but hung up the receiver and informed the joint conference committee that Roosevelt suggested Lodge as the compromise candidate. But Butler did not say that Roosevelt had first named Wood.

Butler declared subsequently that it had been Roosevelt who had suggested Lodge, and quoted Perkins as saying that Roosevelt had been "talking that Lodge nonsense" for weeks, a detail which, in later days, was not found among the memories of the household at Sagamore Hill. Immediately after Butler hung up the receiver, William Loeb called President Roosevelt and told him that the resentment against his candidacy in 1912 was still too strong to be overcome. Roosevelt replied that he supposed that that was true. He had suggested Wood, Roosevelt added, but had been advised that there was no chance of nominating him. What about Lodge? He seemed tired as he spoke. To the Progressives the suggestion seemed a slap in the face. The Republicans entirely disregarded it. That day Hughes was nominated.

Position Is Questionable.

Whether the Republican party was indeed in the "heroic mood" to have accepted the issue which Wood's nomination would have implied was more than questionable, and Butler, perhaps, knew his own.

That summer and autumn Wood went about as before, making addresses. They were actually in behalf of preparedness, but in effect they were campaign speeches against Wilson.

Scott, in despair, turned to McCoy for help. "Wood will be ruined if he doesn't look out," he exclaimed. "There is a war coming on and he won't be in it."

Gen. Bliss, like most of the other men in the War Department, was quite blind to the possibility of a war with Germany, but he was certain that war with Mexico was impending. "You understand, of course," he said to Wood, "that you are slated for the important command, but you ought to know that there is feeling against you. There is a widespread impression that you have political aspirations, and this impression is bound to affect your future. It is still possible for you to put yourself in the right attitude toward those people who are running the Government. But if you don't you will have to take the consequences."

Wood assured him that he had no political aspirations, which was, no doubt, true when he said it, for ambition seized him only intermittently. He appeared himself, moreover, to be entirely convinced that he was in no sense overstepping the loyalty due his commander in chief. His loyalty to the Army, the country, to his oath in support of the Constitution, no one could question. The administration seemed, however, only to see the personal issue.

Wood unquestionably was becoming an irritation to the flesh. When, in connection with a proposed visit of the President to New York on the occasion of the lighting of the Statue of Liberty, John Purroy Mitchel, the mayor, sent to the White House the names of the reception committee which he proposed to appoint, the list was returned to him with Wood's name stricken off. Mitchel, devoted to Wood and to the cause of the national defense, promptly returned the list with the statement that if Wood were not on the committee there would be no commitee. Thereupon Wood's name was restored.

Wood Asks for Service.

That summer once mbre the Mexican situation became acute. Wood asked instantly for field service. An obvious post, indeed, was waiting for him. The troops in the Southern Department had been organized in three divisions under Pershing, Funston and Bell, and some one was needed to exercise the supreme command. The press carried rumors that Wood was to be appointed and counter-rumors to the effect that his "vigorous stand for thorough preparedness had made him none too popular with those in authority."

Gen. Scott brought the need of a commander to Baker's attention. Baker asked whom he would recommend. Scott suggested Wood. The idea was clearly unpalatable. Baker asked that nothing be done for the moment. A week later, Scott reopened the subject.

"Do you want to change your recommendation?"

Scott replied that he stood by it.

"It is impossible," Baker answered. "The President directs that in the event of trouble you yourself shall take command."

Wood received no reply from the War Department to his request for field service. But he did not take too seriously either the Secretary's discourtesy or the Mexican crisis itself.

"I cannot see anything in the policy, looking at it from here," Wood wrote his friend McCoy, "but a continuance of that wonderful verbal message which has lulled the American people into a twilight sleep but for no useful purpose. They will be very much disappointed when the awakening comes."

Wood's comment on the result of the election was brief.

"Reports indicate Wilson is elected," he wrote in his diary, Wednesday, November 8, "and that he will win on California. It looks from this like hard sledding for everything which looks to preparedness."

Of all men in the United States, next to Hughes himself, Wood lost most through Hughes' defeat. With the Republicans successful, his exile from official favor would have ended in an elevation to such power as he had never known before, the post of Secretary of War if he wanted it, complete dominance, in any event, of the military establishment, and, in the event of war, supreme command of the American forces. It was bitter to lose such a Canaan merely because a candidate was too anxious, and a few gentlemen in California thought they could carry their State without Progressive support.

Neither the response which Wood received from the public in his appeal for preparedness, nor the result of the election, ominous as it appeared to his own fortune, served to soften the vigor of his utterances.

Kilbourne, his chief of staff, felt that he was doing himself harm by the unnecessary bitterness of his language. "What's the use?" he protested. "You've won your fight. The public is coming over on your side."

"Kilbourne, when I fight, I can't fight softly. I try to hurt my opponent. I try to hurt him as much as I can."

"That's all right. But there's going to be a war and you want to be in it."

"They wouldn't dare to hold me back."

"I think you misjudge the President. With the powers of a war executive, he would dare anything."

"That's all right, but I won't change, I know I am right in what I have been doing, and I shall carry on whatever it costs."

He recognized the danger he was running. "As a soldier," he said to another friend, "I am supposed to risk my life in the service of my country. Should I not be willing to risk my commission?"

Wood No Courtier.

There was actually at the moment no need of his doing either. As Kilbourne had said, he had won his fight. He had accomplished the miracle of Minos. From his sowing, thousands of warriors had already sprung, it seemed, from the very soil, and millions yet would spring, armed and invincible. He could afford to stand and watch the harvest. It was not only that security for him lay in that course. The best interests of the Nation demanded that, if possible, he should repair rather than sunder utterly his tenuous relations with the administration.

But he was at heart a Saxon wielder of a two-hand sword; a diplomat on occasions, but no courtier at all. He could, like other strong, ambitious men, do things enough for which he was sorry afterward; but he could not dip the shoulder and incline the knee.

On the last day of January, the struggle for preparedness which Wood had been waging with increasing intensity since his return from the Philippines eight years before, reached its culmination. He had never been backward in giving utterance to his view. But on the day when the determination of the German government was announced, in violation of definite pledges to the United States, to resume unrestricted submarine warfare, Wood took advantage of a call before a committee of Congress to issue a final blast of truth.

The supply bureaus of the War Department should be "sandbagged and reorganized," he declared. The Army lacked machine guns, hand grenades, trench mortars, signal apparatus and heavy mobile artillery and modern airplane engines of the latest type, and was dangerously short of reserve rifles, field artillery and reserve ammunition. "The fact is our supplies are ridiculously small." The War Department was only beginning the manufacture of the approved heavy type of machine gun and had not yet made up its mind regarding the type of light machine gun it intended to use. The Government arsenals were entirely inadequate. No steps had been taken to acquire the necessary reserves of materials not produced in the United States but vitally essential in modern war.

Unpreparedness Revealed.

"We stand practically as unprepared as when the great war began, and are apparently unobservant of its clear lessons and unappreciative of the fact that no amount of money and no amount of effort can purchase time or make good its loss." * * *

The people, Wood pointed out, failed to grasp the significance of deficiencies which only long-drawn effort could repair.

"They do not realize that we have not and can not secure for many months these absolutely necessary every-day weapons and equipment of war. They fail to appreciate that these must be produced in time of peace and that the organization of all our resources is to keep up the supply once war is upon us. Furthermore, they do not realize that an untutored, untrained and undisciplined people can not pck up these weapons and use them effectively; that this preparation also requires time and that little or nothing is being done, except in preparation for next summer's training camps and through private efforts conducted with private funds.

"Our safety is dependent upon the forbearance of others and not upon our ability and preparation to defend ourselves.

It was a devastating indictment of the War Department, the Secretary of War and the President.

"There were some of them did shake at what was told.
And they shook best who knew that he was right."

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

"Oscar Swin" means "Bounding-Warrior Swine-herd." "Eva Day" means "Life Farm-Servant."

Of the many early occupations which have given rise to family names, one of the commonest is that of the thatcher. In the villages almost every home had a thatch roof, so the men who constructed or repaired such roofs were numerous. The family name "Thatcher," with dozens of variations and derivatives, is found in all the early English lists of names. The form "Thacker" represents the northern pronounciation of this name, just as the northern "kirk" corresponds to "church," the norteern "poke" to "pouch," and "dike" to ditch." There is evidence that women also were engaged in constructing and repairing thatch roofs, because the feminine form, "Thackster" (also spelled "Thaxter") is of frequent occurrence in early records and has persisted to the present time. The family name "Tackersy" belongs to this same group of names. It means "the thack (or thatch) corner," and implies that the persons who were first so called lived near a nook or corner where thatch was stored. A certain Reginald le Thechare is mentioned in the Hundred Rolls. That same famous document mentions a Thomas Thackstere and a Johannes de Thakwra.

The family name "Moltke" is frequently found in Germany, but it is ultimately of Slavic origin. Its original meaning was "the hammer," but it soon took on the extended meaning of the "powerful person."

The family name "Nobel" is of Germanic origin, being a diminutive form of "Noppo." "Noppo," in turn, is a diminutive form of "Norbert." "Nodbert" was an old personal name which may be translated "splendid effort" or "bright striving."

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood—Not in a long time has there been so much competition for a screen role as there was for that of Hildy Johnson, main character in "The Front Page," that ribald story of newspaperdom.

JOHN GILBERT

It is a choice part, an acting part if there ever was one. The characterization also is outstandingly different from the usual run of hero types.

Nearly a score of actors, stars and ambitious lesser-knowns were tested. Chester Morris, Norman Foster, Fredric March, were among them. Edmund Lowe sent his agent to put in a bid for him.

Even John Gilbert let it be known, through his business manager, that he would like to be Hildy Johnson and might even work without salary.

The unexpected happened, as it does so often in Hollywood. A man new to pictures was selected. He is Pat O'Brien.

Until a year ago O'Brien never had any good luck, he says. Then a hit show, "The Up and Up," came his way and virtually made him overnight.

Melodrama.

Another story that has yet to appear on page 1:

He plays leading male roles occasionally, used to play more of them, and would play more now if he would keep in better physical condition.

He likes to visit the bright places and stay late. He also likes to fight. He "chose" a swarthy gentleman in a cafe the other night and won the engagement with one right-hand punch to the jaw.

Somewhat later the loser plunged at the actor's back with an ice pick. His lady, an actress, stepped between in time to have her own shoulder punctured.

She will carry the scar for a long time.

Too Much Talk.

The continental love of prolonged conversation has caused numerous delays in the production of foreign-language films. So "No Visitors" signs have been put up on the doors of most of the stages wherein foreign players are working.

Now their friends must call on them after working hours to discuss the good old days in the old country.

SOCIETY EVENTS

Miss Sylvia Meredith, one of the season's debutantes, will be the guest in whose honor Miss Jean Peeples and Miss Helen Peeples will give a tea tomorrow at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Peeples.

Mrs. J. St. Clair Hambly is in Atlantic City, where she will be for a time at the Chalfonte-Haddon Hall.

The Washington members of the Society of Woman Geographers will meet this afternoon at the home of the vice president and acting president, Mrs. W. Chapin Huntington.

In the absence of the president, Harriet Chalmers Adams, who left Washington last fall for extensive travel in Africa, Mrs. Huntington will preside. The speaker of the afternoon will be Dr. Helen Strong, chief of the geographic division of the Department of Commerce, who has chosen as her subject "Geographers as Business Advisers."

The box holders for the Bal Boheme of the Arts Club at the Willard Hotel Monday night are the Princess Boncompagni and Mrs. Robert Hinckley occupying a box together; Mrs. Willoughby Chesley, Mrs. George Bowie Chipman, Mrs. Carl Droop, Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, Mrs. Smith Hempstone, Mrs. Christian Heurich, Mrs. Geary Johnson, Mrs. John Otto Johnson, Mrs. Samuel Koones, Mrs. L. Morris Leisenring, Mrs. Clifford Lewis, Mrs. Fulton Lewis, Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, Mrs. George Meeta, Mrs. Ralph Richards, Mrs. Henry Jay Staley, Mr. William F. Baker, who is chairman of the ball will entertain in his box the three artists, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Allen Whiting and Mr. M. R. Haider, as well as Mrs. Haider and Miss Carmen Haider, and Miss Garrels, chairman of costumes for the ball.

Lloyd, Jr., Tips Scales At Nearly 3 Pounds

Los Angeles, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Harold Lloyd, jr., tiny son of the film comedian and Mrs. Mildred Davis Lloyd, weighed yesterday for the first time in his life, tipped the scale at 2 pounds 14 ounces.

Physicians said the infant, born prematurely six days ago, has lost a little weight since birth, but that the loss is common among incubator babies. They said it will be several days before the child will be out of danger.

A Woman Suffering from Arthritis writes: "I suffered from Arthritis in my hands; also an acid stomach. I started drinking Mountain Valley Mineral Water as prescribed. In a short time the pain and stiffness in my hands disappeared, and my acid condition left me. I am happy to state that I enjoy excellent health. my whole system being in better condition than for years. I continue to drink Mountain Valley Water for the benefits it carries in maintaining health. Its drinking qualities are most pleasant." Phone Metropolitan 1062 for free booklet.

THIS IS YOUR TICKET
for an extra quart in every gallon

WHEREVER you see it, this green and white Quaker State sign entitles you to an extra quart in every gallon. Here's why:

Ordinary commercial refining leaves, in every gallon of motor oil, a quart of material that has little or no value in lubricating an automobile motor. It's waste. But Quaker State is put through an exclusive super-refining process. The waste is removed. You get four full quarts of lubricant in every gallon—an extra quart!

You'll be interested in knowing, too, that Quaker State is refined from 100% pure Pennsylvania Grade Crude—the value of which is two to three times as much as that of the crudes from which most motor oils are made.

Give your motor a chance to tell you the whole story. Fill up with Quaker State Motor Oil at the next green and white sign.

Wake Up

Washington—they need you now—more than ever!!!

You unselfish Washingtonians...you who have your jobs . . . you who have your health...you who have the instinct of human sympathy and believe in the Golden Rule...WE NEED YOU NOW, more than ever before. The 62 Agencies and the American Red Cross Drought Relief are appealing to you for the necessary financial assistance for 1931 budgets through the medium of THE COMMUNITY CHEST, the proven plan for systematically distributing funds in a manner eliminating possible leakage and duplicaition costs.

Cost of money raising before the Chest was formed averaged over 15%.

Chest cost for 1930 was only 7%, 3½% for campaign and 3½% for year-round administration. Cost will be only 6% in 1931.

Old Folks, Too!!!

. . . as well as youngsters are all appealing to your sense of fairness, so that they will have but a part of the pleasures and comforts that you enjoy daily! Think about it . . . this isn't a demand . . . giving to the Community Chest isn't compulsory . . . IT'S A PRIVILEGE TO BE A PART OF THE ORGANIZATION WHICH TAKES CARE OF ALL OF THESE AGENCIES . . . and you should be thankful for being in a position to "G-I-V-E."

GIVE WITH YOUR "HEART" TO THE "HEART" . . . the chest is facing the most serious emergency in its history. For the past year it has bravely shouldered the additional burdens, heavy and irksome, developing out of Washington's unemployment situation. As an integral part of the National Capital's Community Life, it could not shirk these responsibilities. The task that confronts it for the coming year is still more burdensome, still more complicated and no less inevitable . . . 25% more than in 1930 MUST BE RAISED . . . we need you now . . . more than ever!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

Mottled Teeth.

A SMALL town in Arkansas, Bauxite, has been having an interesting experience. As the name implies, the principal industry of this town is extracting certain ingredients from soil beds and making them into bauxite and bauxite products. The industry is controlled by one organization. It is a typical one industry town. The people used water from shallow domestic wells before the industry came and for several years thereafter. The company wanted to protect its employes from the typhoid and diarrheal diseases, incidentally protecting themselves, and they put in a community water supply, digging a deep well, thus getting a water which health experts said did not spread typhoid and never could. The people abandoned their old wells, hooked up with the public supply, and everybody was happy.

But soon somebody noticed that his teeth were peculiar in appearance. He went to his dentist. The dentist was perplexed. He never had seen anything like that. Then others came. Then the flood broke. The dentist had read about mottled enamel. He became suspicious. He called on the health authorities and, finally, the United States Public Health Service was called in. Drs. Kempf and McKay arrived on the scene.

They found that all the children who had used the water from this deep well during the years when their permanent teeth were being formed had spotted enamel. All who through this period of their lives had consumed water from the shallow wells or from other sources had escaped. No variation in food made any difference.

In nearby Benton all conditions of life were the same as in Bauxite except the water supply. There was no spotted enamel in Benton. When the company abandoned the deep well and pumped water four miles from Benton new cases of spotted enamel came to an end.

That the cause lay in the water from this deep well is certain, but up to date no cause has been found, though more than one kind of an analysis has been made. In other communities where mottled enamel has appeared changing the water supply has stopped the disorder.

NUMB HANDS AND FEET.

Mrs. T. D. writes: Is there anything that could be done to relieve numb hands and feet caused by anemia? I have not lost the power of either and can get around as usual and feel good. The surface of the skin is always cold and dry.

REPLY.

About all you can do is to treat the anemia with liver, liver extract or stomach extract.

DIPHTHERIA ANTITOXIN.

Mrs. A. M. writes: Would diphtheria antitoxin, administered to an 18-month old child, in two doses of 20,000 units each, 12 hours apart, cause death, when a culture taken just before the first injection proved negative?

REPLY.

Not unless the child was sensitized to serums. I presume the diagnosis was established by some means. It is customary to test for sensitization to serum.

TECH BEATS CENTRAL; VICTORY MAY BE PROTESTED

Colleges Talk Tonight of New Loop

10 Invited to Discuss Basket Ball Circuit by Temple U.

Special to The Washington Post.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 30.—Invitations to ten Eastern colleges to send representatives to a meeting at Temple University Saturday morning at which time plans will be discussed in regard to forming a new collegiate basket ball league have met with such good response that it is probable a new circuit will be arranged at this gathering.

Earl R. Yeomans, graduate manager of athletics at Temple is the prime mover in this plan for a new league and at his request representatives of ten institutions are expected to be on hand for the first meeting.

League Long Planned By Temple.

Temple for some time has been attempting to organize a new collegiate league for basket ball but this appears as the first real action.

The collegiate officials who are expected to attend will represent Georgetown, Pitt, New York University, Syracuse, Colgate, Penn State, West Virginia and Carnegie Tech in addition to Temple.

It is known that several of these colleges favor a league but the main problem appears to be the distance the teams would have to travel for games. If it is possible to obtain a solution to this problem the league may swing into action next season.

G. U. to Be Represented In Philadelphia Today

H. Gabriel Murphy, graduate manager of athletics of Georgetown University, will attend the meeting in Philadelphia today, when plans for formation of a second Eastern intercollegiate basket ball league will be discussed at the suggestion of Temple University.

Georgetown authorities, it is understood, look with favor upon the proposed circuit.

Hagerstown High Here To Meet Tech Tonight

Local followers of basket ball, who are unable to attend the afternoon high school series games, will have a chance to see Tech in action tonight when the Maroon and Gray takes on Hagerstown High at 8:30 o'clock at Tech Gym. It is one of the few night games scheduled by Tech this season.

Hagerstown has had a good year on the court, its one-point defeat by Western last month being one of the few setbacks.

The preliminary, between Olmsted Grill and St. Mary's Lyceum, will start at 7:30.

In other scholastic games today Gonzaga drops down to Manassas, Va., for a bout with Swavely Prep; Emerson goes over to Annapolis for a game with St. John's Freshmen; Central is slated to make its annual visit to Bethlehem, Pa., for a test against Bethlehem High, and St. Alban's plays Camp Chesapeake at St. Alban's.

Berg Earns Verdict Over Herman Perlick

New York, Jan. 30 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Jackie "Kid" Berg, of England, still holds untarnished the world's junior welterweight championship for he outfought Herman Perlick, the better of the Perlick twins of Kalamazoo, Mich., in ten hectic rounds in Madison Square Garden tonight. Berg weighed 138½, Perlick, 139.

Even as he has won most of his previous encounters in the ring, Berg gained his victory through sheer aggressiveness and gameness. Even in the first three rounds in which he was outpointed by Perlick, Berg never took a back step. He always was forcing forward, surging in with punches and when he got in close, batting away with left and right, regardless. After the third round Berg gradually wore down his man and at the finish he had Perlick so tired that he could just about raise his hands.

The decision in favor of Berg was a just one and was concurred in unanimously by the judges, Harold Barnes and Joe Agnello, and the referee, Johnny McAvoy.

D. C. GOLFER BEATEN.

Steps Taken to Prevent Loss of Pirate Rookies

Pittsburgh, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—The Pittsburgh Pirates are taking no chances in having rookies "lost" this spring. If any youngster comes into the training camp at Paso Robles, Calif., late, with the excuse that he "couldn't find the way," a lot of explaining will have to be done to Pilot Jewel Ens. Instructions are being sent to every member of the squad, telling just what train to take, when and where to change cars and how, and a lot of other useful information.

26 COUNTRIES IN DAVIS CUP ENTRY LIST

U. S., Canada Only North American Zone Aspirants.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Despite a few defections, the field for the Davis Cup competition this year promises closely to approach last year's total of 30, which was only three below the record field entered in the 1928 competition—the year after France won the historic cup from the United States.

A few days ago 26 nations were known to have filed entries for the three zones in which this year's competition will be waged—19 in the European zone, two in the North American zone and five in the newly created South American zone. Entries for the European and North American zones close tomorrow in Paris. The lists for the South American zone were closed last September with Brazil, Argentina, Paraguay, Uruguay and Chile entered for play.

Cuba and Mexico May Yet Enter.

Only the United States and Canada are known to have entered in this zone, although there still remained the probability that Cuba and Mexico would enter at the last minute.

The smaller field in the European zone is explained by the creation of the South American zone, the teams from below the Equator previously having competed in Europe. The winner of that zone will meet the winner of North American zone and the winner of that match will compete against the European zone winner for the right to challenge France for the cup. South American play is scheduled for this winter.

Georgetown U. Denies Plans for a New Gym

Georgetown University officials have no intentions at present of engaging in the construction of a new gymnasium, it was stated authoritatively last night following publication of a story in a local newspaper that the Hilltop soon would erect a massive athletic plant on Thirty-Seventh street between N and O streets. Georgetown owns the property, which is adjacent the university grounds. It is now occupied by private residences.

District League Fives In 3 Games Tonight

A trio of District of Columbia Basket Ball League games are listed tonight, two for the Boys' Club gym, and the other for the Y. M. C. A. floor. Nominal admission charges will be made at each place.

Saks Clothiers and Eastern Whirlwinds will mix at the Boys' Club, starting at 7:45 o'clock, and one hour later the Potomac Boat Club cagers will play the Boys' Club on the same floor. Preceding the Saks-Whirlwind attraction, University Shop cagers will meet the Palace A. C. at 6:45 p. m. Dancing will follow the last game.

In the remaining league contest, Y. M. C. A. tossers will hook up with the St. Martin's Team at the Y. M. C. A. gym. The battle will get under way at 8 o'clock.

Five-Sport Program Today at Annapolis

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 30.—Naval Academy athletes will participate in a program of five contests here today, marking the inauguration of the big series of winter indoor events that will extend through the next several weeks and which on some Saturdays will number as many as ten and eleven contests.

Representatives of the Virginia Military Institute will furnish the opposition in the major attractions tomorrow. The Lexington Cadets will face Navy's varsity basket ball team and they will also compete in a wrestling match with the Tars. Other events of the day will be basket ball between the Navy Plebes and Western High School of Washington. Preceding the varsity engagement, fencing with the Penn Athletic Club, of Philadelphia, and a rifle match with Penn State are listed.

V. M. I. Bows To Maryland Five, 44-20

Maryland Gains 9-0 Lead; Score, 19-17 at Halftime.

MARYLAND UNIVERSITY'S basket ball team preserved its Southern Conference record last night and lengthened its winning streak to four straight games in the conference by downing Virginia Military Academy, 44-20, at Ritchie Gymnasium before a sparse crowd of about 200 persons.

It was all Maryland, from the very start of the game, when Norris, Berger and Rankin scored 9 points with startling celerity, Norris scoring thrice from the floor. The visiting Cadets never recovered from that initial blow, trailing, 19-7 at the half and 27-7 late in the last half, when the Maryland regulars were removed in favor of the reserves.

Maryland Play Ragged.

Maryland presented a slightly uneven style of play, caused mostly by the fact that examinations have limited the practice of the team, but the brand of game offered was by many odds superior to that which was produced by the invaders.

Bozey Berger, with 15 points to his name, led both teams in scoring and put up his usual flashy floor game.

It was the second win this season of the Old Liners over the Lexington team, the first encounter resuling in a 35-18 victory for Maryland.

Ben Franklins Down Y.M.C.A. Passers, 40-17

A powerful second-half offensive, led by Lester Singman, center, enabled Benjamin Franklin University dribblers to score an easy victory over the Y. M. C. A. "Big Five" last night, 40 to 17.

Singman topped the individual scorers with 10 points, and assisted in many other Bennie baskets with timely passes.

Columbus University advanced a step nearer Ben Franklin in the Washington Collegiate Conference last night by taking the measure of Bliss Electrical by the score 40-45 at the Silver Spring Armory.

The Knights, while still in second place, have boosted their record to .750, having won 3 out of 4 games.

Sonnenberg to Retire After 3 More Bouts

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—The Wisconsin News today said that Gus Sonnenberg, former heavyweight wrestling champion, will retire from the mat after three more matches to enter the investment business in Los Angeles.

Sonnenberg, the newspaper said, plans to marry Miss Margaret Elliott, of Belmont, Mass., within a year and the former champion was quoted as saying his intended bride was responsible for his decision to quit the wrestling game.

BOOKMAKER DEAD.

Hialeah Race Track, Miami, Fla., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Henry (Lob) Kohn, the well-known New York bookmaker, died in a local hospital today after a brief illness. He was removed to the hospital several days ago.

An operation was performed for appendicitis from which he never recovered.

NOONAN-WATSON WIN.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Jimmy Noonan, Chicago, and Jimmy Watson, South Bend, Ind., won the best ball pro tournament over the Opa-Locka course today by defeating Jim Dante, Madison, N. J., and Danny Williams, West Field, N. J., one up in 19 holes. Noonan and Watson divided $100 in prize money offered for the winning team and Dante and Williams split $50 as runners-up.

BO CAMERON started playing on the Petersburg High School varsity football team in 1928, at 14. He was over 6 feet tall, but weighed only 128 pounds. A good hard tackle would easily knock him out. Being an excellent kicker and passer, a good field general and a fair blocker, he was too valuable a player to leave off the team. Consequently, the coach, R. C. Day, took no chances on having Cameron knocked out, so he gave orders for him not to run with the ball, but to confine his activities to kicking, passing and calling signals.

The Dodo was discovered on the Island of Mauritius in 1507, by the Portuguese. The bird was unable to fly, and so grotesquely clumsy that it allowed itself to be knocked on the head, which led the Portuguese to call it "Doudo," meaning stupid. Although the bird inhabited the island in great numbers, it became extinct about 150 years after its discovery.

Louis Waynai's immense bible contains 8,048 pages and weighs 1,094 pounds. It took him 8,700 hours to complete it, the letters, symbols, punctuation marks, &c., being stamped by hand, one at a time on a home-made press.

Any reader wanting further proof of anything depicted here should address John Hix, care of The Washington Post, and inclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope for reply.

Proposes 5 Rules of 'Athletic Propriety' for U. S. Group.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—A sharp line of demarcation which would make "outlaws" of colleges and universities not subscribing to certain general principles of "athletic propriety" is advocated by Prof. Ralph W. Aigler in his report as chairman of the board in control of athletics at University of Michigan.

The principles set forth in the report, made public tonight, are in effect the cardinal rules of the Western Conference in which Prof. Aigler is the Michigan representative. The line of demarcation suggested would circumscribe the membership of the National Collegiate Athletic Association which Prof. Aigler regards as an organization "that ought to take the lead in such a move as this."

Five Rules Proposed By Aigler.

The veteran faculty athletic official, who last year directed a blast at the famous Carnegie Bulletin 23, proposed five rules to which he believes colleges should be required to subscribe to attain membership in the national organization.

They are:

1. Requirement of a full year's residence and earned credit, with no entrance deficiencies, for eligibility.
2. No eligibility after three years of intercollegiate competition.
3. Competition limited to undergraduates.
4. No intercollegiate football after the Saturday before Thanksgiving and no more than five college days' absence from the home campus during the season.
5. Effective faculty control of athletic activities.

Limitation of membership in the national organization to colleges and universities accepting these rules was advocated on the ground that "this method of separating the sheep from the goats," the desirables from the undesirables, has been found productive of much good in other fields. The placard 'outlaw' is one no institution likes or can afford to wear."

Proposed Rules Would Make 90 Per Cent Eligible.

Ninety per cent of the present membership of the association, Prof. Aigler estimates, would be eligible under the proposed rules. "It is further believed," his report adds, "that the remaining 10 per cent occasion fully 90 per cent of the ground for criticism or overemphasis and other evils laid at the door of intercollegiate sport."

In another section of his report the Michigan chairman takes digs at the criticism of intercollegiate sports, especially football, asking the critics for something more than "sweeping generalizations."

Football, he says, would indeed be overemphasized if its importance within the university with reference to other activities were "indicated by the space given to the sport in newspapers as compared to academic interests." But such, he declared, is not the case. "Students and faculty," he said, "take their football with a sanity that surprises the outsider." Most of the lost sleep around colleges on football nights, he suggests, is lost entertaining folks from home.

Hits Salary Paid Columbia Coach.

Discussing this phase of the sport in the section of his report which deplored "generalities" in criticism, Prof. Aigler said:

"If newspaper reports of salaries paid football coaches at Columbia in recent years were only approximately correct, President Butler might well have done some reforming without calling for a League of Nations to do it. According to those reports one head coach received a salary larger than our combined salaries for football coaching."

Yates Wins, 16 and 14, With 63 at Palm Beach

Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Arthur "Ducky" Yates, Rochester, N. Y., star golfer, today won the annual Lake Worth golf championship, defeating Al Stover, of Windsor, Ontario, 16 and 14.

Yates shot 30-33—63, six under the 69 par, for the Palm Beach course this morning to stand 13 up on Stover at the end of the first eighteen holes. In the afternoon, Stover managed to halve the first hole, but Yates came in with a bang and took the next three to win the match.

Annapolis Confirms Appointment of Miller

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Appointment of Edgar E. (Rip) Miller, former Notre Dame line star, as head coach of the Naval Academy Football Team was officially announced today.

Miller has signed a contract for one year, it was stated by officials of the Navy Athletic Association.

Referee Alone to Rule On C. U. Bouts Tuesday

According to the terms of a new rule of the Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Association, the referee alone will render decisions on the bouts to be fought next Tuesday night between Catholic University and Massachusetts Tech.

The association last spring, after considerable complaint from members, agreed to do away with the position of judges in connection with supervision of association matches. The complaints generally cited incompetency among the persons selected as judges in the cities where member institutions were located.

Massachusetts Tech is a member of the association, while Catholic University is not, but the local school readily acceded to a request from the Northern school to observe the rule. Haine Miller, well-known local official, has been named as the referee.

Lucas, Flaherty, Shapiro And Robey to Enter G. W.

WHEN registrations close next Tuesday, George Washington University will be enriched to the extent of four well-known local athletes who promise to go farther in the realms of their respective sports while at the Colonial institution.

Jim Pixlee, chief of sports at the downtown school, announced yesterday that Bobby Lucas, Joe Robey, Vinnie Flaherty and Cody Shapiro had made overtures which will lead to registration either Monday or Tuesday.

Lucas, bright light of Business High's team in the scholastic series, in entering George Washington put aside his former plans of going to work as a printers' apprentice.

Lucas, one of the fastest dribblers and most unerring marksman the schools have ever developed, will fit in nicely with the Colonial Freshmen for the remainder of the season, and next year will further add to the institution's already brilliant coterie of basket-ball forwards. Forrest Burgess, Jack Conner, Fred Mulvey and Otts Zahn.

Joe Robey is a former Eastern High School court star and more recently has appeared with Potomac Boat Club and the Clovers in the A. A. U. circles. Shapiro, also a product of Eastern, is known as a more than average basket ball guard, a noted baseball player and a more than average tennis player.

Vincey Flaherty has had a varied career in football, having played for Eastern High, St. John's, Notre Dame Freshmen and last year played regular end for Marquette.

GAMES TUESDAY.

Tech vs. Western.
Central vs. Business.

Use of Johnson by Tech Deemed Violation of Rules.

Central 31-27 Victim; Western Bows to Leaders, 30-29.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE newest upheaval in the interscholastic basket ball series yesterday deposited Eastern in a commanding lead with a 30-29 victory over Western and produced a 31-27 victory for Tech over Central that may not be conclusive as a result of a protest deemed certain to be filed.

Although Coach Burt Coggins, of Central, said last night that he would not protest the game, it is expected that Central's defeat will be transformed into a victory in the board room at the next meeting of the high school principals. The situation hinges on the eligibility of Everett Johnson, Tech guard.

Player in Line-Up For First Time.

Coach Artie Boyd, of Tech, yesterday inserted Johnson, a member of Tech's 1929 champions, in the line-up for the first time this season. The player had been ineligible during the advisory, which ended yesterday, due to deficiency in studies. Despite the termination of the advisory period yesterday, rules for the series state specifically that ineligible players may not be reinstated until the first day of the following advisory, which in this case begins next Monday.

High school officials stated unofficially last night that the use of Johnson by Tech was an open-and-shut violation of the rule and that it doubtless would result in the transfer of the victory to Central.

It was indicated that action may be taken by the principals despite the absence of a protest.

"I will not protest," said Coach Coggins last night. "Although I personally, feel that Tech used a player who was not technically eligible, they won the game. It seems to me that any initiative in the matter should have its source at Tech. I have no reason to believe that a protest will be made by any one connected with Central High."

The loss of the game by Tech would be an ironical turn for Coach Boyd, who, under the impression that a new advisory period started yesterday, reserved from action Waverly Wheeler, star forward, who failed in studies during the last advisory but who, under the series ruling, would not be ineligible until the start of the new advisory Monday.

Eastern's Victory Spectacular.

Eastern gained the top rung of the heap again in spectacular fashion. The Lincoln Park crew started out impressively, gained an 11-to-4 lead in the middle of the second period, and seemed to be well on the way to a walkover. Here Western braced, climbing steadily until the count at the half was 12 to 12.

Western could not be halted in the third quarter. Roy Yowell, playing his best game of the series, started off things with a neat pot shot, and then Latona came through with an inimitable shot from the side line, that sharpshooter's first score of the game. Latona and Yowell marched on, boosting Western into a 23-to-16 lead as the quarter ended.

Western was passing well for the first time in the game, while Eastern, true to its prerogative to play not only the best but the worst ball of the series, was floundering in the throes of wildness.

Two things changed the tide of events in acute fashion. Yowell was put out of the game on fouls and Lieb simultaneously came through on a great shot from the side lines. Eastern was alive again. The passing grew brisker, the Noonan pivot play began to roll smoothly and the shooting of the entire team grew most deadly. Western was overhauled with a rush and Eastern carried on to 28 to 26 with two minutes to play. Sam Taylor, Western's obscure guard, nobly pocketed a difficult shot from the side and the score was 28 to 28.

Check on Latona Hurts Western's Cause.

Eastern was not to be denied. Lieb secured Noonan's tap-off in the same leap fashion which soars him above the heads of all adversaries. He caught the ball, turned in the air and as he landed on the floor hurled a pass half the length of the floor at Zois, who tossed the basket, unguarded. The play was intense for the remaining seconds, but the only product of the frenzy was a free toss of Latona.

Western was fortunate to win. Western was more than hampered by the seeming ban on Latona's shooting, as he is one of the finest shots the high schools have seen in a decade.

One of Tech's legendary comebacks was visible yesterday. Midway in the game, Central emerged from a nip and tuck struggle to show a brand of play which swept Tech before it. The Blue and White led by a fairly comfortable 20 to 15 count at the start of the last period, when that spark which is known to burn bright at times in Tech came to the fore.

Tech scored all of the next 13 points, to bring the score to 28 to 20 in its favor. Tech was on fire, and when both Swift and Cumberland, of Central, were ejected from the fray for undue zeal there was nothing left to the game.

Everett Johnson, making his first appearance with Tech since 1929, played as good a game at guard as the series has seen.

SHUTE LEADS TEXAS OPEN WITH 66

1930 Winner Shoots Sub Par Golf to Top Field.

BRACKENRIDGE PARK, San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Densmore Shute, debonair young Columbus, Ohio, professional who won first prize of $1,500 in last year's Texas open golf tournament, today proved his 1930 victory was no accident.

Starting in just where he left off a year ago, Shute toured a wet course in 66 strokes, five under par, to lead his closest rival by two strokes in the opening round of the 1931 event. Although he had not participated in any previous money events this winter, the defending champion was in rare form.

He turned in five birdies and thirteen pars and not once was in danger of going over perfect figures, despite the slow condition of the fairways and greens.

Two strokes back of the pace setter and one ahead of five ardent pursuers, was Harry Cooper, Chicago professional who shot some of the best golf of his career in posting a 68. Like Shute, he was never over par. His card showed three birdies and fifteen pars. By actual count the Chicago star was putting for birdies on sixteen greens, several of them stopping on the lip of the cup.

Shute's Round Ties Course Record.

Shute's fine 66 today tied the competitive course record for Brackenridge Park, held jointly by Bill Mehlhorn and Wiffy Cox.

The low 64 score and ties after tomorrow's 18 holes will be eligible to compete in the final 36 holes Sunday.

Shute's card:
Out ..... 3 3 5 4 4 4 4 2 5—34
In ..... 2 4 4 5 4 4 4 3 2—32—66

Cooper:
Out ..... 4 2 5 4 4 4 4 3 4—34
In ..... 3 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 3—34—68

Grouped at 69, 2 under par, and in threatening position for the second round of play tomorrow, were five straight-shooting professionals. They were Joe Turnesa, of Elmsford, N. Y., a former Texas open champion; Abe Espinosa, Chicago; Francis Schneider, of Dallas; Tom Lally, of San Antonio, and Mike Murra, a "dark horse" from Wichita, Kans.

Charles Guest, Los Angeles, money seeker, was the lone entrant to register a 70, running the total of par breakers to eight for the day, but seven succeeded in hanging up exactly what the score card called for—71.

In the group were Ralph Guldahl, 19-year-old Dallas star and winner of last week's movie tournament at Los Angeles; Al Espinosa, Chicago veteran, and Wiffy Cox, of Brooklyn, who led through the third round of the Los Angeles open.

Racquet Doubles Finals Due Today

Chicago, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—The teams of Clarence Pell and Stanley Mortimer, of New York, and Robert Gardiner and Howard Linn, of Chicago, advanced today to the finals in the national championship racquet doubles at the Chicago Racquet Club.

The New York team, big favorites to win the title, easily captured its semifinal match, crushing W. F. Krahl and A. F. Tuttle, of Chicago, 15—2, 15—9 and 15—0. Linn and Gardiner, the former star golfer, had to fight four hard games to win over A. L. Corey, and Palmer Dixon of New York, 12—15, 18—17, 15—5 and 15—9.

The finals will be played tomorrow afternoon.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Mottled Teeth.

A SMALL town in Arkansas, Bauxite, has been having an interesting experience. As the name implies, the principal industry of this town is extracting certain ingredients from soil beds and making them into bauxite and bauxite products. The industry is controlled by one organization. It is a typical one industry town. The people used water from shallow domestic wells before the industry came and for several years thereafter. The company wanted to protect its employes from the typhoid and diarrheal diseases, incidentally protecting themselves, and they put in a community water supply, digging a deep well, thus getting a water which health experts said did not spread typhoid and never could. The people abandoned their old wells, hooked up with the public supply, and everybody was happy.

But soon somebody noticed that his teeth were peculiar in appearance. He went to his dentist. The dentist was perplexed. He never had seen anything like that. Then others came. Then the flood broke. The dentist had read about mottled enamel. He became suspicious. He called on the health authorities and, finally, the United States Public Health Service was called in. Drs. Kempf and McKay arrived on the scene.

They found that all the children who had used the water from this deep well during the years when their permanent teeth were being formed had spotted enamel. All who through this period of their lives had consumed water from the shallow wells or from other sources had escaped. No variation in food made any difference.

In nearby Benton all conditions of life were the same as in Bauxite except the water supply. There was no spotted enamel in Benton. When the company abandoned the deep well and pumped water four miles from Benton new cases of spotted enamel came to an end.

That the cause lay in the water from this deep well is certain, but up to date no cause has been found, though more than one kind of an analysis has been made. In other communities where mottled enamel has appeared changing the water supply has stopped the disorder.

NUMB HANDS AND FEET.

Mrs. T. D. writes: Is there anything that could be done to relieve numb hands and feet caused by anemia? I have not lost the power of either and can get around as usual and feel good. The surface of the skin is always cold and dry.

REPLY.

About all you can do is to treat the anemia with liver, liver extract or stomach extract.

DIPHTHERIA ANTITOXIN.

Mrs. A. M. writes: Would diphtheria antitoxin, administered to an 18-month old child, in two doses of 20,000 units each, 12 hours apart, cause death, when a culture taken just before the first injection proved negative?

REPLY.

Not unless the child was sensitized to serums. I presume the diagnosis was established by some means. It is customary to test for sensitization to serum.

TECH BEATS CENTRAL; VICTORY MAY BE PROTESTED

Colleges Talk Tonight of New Loop

10 Invited to Discuss Basket Ball Circuit by Temple U.

Special to The Washington Post.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 30.—Invitations to send representatives to a meeting at Temple University Saturday morning at which time plans will be discussed in regard to forming a new collegiate basket ball league have met with such good response that it is probable a new circuit will be arranged at this gathering.

Earl R. Yeomans, graduate manager of athletics at Temple is the prime mover in this plan for a new league and at his request representatives of ten institutions are expected to be on hand for the first meeting.

League Long Planned By Temple.

Temple for some time has been attempting to organize a new collegiate league for basket ball but this appears as the first real action.

The collegiate officials who are expected to attend will represent Georgetown, Pitt, New York University, Syracuse, Colgate, Penn State, West Virginia and Carnegie Tech in addition to Temple.

It is known that several of these colleges favor a league but the main problem appears to be the distance the teams would have to travel for games. If it is possible to obtain a solution to this problem the league may swing into action next season.

G. U. to Be Represented In Philadelphia Today

H. Gabriel Murphy, graduate manager of athletics of Georgetown University, will attend the meeting in Philadelphia today, when plans for formation of a second Eastern intercollegiate basket ball league will be discussed at the suggestion of Temple University.

Georgetown authorities, it is understood, look with favor upon the proposed circuit.

Hagerstown High Here To Meet Tech Tonight

Local followers of basket ball, who are unable to attend the afternoon high school series games, will have a chance to see Tech in action tonight when the Maroon and Gray takes on Hagerstown High at 8:30 o'clock at Tech Gym. It is one of the few night games scheduled by Tech this season.

Hagerstown has had a good year on the court, its one-point defeat by Western last month being one of the few setbacks.

The preliminary, between Olmsted Grill and St. Mary's Lyceum, will start at 7:30.

In other scholastic games today Gonzaga drops down to Manassas, Va., for a bout with Swavely Prep; Emerson goes over to Annapolis for a game with St. John's Freshmen; Central is slated to make its annual visit to Bethlehem, Pa., for a test against Bethlehem High, and St. Alban's plays Camp Chesapeake at St. Alban's.

Berg Earns Verdict Over Herman Perlick

New York, Jan. 30 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Jackie "Kid" Berg, of England, still holds untarnished the world's junior welterweight championship for he outfought Herman Perlick, the better of the Perlick twins of Kalamazoo, Mich., in ten hectic rounds in Madison Square Garden tonight. Berg weighed 138½, Perlick, 139.

Even as he has won most of his previous encounters in the ring, Berg gained his victory through sheer aggressiveness and gameness. Even in the first three rounds in which he was outpointed by Perlick, Berg never took a back step. He always was forcing forward, surging in with punches and when he got in close, batting away with left and right, regardless. After the third round Berg gradually wore down his man and at the finish he had Perlick so tired that he could just about raise his hands.

The decision in favor of Berg was a just one and was concurred in unanimously by the judges, Harold Barnes and Joe Agnello, and the referee, Johnny McAvoy.

D. C. GOLFER BEATEN.

Steps Taken to Prevent Loss of Pirate Rookies

Pittsburgh, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—The Pittsburgh Pirates are taking no chances in having rookies "lost" this spring. If any youngster comes into the training camp at Paso Robles, Calif., late, with the excuse that he "couldn't find the way," a lot of explaining will have to be done to Pilot Jewel Ens. Instructions are being sent to every member of the squad, telling just what train to take, when and where to change cars and how, and a lot of other useful information.

26 COUNTRIES IN DAVIS CUP ENTRY LIST

U. S., Canada Only North American Zone Aspirants.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Despite a few defections, the field for the Davis Cup competition this year promises closely to approach last year's total of 30, which was only three below the record field entered in the 1928 competition—the year after France won the historic cup from the United States.

A few days ago 26 nations were known to have filed entries for the three zones in which this year's competition will be waged—19 in the European zone, two in the North American zone and five in the newly created South American zone. Entries for the European and North American zones close tomorrow in Paris. The lists for the South American zone were closed last September with Brazil, Argentina, Paraguay, Uruguay and Chile entered for play.

Cuba and Mexico May Yet Enter.

Only the United States and Canada are known to have entered in this zone, although there still remained the probability that Cuba and Mexico would enter at the last minute.

The smaller field in the European zone is explained by the creation of the South American zone, the teams from below the Equator previously having competed in Europe. The winner of that zone will meet the winner of North American zone and the winner of that match will compete against the European zone winner for the right to challenge France for the cup. South American play is scheduled for this winter.

Georgetown U. Denies Plans for a New Gym

Georgetown University officials have no intentions at present of engaging in the construction of a new gymnasium, it was stated authoritatively last night following publication of a story in a local newspaper that the Hilltop soon would erect a massive athletic plant on Thirty-Seventh street between N and O streets. Georgetown owns the property, which is adjacent the university grounds. It is now occupied by private residences.

District League Fives In 3 Games Tonight

A trio of District of Columbia Basket Ball League games are listed tonight, two for the Boys' Club gym, and the other for the Y. M. C. A. floor. Nominal admission charges will be made at each place.

Saks Clothiers and Eastern Whirlwinds will mix at the Boys' Club, starting at 7:45 o'clock, and one hour later the Potomac Boat Club cagers will play the Boys' Club on the same floor. Preceding the Saks-Whirlwind attraction, University Shop cagers will meet the Palace A. C. at 6:45 p. m. Dancing will follow the last game.

In the remaining league contest, Y. M. C. A. tossers will hook up with the St. Martin's Team at the Y. M. C. A. gym. The battle will get under way at 8 o'clock.

Five-Sport Program Today at Annapolis

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 30.—Naval Academy athletes will participate in a program of five contests here today, marking the inauguration of the big series of winter indoor events that will extend through the next several weeks and which on some Saturdays will number as many as ten and eleven contests.

Representatives of the Virginia Military Institute will furnish the opposition in the major attractions tomorrow. The Lexington Cadets will face Navy's varsity basket ball team and they will also compete in a wrestling match with the Tars. Other events of the day will be basket ball between the Navy Plebes and Western High School of Washington. Preceding the varsity engagement, fencing with the Penn Athletic Club of Philadelphia, and a rifle match with Penn State are listed.

V. M. I. Bows To Maryland Five, 44-20

Maryland Gains 9-0 Lead; Score, 19-17 at Halftime.

MARYLAND UNIVERSITY'S basket ball team preserved its Southern Conference record last night and lengthened its winning streak to four straight games in the conference by downing Virginia Military Academy, 44-20, at Ritchie Gymnasium before a sparse crowd of about 200 persons.

It was all Maryland, from the very start of the game, when Norris, Berger and Rankin scored 9 points with startling celerity, Norris scoring thrice from the floor. The visiting Cadets never recovered from that initial blow, trailing, 19-7 at the half and 27-7 late in the last half, when the Maryland regulars were removed in favor of the reserves.

Maryland Play Ragged.

Maryland presented a slightly uneven style of play, caused mostly by the fact that examinations have limited the practice of the team, but the brand of game offered was by many odds superior to that which was produced by the invaders.

Bozey Berger, with 15 points to his name, led both teams in scoring and put up his usual flashy floor game.

It was the second win this season of the Old Liners over the Lexington team, the first encounter resuling in a 35-18 victory for Maryland.

A powerful second-half offensive, led by Lester Singman, center, enabled Benjamin Franklin University dribblers to score an easy victory over the Y. M. C. A. "Big Five" last night, 40 to 17.

Singman topped the individual scorers with 10 points, and assisted in many other Bennie baskets with timely passes.

Columbus University advanced a step nearer Ben Franklin in the Washington Collegiate Conference last night by taking the measure of Bliss Electrical by the score 40-45 at the Silver Spring Armory.

The Knights, while still in second place, have boosted their record to .750, having won 3 out of 4 games.

Sonnenberg to Retire After 3 More Bouts

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—The Wisconsin News today said that Gus Sonnenberg, former heavyweight wrestling champion, will retire from the mat after three more matches to enter the investment business in Los Angeles.

Sonnenberg, the newspaper said, plans to marry Miss Margaret Elliott, of Belmont, Mass., within a year and the former champion was quoted as saying his intended bride was responsible for his decision to quit the wrestling game.

BO CAMERON started playing on the Petersburg High School varsity football team in 1928, at 14. He was over 6 feet tall, but weighed only 128 pounds. A good hard tackle would easily knock him out. Being an excellent kicker and passer, a good field general and a fair blocker, he was too valuable a player to leave off the team. Consequently, the coach, R. C. Day, took no chances on having Cameron knocked out, so he gave orders for him not to run with the ball, but to confine his activities to kicking, passing and calling signals.

The Dodo was discovered on the Island of Mauritius in 1507, by the Portuguese. The bird was unable to fly, and so grotesquely clumsy that it allowed itself to be knocked on the head, which led the Portuguese to call it "Doudo," meaning stupid. Although the bird inhabited the island in great numbers, it became extinct about 150 years after its discovery.

Louis Waynai's immense bible contains 8,048 pages and weighs 1,094 pounds. It took him 8,700 hours to complete it, the letters, symbols, punctuation marks, &c., being stamped by hand, one at a time on a home-made press.

Proposes 5 Rules of 'Athletic Propriety' for U. S. Group.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—A sharp line of demarcation which would make "outlaws" of colleges and universities not subscribing to certain general principles of "athletic propriety" is advocated by Prof. Ralph W. Aigler in his report as chairman of the board in control of athletics at University of Michigan.

The principles set forth in the report, made public tonight, are in effect the cardinal rules of the Western Conference in which Prof. Aigler is the Michigan representative. The line of demarcation suggested would circumscribe the membership of the National Collegiate Athletic Association which Prof. Aigler regards as an organization "that ought to take the lead in such a move as this."

Five Rules Proposed By Aigler.

The veteran faculty athletic official, who last year directed a blast at the famous Carnegie Bulletin 23, proposed five rules to which he believes colleges should be required to subscribe to attain membership in the national organization.

They are:

1. Requirement of a full year's residence and earned credit, with no entrance deficiencies, for eligibility.
2. No eligibility after three years of intercollegiate competition.
3. Competition limited to undergraduates.
4. No intercollegiate football after the Saturday before Thanksgiving and no more than five college days' absence from the home campus during the season.
5. Effective faculty control of athletic activities.

Limitation of membership in the national organization to colleges and universities accepting these rules was advocated on the ground that "this method of separating the sheep from the goats," the desirables from the undesirables, has been found productive of much good in other fields. The placard 'outlaw' is one no institution likes or can afford to wear."

Proposed Rules Would Make 90 Per Cent Eligible.

Ninety per cent of the present membership of the association, Prof. Aigler estimates, would be eligible under the proposed rules. "It is further believed," his report adds, "that the remaining 10 per cent occasion fully 90 per cent of the ground for criticism or overemphasis and other evils laid at the door of intercollegiate sport."

Football, he says, would indeed be overemphasized if its importance within the university with reference to other activities were "indicated by the space given to the sport in newspapers as compared to academic interests." But such, he declared, is not the case. "Students and faculty," he said, "take their football with a sanity that surprises the outsider." Most of the lost sleep around colleges on football nights, he suggests, is lost entertaining folks from home.

Hits Salary Paid Columbia Coach.

Discussing this phase of the sport in the section of his report which deplored "generalities" in criticism, Prof. Aigler said:

"If newspaper reports of salaries paid football coaches at Columbia in recent years were only approximately correct, President Butler might well have done some reforming without calling for a League of Nations to do it. According to those reports one head coach received a salary larger than our combined salaries for football coaching."

Yates Wins, 16 and 14, With 63 at Palm Beach

Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Arthur "Ducky" Yates, Rochester, N. Y., star golfer, today won the annual Lake Worth golf championship, defeating Al Stover, of Windsor, Ontario, 16 and 14.

Yates shot 30-33—63, six under the 69 par, for the Palm Beach course this morning to stand 13 up on Stover at the end of the first eighteen holes. In the afternoon, Stover managed to halve the first hole, but Yates came in with a bang and took the next three to win the match.

Annapolis Confirms Appointment of Miller

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Appointment of Edgar E. (Rip) Miller, former Notre Dame line star, as head coach of the Naval Academy Football Team was officially announced today.

Miller has signed a contract for one year, it was stated by officials of the Navy Athletic Association.

Referee Alone to Rule On C. U. Bouts Tuesday

According to the terms of a new rule of the Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing Association, the referee alone will render decisions on the bouts to be fought next Tuesday night between Catholic University and Massachusetts Tech.

The association last spring, after considerable complaint from members, agreed to do away with the position of judges in connection with supervision of association matches. The complaints generally cited incompetency among the persons selected as judges in the cities where member institutions were located.

Massachusetts Tech is a member of the association, while Catholic University is not, but the local school readily acceded to a request from the Northern school to observe the rule. Haine Miller, well-known local official, has been named as the referee.

Lucas, Flaherty, Shapiro And Robey to Enter G. W.

WHEN registrations close next Tuesday, George Washington University will be enriched to the extent of four well-known local athletes who promise to go farther in the realms of their respective sports while at the Colonial institution.

Jim Pixlee, chief of sports at the downtown school, announced yesterday that Bobby Lucas, Joe Robey, Vinnie Flaherty and Cody Shapiro had made overtures which will lead to registration either Monday or Tuesday.

Lucas, bright light of Business High's team in the scholastic series, in entering George Washington put aside his former plans of going to work as a printers' apprentice.

Lucas, one of the fastest dribblers and most unerring marksman the schools have ever developed, will fit in nicely with the Colonial Freshmen for the remainder of the season, and next year will further add to the institution's already brilliant coterie of basket-ball forwards. Forrest Burgess, Jack Conner, Fred Mulvey and Otts Zahn.

Joe Robey is a former Eastern High School court star and more recently has appeared with Potomac Boat Club and the Clovers in the A. A. U. circles. Shapiro, also a product of Eastern, is known as a more than average basket ball guard, a noted baseball player and a more than average tennis player.

Vincey Flaherty has had a varied career in football, having played for Eastern High, St. John's, Notre Dame Freshmen and last year played regular end for Marquette.

GAMES TUESDAY.

Tech vs. Western.
Central vs. Business.

Use of Johnson by Tech Deemed Violation of Rules.

Central 31-27 Victim; Western Bows to Leaders, 30-29.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE newest upheaval in the interscholastic basket ball series yesterday deposited Eastern in a commanding lead with a 30-29 victory over Western and produced a 31-27 victory for Tech over Central that may not be conclusive as a result of a protest deemed certain to be filed.

Although Coach Burt Coggins, of Central, said last night that he would not protest the game, it is expected that Central's defeat will be transformed into a victory in the board room at the next meeting of the high school principals. The situation hinges on the eligibility of Everett Johnson, Tech guard.

Player in Line-Up For First Time.

Coach Artie Boyd, of Tech, yesterday inserted Johnson, a member of Tech's 1929 champions, in the line-up for the first time this season. The player had been ineligible during the advisory, which ended yesterday, due to deficiency in studies. Despite the termination of the advisory period yesterday, rules for the series state specifically that ineligible players may not be reinstated until the first day of the following advisory, which in this case begins next Monday.

High school officials stated unofficially last night that the use of Johnson by Tech was an open-and-shut violation of the rule and that it doubtless would result in the transfer of the victory to Central.

It was indicated that action may be taken by the principals despite the absence of a protest.

"I will not protest," said Coach Coggins last night. "Although I personally, feel that Tech used a player who was not technically eligible, they won the game. It seems to me that any initiative in the matter should have its source at Tech. I have no reason to believe that a protest will be made by any one connected with Central High."

The loss of the game by Tech would be an ironical turn for Coach Boyd, who, under the impression that a new advisory period started yesterday, reserved from action Waverly Wheeler, star forward, who failed in studies during the last advisory but who, under the series ruling, would not be ineligible until the start of the new advisory Monday.

Eastern's Victory Spectacular.

Eastern gained the top rung of the heap again in spectacular fashion. The Lincoln Park crew started out impressively, gained an 11-to-4 lead in the middle of the second period, and seemed to be well on the way to a walkover. Here Western braced, climbing steadily until the count at the half was 17 to 12.

Western could not be halted in the third quarter. Roy Yowell, playing his best game of the series, started off things with a neat pot shot, and then Latona came through with an inimitable shot from the side line, that sharpshooter's first score of the game. Latona and Yowell marched on, boosting Western into a 23-to-16 lead as the quarter ended.

Western was passing well for the first time in the game, while Eastern, true to its prerogative to play not only the best but the worst ball of the series, was floundering in the throes of wildness.

Two things changed the tide of events in acute fashion. Yowell was put out of the game on fouls and Lieb simultaneously came through on a great shot from the side lines. Eastern was alive again. The passing grew brisker, the Noonan pivot play began to roll smoothly and the shooting of the entire team grew most deadly. Western was overhauled with a rush and Eastern carried on to 28 to 26 with two minutes to play. Sam Taylor, Western's obscure guard, nobly pocketed a difficult shot from the side and the score was 28 to 28.

Check on Latona Hurts Western's Cause.

Eastern was not to be denied. Lieb secured Noonan's tap-off in the same leap fashion which soars him above the heads of all adversaries. He caught the ball, turned in the air and as he landed on the floor hurled a pass half the length of the floor at Zois, who tossed the basket, unguarded. The play was intense for the remaining seconds, but the only product of the frenzy was a free toss of Latona.

Eastern was fortunate to win. Western was more than hampered by the seeming ban on Latona's shooting, as he is one of the finest shots the high schools have seen in a decade.

One of Tech's legendary comebacks was visible yesterday. Midway in the game, Central emerged from a nip and tuck struggle to show a brand of play which swept Tech before it. The Blue and White led by a fairly comfortable 20 to 15 count at the start of the last period, when that spark which is known to burn bright at times in Tech came to the fore.

Tech scored all of the next 18 points, to bring the score to 38 to 20 in its favor. Tech was on fire, and when both Swift and Cumberland of Central were ejected from the fray for undue zeal there was nothing left to the game.

Everett Johnson, making his first appearance with Tech since 1929, played as good a game at guard as the series has seen.

SHUTE LEADS TEXAS OPEN WITH 66

1930 Winner Shoots Sub Par Golf to Top Field.

BRACKENRIDGE PARK, San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—Densmore Shute, debonair young Columbus, Ohio, professional who won first prize of $1,500 in last year's Texas open golf tournament, today proved his 1930 victory was no accident.

Starting in just where he left off a year ago, Shute toured a wet course in 66 strokes, five under par to lead his closest rival by two strokes in the opening round of the 1931 event. Although he had not participated in any previous money events this winter, the defending champion was in rare form.

He turned in five birdies and thirteen pars and not once was in danger of going over perfect figures, despite the slow condition of the fairways and greens.

Two strokes back of the pace setter and one ahead of five ardent pursuers, was Harry Cooper, Chicago professional who shot some of the best golf of his career in posting a 68. Like Shute, he was never over par. His card showed three birdies and fifteen pars. By actual count the Chicago star was putting for birdies on sixteen greens, several of them stopping on the lip of the cup.

Shute's Round Ties Course Record.

Shute's fine 66 today tied the competitive course record for Brackenridge Park, held jointly by Bill Mehlhorn and Wiffy Cox.

The low 64 score and ties after tomorrow's 18 holes will be eligible to compete in the final 36 holes Sunday.

Shute's card:

Out ..... 3 3 5 4 4 4 4 2 5—34
In ..... 2 4 4 5 4 4 4 3 2—32—66

Cooper:

Out ..... 4 2 5 4 4 4 4 3 4—34
In ..... 3 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 3—34—68

Grouped at 69, 2 under par, and in threatening position for the second round of play tomorrow, were five straight-shooting professionals. They were Joe Turnesa, of Elmsford, N. Y., a former Texas open champion; Abe Espinosa, Chicago; Francis Schneider, of Dallas; Tom Lally, of San Antonio, and Mike Murra, a "dark horse" from Wichita, Kans.

Charles Guest, Los Angeles, money seeker, was the lone entrant to register a 70, running the total of par breakers to eight for the day, but seven succeeded in hanging up exactly what the score card called for—71.

In the group were Ralph Guldahl, 19-year-old Dallas star and winner of last week's movie tournament at Los Angeles; Al Espinosa, Chicago veteran, and Wiffy Cox, of Brooklyn, who led through the third round of the Los Angeles open.

Racquet Doubles Finals Due Today

Chicago, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—The teams of Clarence Pell and Stanley Mortimer, of New York, and Robert Gardiner and Howard Linn, of Chicago, advanced today to the finals in the national championship racquet doubles at the Chicago Racquet Club.

The New York team, big favorites to win the title, easily captured its semifinal match, crushing W. F. Krahl and A. F. Tuttle, of Chicago, 15—2, 15—8 and 15—0. Linn and Gardiner, the former star golfer, had to fight four hard games to win over A. L. Corey and Palmer Dixon of New York, 12—15, 18—17, 15—5 and 15—9.

The finals will be played tomorrow afternoon.

BOWLERS STRIVE TO OVERTAKE MANDLEY TONIGHT

Sweepstakes Field Faces 2d Block

Leader Carries 29-Pin Advantage to Convention Hall.

Walson, Clark and Espey Threaten Mandley's Lead.

By JOHN V. HINKEL.

TOPPING the field by a 29-pin margin, Bradley Mandley, one of the Nation's outstanding pinmen, tonight will attempt to increase his lead in the rich Howard Campbell Duckpin Sweepstakes, the second five-game block of which will be rolled on the Convention Hall drives, starting at 7:30 p. m.

Blocking Mandley's progress will be more than 23 of the greatest bowlers ever assembled for a purely local duckpin event. They range from Charlie Walson and A. H. Clark, runners-up to Mandley, with 638 and 627, respectively, to Charles Young, with a 563. Twenty-five other entrants are considered to have only the slimmest of chances to finish among the leaders, as each compiled less than 560 in the first five-game block.

Mandley Rolled

662 Set.

Mandley, a previous winner of this event, achieved his lead through the brilliant 662 effort he turned in last Saturday night, when the first five-game block was rolled off at the Coliseum. If he continues this pace tonight and next Saturday night, when the last block is rolled at the Lucky Strike drives, nothing but a miracle can keep him from first place in the event.

In capturing the event two years ago, Brad assumed a nine-pin lead at the end of the first five-game block, checked in a poor 564 total for his second effort, and concluded with a 606 set in his final block, which was enough to give him victory by a total margin of 28 pins over Dutch Weiman. Last year, Mandley got off to a 609 count, which was good enough to give him tenth place at the start of the affair. He climbed to eighth position with a 591 for his second block, and finished with a 610, which gave him fourth place behind Maxie Rosenberg, the winner; George Friend and Dutch Newman.

Others in Running For Prizes.

In view of their past performances in tournaments of a similar kind, 10 of the 25 entries who finished below 560 are given outside chances of fighting their way to a place among the leaders at the finish. These pinmen are Charles Phillips, Jack Whalen, Glen Wolstenholme, Howard Campbell, George Friend, Al Work, Clem Weidman, Burt Parsons, Joe Harrison and Red Morgan.

Boots and Saddles

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Miami Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

THE first important fixture of the winter racing season will be decided this afternoon at Miami, when a field of 22 of the leading sprinters engage in a 6-furlong battle for the major portion of the $20,500 added value of the Hialeah Highweight Handicap.

In this main attraction, for 3-year-olds and upward, the McLean entry of SILVERDALE and CROSSBONES appears well suited by the conditions. The former has turned in several remarkable route victories, which attest for his readiness. Although the 5-year-old son of The Porter is top weight of the field with 136 pounds, this should not hinder his chances at the three-quarter-mile distance.

OKAYBEE, from the Carroll Stable, has shown a return to her best form and should gain considerable support after her brilliant triumph in the Angers Handicap, in which she stepped the 6 furlongs in 1:11 2-5. With the veteran Jockey Garner in the saddle, the Omar Khayyam mare is selected to force the pace, and with a 124-pound impost, is capable of capturing the award. M. Stern's crack sprinter, GUN ROYAL, has trained well and is favored to finish among the first three. PENNANT LASS, ANGRY, PETO and SON O' BATTLE are closely bunched and figured to furnish the keenest opposition.

FIRST RACE — TRAITOR, a recent winner at this track, appears best of this field, and should lead from the drop of the flag. BOUNDER was weakly ridden in his last race and figures to extend the top selection. LOTTA LUCK showed speed for 6 furlongs recently, but tired at the mile and 70 yards route. The Rosen racer should do well in this 6-furlong dash.

SECOND RACE—IMPEACH gained an impressive victory in his debut and is favored to repeat here. JALPUR, beaten a nose by the top one, should finish in the runner-up position. CRAIGCO disappointed in his initial start as the public choice and should improve off that effort.

THIRD RACE—SUNNY MORN, a clever sprinter in the W. L. Hernstadt Stable, is given the call against this class. HACKY H faltered in his last start, and with that effort as a conditioner should match strides with the above plater. GRACIOUS GIFT, after a long rest, appeared a trifle short in his return to the races. The Mayrose Stable's color bearer is selected for the minor award.

FOURTH RACE — STARS AND BARS, from the Greentree Stable, closed resolutely in the Miami Beach Handicap, after being practically left at the post, and finished third to Silverdale and Son O'Battle. The consistent 5-year-old, with better racing luck, is favored to win this heat. PETO, carrying the silks of the Belair Stud, is ready for a winning effort. HONEY LOCUST is also entered in the feature event, but appears better placed in this event.

SIXTH RACE—BATTY is selected to gain the decision on her past performances. UPSWEEP has shown speed in previous efforts and is accorded the place call. WOLVERINE, a surprise winner in last start, is inconsistent and only rates the show selection.

SEVENTH RACE—The longest race of the day will be run in the final number. MARYDALE, a fast-stepping mare in the Anderson Stable, has shown staying qualities and appears well suited by the conditions. RESPOND, a natural router, closed gamely last out and will appreciate the added distance. FAIR ALBERT, the Reynolds campaigner, has been hard raced and may falter at the 10-furlong route.

CHOICE WINS FEATURE AT MIAMI

Sun Mask, Odds-On Favorite, Scores Handily.

HIALEAH RACE TRACK, Miami, Fla., Jan. 30 (A.P.).—C. E. Hamilton's Sun Mask, odds-on favorite, scored handily over a good field of platers in the feature event, a 6-furlong dash here today. Madely had the mount and rode a perfect race on the good thing. Ramus, running in new silks, was second, and Fervid third.

The start was good, and Madely, alert at the barrier, got his mount away fast and let him step into a wide margin of lead going to the far turn. Fervid was second and Ramus close up. Around the turn and into the stretch, Sun Mask still led, but was being eased back a bit and the field closed on him.

Sun Porter, Following Injury, Is Destroyed.

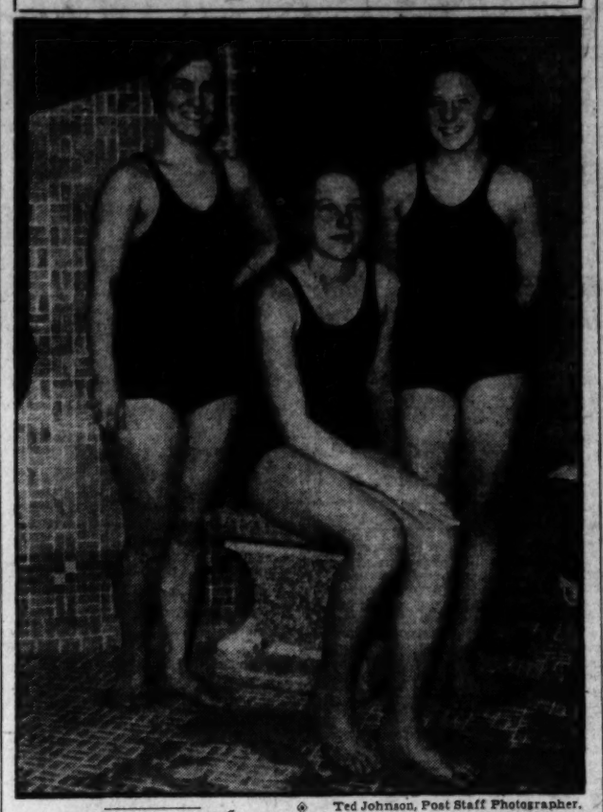
However, when Madely called on him in the final sixteenth Sun Mask drew away easily, to win by a length over Ramus in 1:12 3-5. Fervid finishing in third place a head back of Ramus.

Another race horse fatality accounted for one of today's scratches when Sun Porter's name was taken out of the seventh race's entries. The 3-year-old bay filly, by The Porter—In the Sun, owned by A. Bremken and trained by P. Stire, threw her exercise boy and ran off, later crashing into a fence near the south chute.

Caracas, of the Oakland Farm Stables, was destroyed the other day after a similar mishap.

Miss Lawrence and Gomez Are Swimming Meet Stars

SCORE IN RACE FOR NOVICES



Ted Johnson, Post Staff Photographer.

Honors in the 100-yard race for novices in the Washington Swimming Club meet last night at the Ambassador Hotel pool were won by the comely trio above. Left to right, Lois Preston, who finished third; Rita Augustapher, the winner, and Annabel Whaler, second.

Score 13, 15 Points, Respectively, in W. S. C. Event.

ONALENE LAWRENCE and Vincent Gomez, both of the Washington Swimming Club, were the high-point scorers in the monthly swim held last night by the Washington Swimming Club in the Ambassador Hotel pool. Miss Lawrence scored 13 points, and Gomez totaled 15. The meet was sanctioned by the District A. A. U.

Washgton Swimming Club also captured the Sol Bloom Cup, donated by Senator Sol Bloom, in the 220-yard relay race. Vedder, Lavin, Gomez, and Smith were members of the winning squad. George Washington University's "A" and "B" teams were second and third, respectively, in this, the feature race.

Philippine Olympic Star Is Beaten.

Constancio Alvarado, who represented the Philippines in the 1928 Olympics in the 200-meter event, was handicapped 18 seconds in the 100-yard breast stroke for men, and, despite the valliant effort he made to overtake his opponents, he succeeded getting but a third place. However, he picked up 14 seconds on the winner, Peter Kane, of Catholic University. Alvarado represented the Washington Swimming Club.

In the women's events, probably the most exciting of the evening was the 100-yard free style. Rita Augustapher won after a spectacular duel with Annabelle Whaler. The meet was handled by A. A. U. officials and the packed tank room of the hotel voiced its approval of the manner in which the event was handled.

MARYLAND U. IN 2-SPORT PROGRAM

Boxing, Basket Ball Listed; G. W., Gallaudet in Games.

LOCAL college athletes offer quantity and variety in their activities tonight when three basket ball games and a boxing match will be held. The ring engagement, the feature of the program, finds Maryland's newly organized team opposing Washington and Lee in Ritchie Gymnasium, College Park.

In addition to the boxing match, Maryland will present a basket ball game with Virginia Polytechnic Institute facing the home team. The boxing opens the Terrapins' card at 8 o'clock, to be followed at 9:30 by the court clash.

The George Washington and Gallaudet fives also will see action, the former entertaining Elon (N. C.) College in the H Street Gymnasium and the latter playing host to Baltimore University at Kendall Green. Both of these games will commence at 8 o'clock.

Maryland's Boxers Inexperienced.

While lacking intercollegiate experience, Maryland's boxers are expected to give a good account of themselves. At least Coach Billy Whipp thinks so. Washington and Lee's glovemen are no novices in the sport and should afford the Terps plenty of opposition. A closely contested argument also is anticipated in the basket ball game, both the home team and the visitors having compiled enviable early season records.

The George Washington basketers, minus two of their best players, who are ill, are looking for trouble from Elon, which is reported to have achieved considerable success in the South this season. Fred Mulvey and Johnny Fenlon, forwards, are the incapacitated Colonials, the former suffering a sprained ankle and the latter an attack of influenza.

Alterations to the G. W. gymnasium to create a seating capacity of 900 have been completed. The court also has been widened to 44 feet, within 1 foot of the maximum width.

Gallaudet, with Del Cosgrove, star forward, back in harness after a siege of the "flu," has a hard battle on its hands against the speedy Baltimore quintet. Cosgrove's keen scoring eye doubtless will be utilized fully, for the invaders are considered one of the most capable fives in this section.

Hitting The Head Pin

MRS. BESS ACKMAN, with a 361, and G. Fague, with a 315, for a total of 679, flashed to the front last night in the second annual brother and sister tournament now in progress at the Mount Rainier alleys, displacing Mrs. Catherine Quigley and Frank Minchou, with a 661 aggregate, who previously had held first place in the event.

The triumph of the Ackman-Fague combination also shoved Mrs. Bess Hoffman and Jack Whalen down to third place, putting Mrs. Margaret Miltner and John Martin in fourth place. The Hoffman-Whalen duo have a 633, while the Miltner-Martin team trails by one pin.

Last minute national tournament entries practically have swamped George L. Isemann, secretary of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress, who is handling all arrangements for the affair. Isemann will be at the Convention Hall Alleys tonight to receive all late entries. This will be the last chance afforded teams to enter the tournament.

The Convention Hall girls quintet is in Norfolk, Va., tonight for a clash with the Norfolk All-Stars. Margaret Brunelle, Doris Goodall, Eva Gude, Helena Meyer and Jean Welch were those who made the trip. Brunelle and Goodall also will represent Convention Hall in a special doubles match, while Gude will be the singles representative.

Under the official approbation of the National Duckpin Bowling Congress and the Washington City Duckpin Association, the Potomac Sweepstakes will be held tonight at the Rosalyn Pin Plant, starting at 7:30 o'clock. Entry fees of $5 for singles and $10 for doubles, will be charged. G. W. Clark is in charge of the affair.

The final five-game block of a special 10-game home and home match between Henry Riser's Bethesda All-Stars and the Alexandria Recreation Five will be rolled tonight at Bethesda. The Virginiana sport a 31-pin advantage over their opponents.

Lanasburgh maple crashers had the honor of being the first team in the Business Men's League this year to plaster a three-game defeat on the league-leading King Pin Team, accomplishing this feat last night at King Pin, No. 2. Hardy, with a 308; West, with a 328; Zimmerman, with a 314; Anderson, with a 324, and Capt. Staley, with a 335, composed the winning team.

On the other league match, Hecht Co. rollers walked away with a two-game verdict over Garrison's Toy Shop.

Three whitewash victories were scored in a trio of Ladies' Independent League matches rolled last night on the King Pin, No. 2 drives. The Happy Five took the measure of the Diamond Cabs by this margin, and the Nationals and Tip-Tops did the same to Lansburgs and Kann's, respectively.

By taking three games from the Lakestone pinmen last night on the Arcadia drives while Standard Art Marble, Building Contract League leaders, dropped one out of three to Columbia Sand & Gravel, the Fuller Stone Co. No. 1 team pulled up to within one game of first place. Sets of 349 by Arey and 341 by Harney helped the Fullers to their clean sweep.

In other league matches, Charles H. Tompkins, in third place, took two of three from Fuller Stone No. 2, while James Baird and P. T. McDermott copped the odd game from D. C. Butchers and John P. Evans, respectively. Surr, of Tompkins, had a 339 set for the third best three-game total of the night.

In trouncing their opponents the King Pinners started with a 578 set, went up to a 599 for their second effort and finished in a blaze of glory with a brilliant 638. The losers shot 546, 585 and 556, respectively.

The National Capital League match scheduled for last night between King's Palace and Meyer Davis rollers was postponed to a later date.

Led by Eppley, who registered a 347 set, National Capital Press pinmen captured all three games from Columbian Printers in a Typothetae League encounter staged last night on the Lucky Strike Alleys. High game honors went to Williams, of the losers, who shot a 129.

Bethesda-Chevy Chase High Overtime Victor

Nichols' foul shot in the last two minutes of play in an extra period gave the Bethesda-Chevy Chase tossers a narrow 20-to-19 triumph over Rockville in a Montgomery County High School contest played yesterday afternoon at Rockville. The teams were deadlocked at 17-all at the end of the regulation game.

The Census Enumerators will seek their tenth victory of the season this evening at Immaculate Conception Hall when they engage the Independent All-Stars, a combination of foremost independent loop players, in a court clash.

Such reputable performers as Ralph Bennie, Lefty Tripp, Pepco Barry, Dave Keppel and Bill Banta have been selected to appear with the All-Stars, who should make matters hot for the Government team.

The Census Flappers and Aloysius Girls meet in a preliminary, starting at 7:30.

Courtmen Must Join A. A. U. Soon for Tourney Eligibility

Men's Unlimited and 145-Pound Players Must Register Within Eight Days for Post's Title Tourney.

EIGHT days remain for teams which will compete in the District of Columbia basket ball championship tournament in the men's unlimited and 145-pound class to register their players in the Amateur Athletic Union.

Officials of the tourney, which is being sponsored by The Washington Post for the fifth consecutive year, have set February 7 as the closing date for registration of players, although team entries are not due until February 27. Players who have not applied for A. A. U. cards by February 7 will not be eligible for the tournament.

Mounting interest in the event during the past few days indicates another bumper entry in every class of the tournament, which includes, besides the men's unlimited and 145-pound classes, the 130-pound, 115-pound and 100-pound boys' divisions and the senior and junior girls' classes.

The heavier divisions will draw entries from virtually every field of basket ball in Washington and the surrounding territory that makes up the District Association of the A. A. U. Independent teams, service teams, league teams, scholastic teams and college freshman fives are expected to be found in the tourney which last year set a national record in point of entries with a total of 85.

The Post has again taken steps to insure the best available facilities for the tournament. The Washington Community Center has provided the use of the spacious Tech High School Gymnasium, the outstanding officials of this section have been engaged, strict supervision of eligibility will be in order, and other details that have contributed to the marked success of past tournaments have been planned.

STOCKS AGAIN RISE, BUT LATER DECLINE

Index of 90 Shares Slumps Slightly as Gains of 2 to 10 Points Are Lost.

AUBURN AUTO UP 3 NET

New York, Jan. 30 (A.P.).—The stock market shied at its own advances of 2 to 10 points today and closed irregular, with a small decline in the composite price of 90 issues.

Some traders saw less chance for success of a veterans' cash bonus, but if there was less nervousness in this connection it was hardly apparent in the Government section of the listed bond market. Liberties and Treasuries again sold off heavily, although, as was the case yesterday, final quotations were above the day's lows. Highest grade domestic bonds, on the other hand, were a trifle steadier.

Stocks may have found some consolation in the fact that a number of the important earnings statements for 1930 have now been published, for the market was strong during most of the day, featured by the activity of a few volatile issues. However, intensive profit-taking swept over the list in the last half hour and the gains in the leaders dwindled into small net declines. The volume of trading expanded, sales approximating 2,200,000 shares.

Best Prices of Session.

At their best prices, American Can, American Water Works, Westinghouse, Eastman Kodak, Bethlehem Steel, Allied Chemical, Corn Products, Du Pont, Johns-Manville and Coca Cola were up 2 to 3 points, but the late selling reduced most of these advances to fractions.

U. S. Steel converted a rise of 1¼ into a loss of ⅝. American Telephone, after touching 180¼, closed at 187½, off ¾. Sears-Roebuck and Montgomery Ward found holders taking profits and reacted moderately. The coppers eased when the domestic price was shaded a quarter of a cent. The dull rails were irregular.

Auburn Auto ran through its daily gymnastics, selling 8¾ higher, losing its gain and then rising nearly 3 points net. Columbian Carbon soared 10 but reacted about 4 from the top. Worthington Pump, whose accumulated preferred dividends have been paid off, shot up 9, partly in response to a report that the company was getting large contracts for pipe line equipment.

Slight Gain in Trade Cited.

The weekly business reviews saw a conservative gain in trade, with some expansion in lines which have been quiet. Dun's said that although wholesale buying had been slow it was now making "better progress," and orders in some instances were running ahead of a year ago. "Support of a more hopeful attitude for an early revival of industrial output," asserted this review, "lies in the continued gain in steel." Bradstreet's reported some improvement in the Eastern shoe manufacturing trade and in Southern cotton and furniture industries. Dun's compilation of commercial failures for the week showed a decline, which is in keeping with the seasonal trend.

Wheat was quiet, but inclined lower, closing unchanged to ⅜ off. Most of the selling was in the July delivery which weakened in sympathy with Winnipeg. Favorable weather, increased stocks in Kansas City and a large Argentine export contributed to the heavy tone of corn which dropped a cent. Cotton was stronger, closing with gains of 55 to 75 cents a bale.

Sterling exchange resumed its advance, climbing 3-32 to $4.85 22-32 for cables. Other European rates, with the exception of the Spanish peseta, were firm.

U. S. GOVERNMENTS SINK AS SALES GAIN

Other Investment Bonds Do Fairly Well, but Later Become Heavier.

PRIME LEGAL RAILS DIP

New York, Jan. 30 (A.P.)—Prices in the bond market worked down to around the low levels of the month today as selling of governments and corporate domestic obligations continued to dominate the movement.

Discussion of the soldiers' bonus proposals in and out of Congress, including predictions by prominent bankers that flotation of a large Government bond issue at this time would disrupt the bond market, has made investors very cautious, traders say, and is reflected in the downward trend of prices, in even the highest grade bonds.

As in the previous session, closing prices of Government securities were above the day's minimums, but the net losses were again unusually large particularly in long-term Treasury issues which would be most affected by flotation of a new issue. Declines there ranged from seven-eighths in Treasury 4¼s to three-eighths; the total volume of transactions was far above the average.

Other investment issues gave a better account of themselves early in the session, but the demand slackened as the day advanced and the list turned heavy. Prime legal rails eased fractionally on the average, although there were some instances of larger declines while utilities fluctuated narrowly.

With no new financing expected on the final day of the month, the total appearing in January was approximately $592,000,000 with the current week contributing $201,000,000, a larger amount than had been expected. Utilities were especially prominent in obtaining additional capital, while the record offering of the month was the $62,000,000 Missouri Pacific flotation.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agri., Weather Bureau, Washington, Friday, January 31—8 p. m.

Forecast—For the District of Columbia, fair Saturday and Sunday; colder Saturday night; fresh northwest winds, diminishing by Saturday night.

For Maryland, generally fair in East and local snows and colder in west portion Saturday; colder Saturday night; Sunday fair; fresh, possibly strong northwest winds diminishing by Saturday night.

The northeastern disturbance has reached Newfoundland, Port aux Basques, 29.26 inches, while the northwestern disturbance has moved rapidly southeastward to New York and Pennsylvania with a marked increase in intensity. Buffalo, 29.34 inches. These disturbances have caused snow within the last 24 hours from the lake region and the extreme upper Ohio Valley eastward to the Atlantic Coast. The weather has prevailed elsewhere in the United States, except for local rains in the lower Rio Grande Valley. Pressure remains low over Alaska and over the District of Mackenzie, and it is abnormally low over southwestern Alaska, Kodiak, 28.96 inches. Pressure is high and rising over Hudson Bay and Manitoba, Churchill, 30.14 inches, and it remains high from the north Pacific States and British Columbia southeastward to Florida and Yucatan. Yellowstone Park, Wyo., 30.42 inches. The temperature has fallen in the North Atlantic States, and from the western Canadian Provinces southward over the Rocky Mountain region, the northern and central plains States and Minnesota, while it has risen in the southern lake region, the Ohio and Middle Mississippi Valley, Tennessee, and the southern Appalachian regions. The temperature is still much above normal, quite generally between the Rocky and Appalachian Mountains, and it is more than 30 degrees above normal from Alberta and Saskatchewan southeastward to South Dakota.

There will be local snows from the lower lake region and the extreme upper Ohio Valley eastward to the Atlantic Coast Saturday. Otherwise generally fair weather will prevail east of the Mississippi River during the next two days. The temperature will be lower in Tennessee, the Ohio Valley, the lower lake region, and the Southern Appalachian region Saturday and Saturday night, and in the Atlantic States Saturday night.

PUBLIC NOTICES

In accordance with the provision of Section 3 of an Act of Congress, approved March 1, 1920 (Public No. 152, 66th Congress), entitled "An Act to regulate the height, area and use of buildings in the District of Columbia and to create a Zoning Commission; and for other purposes," notice is hereby given that a public hearing will be held in the Board Room of the District Building beginning at 10:00 A. M., February 4, 1931, for the purpose of considering the following proposed changes in the Zoning Regulations and the boundaries of the use, height and area districts, to wit: Amend Section 7 of the Building Regulations by inserting the words "ice cream manufacture," following the word "station" in the fourth line from the bottom of page 2. Amend Section 3 of the Zoning Regulations by striking out Item 44, on page 10, which reads: "44. Sausage manufacture."

NEED FOR NEW NAVY SHIPS STRESSED BY MOFFETT AT PARLEY

Women Here for National Defense Conference Are Greeted by Hoover.

FISH AND FRIES ATTACK SOVIETS DURING TALKS

A pilgrimage to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier will bring to a close today the sixth Women's Patriotic Conference on National Defense after a final business session, at which resolutions will be adopted and addresses will be heard from Trubee F. Davison, Assistant Secretary of War; Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, and Representative Fred A. Britten, of Illinois.

Scott Lucas, national judge advocate of the American Legion, was the speaker at the conference dinner last night at the Willard. He spoke in the absence of the national commander of the legion, Ralph O'Neil. He said that the leading powers of the world that have formed peace treaties and are always talking about peace are busy building up an adequate defense.

He first traced the treaties that have been made since the World War and then showed, through statistics, what European nations have done in building up a defense in the form of large standing armies and naval and air forces. Europe, he said, has more men under arms today than before the World War. He recommended that the United States refrain from scrapping another ship until nations agree to disarm. Mr. Lucas was introduced by Mrs. Robert Lincoln Hoyal, national president of the American Legion Auxiliary and chairman of the conference, who presided at the dinner.

Speakers Heard Yesterday.

Speakers at the sessions yesterday were: Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, U. S. N., chief of aeronautics; Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, Representative Lewis W. Douglas, of Arizona; Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., of New York, and Frederick H. Payne, Assistant Secretary of War. The delegates were received by President Hoover at the White House at 12:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

"You come to Washington at an opportune time," Admiral Moffett declared. "We are looking toward the passage of the Navy building program at this session of Congress to enable us to make a start toward building up to the London Naval Treaty.

"If we build up to this treaty, we will have an effective and adequate Navy for our needs. Such groups of Americans as you must let it be known plainly that the people of this country insist on having such a Navy or Congress may turn its attention to other issues."

Admiral Moffett said that unless immediate appropriations are made for the Navy building program that the United States will have no new vessels built by the time the next Naval Armament Conference meets in 1935.

"Blue Print Navy" Hit.

"If we go to the next conference with a blue print Navy we will be seriously handicapped, and a situation may arise that will not only wreck all that has been gained, but may cause serious international misunderstandings," he said.

"Nothing," he stated, "is more essential to the welfare, honor and self-respect of this country than the creation and maintenance of an adequate Navy, including its aircraft, second to none, built to the strength allowed by the London Treaty."

Gen. Fries cited as the Nation's greatest need military training for youth. Speaking of the danger in the spreading of communistic teachings, he declared that the world can not continue half communistic and half free. He said Communists are aware that they must spread their doctrine throughout the world, and thus destroy all free people, or else eventually the free people of the world will destroy communistic Russia.

Secretary Payne's Talk.

Stress was laid by Secretary Payne on the importance of industrial preparedness. He predicted that in any future emergency the supply problem will be intensified. "It is essential that we set up plans for industrial as well as purely military mobilization," he said. "Industrial mobilization is essential if the economic burden of any future war is to be equitably distributed.

Mr. Fish urged the conference to adopt resolutions demanding that the Treasury Department request through the State Department permission to send inspectors to Russia to investigate reports of the use of prison labor in the cutting of timber being imported into the United States.

Representative Fish declared that he is convinced that a large part of the lumber produced in Soviet Russia is at the expense of suffering, brutalities and atrocities. "Let us see," he said, "that no more lumber or pulp wood is brought into the United States from Soviet Russia in competition with free American labor and in violation and degradation of humanity."

Representative Douglas issued a warning against the rapidly increasing encroachment of Federal power over individual State's rights. "Local responsibility," he declared, "is dying a lingering death."

TWO ARE CONVICTED IN BANKRUPTCY CASE

T. O. Probey & Son Said to Have Conspired to Conceal Assets.

TWO ACQUITTED BY JURY

Charged in an indictment returned in 1926 with conspiracy to conceal assets of the bankrupt tire business of Probey, Inc., T. Oliver Probey, 56 years old, and his son, James M. Probey, were convicted yesterday afternoon by a District Supreme Court jury before Justice Jesse C. Adkins.

Marion T. Edwards, son-in-law of the elder Probey, and John H. Frankeberger, an officer of the Henderson Tire Co., who were jointly indicted with the Probeys, were acquited.

The elder Probey was committed to jail without bond on motion of Assistant United States Attorney William H. Collins, who prosecuted. The son, however, was permitted to give bond at the request of S. McComas Hawken, one of the defense counsel. Justice Adkins fixed his bail at $5,000.

According to the testimony the Probeys concealed assets totaling approximately $10,000 from the trustee in bankruptcy. Some of these assets were recovered, but many were not. It also was charged that the men attempted to hide automobile tires, valued at several thousands of dollars, most of these were found in the rear of a tire shop on Pennsylvania avenue northwest between Tenth and Eleventh streets, it was said.

The trial concluded is the second held in connection with the case. The first trial last summer resulted in a mistrial when a juror was seen talking to one of the defendants.

After the trial Collins said much of the credit for the unraveling of the case was due to work of special investigators of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice and of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co., of Akron, Ohio.

Attorney J. Frank Esher appeared for Frankeberger, and expressed thanks to the jurors for their verdict in acquitting his client.

Policeman Freed Under $300 Bond

Charged With Assault in Effecting Arrest of Maryland Man.

Policeman James H. Dellinger, attached to the Eleventh Precinct Station, was released late yesterday afternoon on $300 bond for arraignment today on a warrant charging him with assault on Oscar A. Reba, of Boulevard Heights, Md. Mr. Dellinger was placed in custody shortly after Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keough in Police Court had authorized the issuance of the warrant.

Reba, who is 19 years old, complained to Mr. Keough that the policeman had struck him on the head with an automobile crank after his arrest last Saturday on a speeding charge. He was subjected to hospital treatment and had two stitches taken in his scalp.

Reba was arraigned on the speeding charge last Monday and was given a suspended sentence. At that time he made charges of assault against the policeman, who retaliated by stating the defendant had resisted arrest and had attempted to attack him.

Police Radio Cars Hurry to Collision

Within five minutes after an automobile crash had been reported at Sixth and B streets northeast, two radio-equipped police cars, an emergency car from the Ninth Precinct, a Casualty Hospital ambulance and a machine driven by Assistant Director of Traffic M. O. Eldridge arrived at the scene.

The recently inaugurated police radio system proved its merit when officers, summoned by a flash from different parts of the city, seized a small quantity of alleged liquor in one of the cars figuring in the collision.

The accident occurred, it was said, when a machine driven by James Tinker, colored, 20 years old, of T street near Ninth street northwest, struck the automobile of Stacy W. Simpson, 48 years old, of Claremont, Va. Both cars were badly damaged. Simpson was arrested and charged at the Ninth Precinct with reckless driving and transportation of liquor. He told police he was on his way to Philadelphia.

Trace of Snow Is Seen; Fair and Colder Tonight

An almost imperceptible amount of snow, described by the Weather Bureau as a trace, fell here for a few minutes about 10 o'clock yesterday morning, but melted as it touched the ground.

A forecast of fair today and tomorrow and colder tonight was issued by the Weather Bureau. Meteorologists reported that there was no indication of any snow and that the flakes which fell yesterday were a spotty part of a light fall which also was noted in Western Maryland and Pennsylvania.

WOMAN WHO SHOT HERSELF SUCCUMBS

HEARD PISTOL'S REPORT

Edith Mary Blodgett, 25 years old, of Warren, Pa., fatally shot herself in the body with a large caliber revolver yesterday in the Franklin Park women's comfort station, near Thirteenth and I streets northwest. She died last night at Emergency Hospital.

Policeman M. K. Raspberry, of the park police, who was sitting in his room between the men's and women's rooms in the comfort station, heard a shot and ran to the next room, where he found the woman lying over a bench. A revolver had fallen from her hand.

Raspberry placed her in his car and drove to Emergency Hospital. An operation was performed there, and the bullet removed from her abdomen.

Police say the woman has an uncle, R. L. Blodgett, in Warren, Pa. It was learned that she lived on K street northwest near Fourteenth, three months ago, but police said she since had moved to another address in the vicinity.

Attempt of Prisoner To Hang Self Balked

Jefferson was picked up near the Union Station while acting suspiciously by several large milk cans. Policeman P. G. Withers, while making his rounds in the cellroom, came on Jefferson just as the man was preparing to jump off his bunk to hang himself with a noose made from his trousers, the policeman declared. Withers said he rushed in and overpowered Jefferson.

Woman Felled by Assailant.

Accosted by a Negro as she was about to enter her home on L street northeast near First street, Mrs. Ivy Goodson, 35 years old, was thrown down, but her assailant fled when a passer-by was attracted by her screams. Lewis Cameron, of K stret northeast near First street, heard the woman cry for help and ran to her assistance. The man fled. Mrs Goodson was uninjured.

REDS ARE ASSAILED BY POSTAL OFFICIAL

DEPORTATION IS URGED

There is sharp contrast between the principles and ideals of Masonry and the aims of communism, F. A. Tilton, Third Assistant Postmaster General, told members of the Temple Club of Master Masons of the Post-office Department last night as the club opened its activities for the new year.

While Mr. Tilton said he was convinced that communism would never gain a foothold in the United States as long as such groups as those represented in Masonry were active, and while he hesitated to be an alarmist, he said it was significant the Communist party polled some 100,000 votes in the last election.

Since only the naturalized could vote, and these represent only a small part of the total number of Communists in this country, Mr. Tilton said he estimated the strength of the group in America at upward of 500,000.

"I think in view of this fact it is time we took some judicial notice of the situation," he declared. "I hope every effort will be made to send troublesome aliens to Russia and let them get a sample of the thing they are working for."

At a business meeting the Temple Club planned for its sale of cherry blossoms received from the District cherry blossom committee.

Music for the entertainment program was furnished by a quartet of the George Washington University Glee Club.

Pair Hurt Slightly in Crash.

A man and his wife narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday when their automobile overturned in a collision with a car driven by a policeman. Mr. and Mrs. Bert H. Wise, of Cheverly, Md., were treated at Emergency Hospital. Edward W. Daniels, of the Fourth Precinct, was the other motorist involved. He was cut about the hands.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

DISPATCHES WE WONDER WHY GEN. PERSHING NEVER SENT.

(Gen. Pershing, in his story of the World War, says that when winter clothing, arms and other real necessities were needed, Washington sent the A. E. F. in France shiploads of cuspidors, bathtubs, office chairs, bookcases, stepladders, lawn mowers, settees, camp stools, desks, sickles, refrigerators and floor wax.)

SECRETARY OF WAR, Washington, D. C.:

Thanks for last four boatloads of lawn mowers. You have no idea how they have helped the morale of our troops. Officers and men have been showing signs of depression ever since arrival in France, but America's thoughtfulness in the matter of lawn mowers for its fighting men has worked a complete mental change.

Wish that all future lawn mowers have red handles, as soldiers who have drawn lawn mowers with red handles are envy of men drawing simpler colors. PERSHING.

P. S.—Could you also rush us some rakes, wheelbarrows and hedge clippers?

* * * *

War Department:

Deem it necessary to say successful offensive against German troops impossible unless prompt attention is given matter of settees. American Army is poorest equipped in world in point of settees, benches, beach chairs, &c. Could borrow this furniture from French Army but believe it would be humiliating at this time.

Am sending home Maj. Gen. —— for breach of orders. He went into action without his bookcase.

PERSHING, Commander.

For all departments:

Our docks here now hopelessly clogged with bathtubs. Appreciate consideration of supply bureaus at home but fear plans for big drive will be seriously imperiled unless we immediately get soap and towels.

Is Bryan doing anything about hot showers? PERSHING.

QUARTERMASTERS DEPARTMENT, Washington, D. C.

Is it American opinion that we should go into action before such time as there shall be a refrigerator for every combat soldier? My recent request for rifles has been met by big shipment of stepladders. Will you please rush experts to teach doughboys how to load and fire a stepladder? GEN. PERSHING.

* * * *

Special to all Washington Bureaus:

Acting on your hints, I threw two divisions into attack last night using equipment rushed here. Attack was preceded by a barrage of office desks, water coolers and filing cabinets. Men went over the top and cut way through barbed wire with cuspidors and garden hose. Met Germans in hand-to-hand fighting, using sickles and window shades, but were defeated and driven back with heavy losses.

At conference with allied chiefs today it was decided failure of American attack was due to inadequate supply of floor wax. PERSHING.

N. B.—If we decide to attack Metz we will need immediate shipments of waste baskets, chiffoniers, coat hangers, electric toasters, garden seeds, flower boxes, can openers, liver pads, shoe trees, bath mats and hair tonic.

CLUES.

THERE are two possible reasons for all that sensational shooting in a Broadway night club recently. One is that a patron discovered that the stuff brought him in a teacup was tea.

The other is that everybody started shooting when the cigarette girl announced what she was charging for cigarettes.

ADD VANISHING AMERICANS.

The druggist who used to think that one drug store was about all he could operate conscientiously.

ONE IS CONVICTED, ANOTHER CLEARED ON GAMING CHARGE

Extra Marshals Guard Room as Jury Conducts Its Deliberations.

POLICEMAN PRINCIPAL GOVERNMENT WITNESS

Bail Is Refused Man Facing Sentence Up to 20 Years; Appeal Likely.

Wilbur Dorsey was acquitted on an indictment charging violation of the gaming laws on eight counts last night by a District Supreme Court jury before Justice Peyton Gordon, while it found Irving Sellers guilty on four of the counts. Sellers was ordered committed to jail.

Sellers, who was represented by Attorney W. Bissell Thomas, was denied bail despite the pleas of his counsel. "It is the policy of this court," said Justice Gordon, "to refuse to permit a man convicted in this court bond pending sentence."

Justice Gordon appeared to receive the verdict, attired in evening clothes, which his judicial robe could not entirely shroud. Attorney Thomas did not note an appeal, but it was understood that he would do so later, since his client faces a possible sentence of twenty years in jail.

Congratulations Given.

Attorney Harry T. Whelan and Dorsey, whom he represented, were showered with congratulations from spectators.

For the first time in many years extra deputy United States marshals guarded the jury room during the period of deliberation. Shades were drawn in the corridors overlooking the room and a deputy was placed in a position where he could ascertain if any one sought to lift the window coverings. As a rule, only two deputies are assigned to guard juries, but eight deputy marshals were on duty yesterday.

Use Armored Car.

The jury was out two and a half hours after taking the case at 4 o'clock. When it was ready to report, Justice Gordon, who was at home, ordered that it be taken to dinner. The jury was transported in an armored car, which is ordinarily used only to transport prisoners.

It was also learned that a large bone-handled razor was discovered in the courtroom just after the noon recess by a deputy United States marshal and turned over to M. Lee Ashford, clerk of the court.

Dorsey and Sellers were specifically charged with having operated a gaming establishment on the third floor of premises on H street northwest near Tenth street, where they were charged with having set up a gaming table, taking bets on horse races, and operating a black jack game.

Policeman Chief Witness.

Hansford Miller, a policeman who was the principal witness for the Government, testified that he had gone to the establishment, and after talking to Dorsey had obtained a card which admitted him to the H street establishment. Miller also testified that he had seen Sellers dealing black jack and had played several hands with him.

Sellers was found guilty by the jury on charges of setting up a gaming table on two counts—of keeping a place where gaming was permitted and of knowingly permitting gaming.

Assistant United States Attorney James R. Kirkland, who prosecuted, stated after the trial that the conviction was obtained entirely on information garnered by investigators of the office of the United States attorney.

"Two days before the trial we learned that the place in question had been rented by a man named Irving Sells. We investigted and found out that Sellers and Sells were one and the same man. If there is any credit for the conviction it goes to the investigators of our office who dug up those facts and who so testified."

SHOREHAM, LINKED WITH FAILURE CASE, IN RECEIVERS' HANDS

Justice Hitz Names Three, Who Start at Once to Run New Hotel.

THOROUGH INQUIRY FOR SWARTZELL FIRM

Department of Justice Does Not Expect Report to Be Ready for Week.

Receivers for the new Shoreham Hotel were appointed yesterday simultaneously with intimations that the Department of Justice audit of the bankrupt, Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co. would not be completed before late next week, at the earliest.

Justice William Hitz, of District Supreme Court, signed the receivership order for the Shoreham and named three Washingtonians as receivers.

The three who posted an aggregate bond of $25,000 were Francis H. Duehay, owner of the Woodward Building, and John E. Lasky and Spencer Gordon, attorneys.

$2,750,000 in Notes Out.

The receivership action against the Shoreham Hotel Corporation, originally financed by the Swartzell concern, had been filed Thursday by the Walter M. Ballard Co., 1722 Connecticut avenue, which firm claimed $60,000 as due for furniture. The petition said claims of other persons who furnished equipment amounted to $250,000. Construction claims reached $500,000.

Consenting to the petition, the Shoreham Corporation admitted the Ballard Co. claim, and said there are trust notes aggregating $2,750,000 on the two units of the present structure at the northern end of the $1,000,000 bridge on Connecticut avenue.

Under the court order, the receivers assumed charge of the hotel at once and will continue to operate the plant.

Associate Justice Joseph W. Cox also signed orders requesting the receivers for the Swartzell firm, Henry F. Blair and Maj. Julius I. Peyser, whom he appointed when the company went into bankruptcy Monday, to show cause next Friday why they should not surrender certain notes totaling $19,800, which had been deposited for collection with the company by four women and a man shortly before the bankruptcy proceedings.

Four Women Claimants.

The four women are Elizabeth S. Moore, who says she gave notes aggregating $10,000 to the Swartzell company for collection; Mary S. Hardesty, $6,000; Mary E. Davis, $1,400, and Gertrude P. Miller, $1,000. The man is Wallace M. Streeter, his note being for $1,200.

Because of the mass of records listing transactions of the Swartzell firm, which had clients in all parts of the world, the bureau intends to give all the time necessary to the audit without setting any approximate date for its secret report to Assistant Attorney General Nugent Dodds, who heads the inquiry.

Men Building Shoreham Addition Hold Meeting

A meeting of the contractors and material men on the Shoreham Hotel was held in the Empire room of the hotel last evening.

It was reported that construction work has been resumed and that the addition to the building will be completed on time, ample funds being available for the purpose.

A tone of optimism pervaded the meeting and a committee consisting of S. Percy Thompson, Harry Blake, A. J. Somerville, S. D. Moses, W. C. Miller, Taylor Chewning, and W. C. Sullivan, was appointed by unanimous vote to cooperate with the hotel management and its receivers.

It was shown that the present structure is fully occupied and the applications are in hand sufficient to more than fill the second unit, which is 95 per cent completed and already partly occupied, and that the hotel enterprise is operating at a handsome profit.

MRS. H. J. HOEFFLIGER RITES

Funeral for Widow of Civil War Veteran to Be Held Today.

The funeral of Mrs. Honore Jane Hoeffliger, who died Wednesday at her home, 2940 Newark street northwest, will be held this morning. Following brief services at Zurhorst's funeral home at 8:30 o'clock, mass will be said at St. Joseph's Church. Interment will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Mrs. Hoeffliger was the widow of Philip Hoeffliger, pension examiner and veteran of the Civil War. She was a native of Indiana.

She was a contributor to numerous periodicals and was the author of three volumes of poetry. She was a member of the League of American Pen Women and Daughters of Veterans.

SERGT. A. P. GALL BURIED.

Full Military Honors Given Former White House Policeman.

Funeral services were conducted yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the W. W. Chambers funeral home, 1400 Chapin street northwest, for August P. Gall, former member of the White House police force, who died Wednesday in Emergency Hospital. Interment, with full military honors, was in Arlington National Cemetery.

Sergt. Gall was 52 years old and a veteran of the Spanish-American War. He was a member of Hiram Lodge, No. 10, of the Masons, and the Spanish War Veterans.

Police Tap Static to Find Holdup Was In Cleveland

"Cruiser car Number—awk—b-r-r—proceed immediately to—b-r-r-fft—street, a holdup has been reported!"

Police scout cars equipped with radios, cruising about in different sections of Washington, ground to a stop as this flash was picked up on their receiving sets. The drivers manipulated the dials to enable clearer reception. Again the call was repeated, and again the occupants of the police cars failed to catch the name and address of the street. Frantically they strained their ears to hear the third and last call. Street cars sped by—automobile horns blew, the policemen could hear everything except the flash they were trying to pick up. The call was repeated once more, and this time the name of the street was heard.

A search through the street guide book carried by all patrolmen revealed that no such street was listed in Washington. What to do next was the problem. As the scout cars hurried to the nearest patrol box to call their precinct station house, the same voice was again picked up on their sets. The drivers sheepishly returned to their beats after hearing——

FRANCIS HUGHES.

FRANCIS HUGHES, 74, QUITS POLICE FORCE

Oldest Department Member Retires After Serving for 43 Years.

GEIER ALSO LEAVES DUTY

Francis Hughes, 74-year-old private of the Eleventh Police Precinct, was ordered retired yesterday by the District Commissioners on his own recommendation. He was the oldest policeman in the Metropolitan Police Department, had been in the service 43 years, and was still in good health.

In applying for the retirement recently, he explained that he had passed a medical examination last spring, but added: "I thought maybe I would take a little rest, at my age, you know. I served three years in the Navy before coming here."

The retirement of John J. Geier, 63 years old, a private in the Harbor Precinct, was also approved. He had served more than 32 years and was also in fair health. William M. Gilfoyle, a private in the Third Precinct, was retired at the same time because of physical disability. He is 52 years old.

LAND PURCHASE BILL FOR RIVER PARKWAY MEETS DIFFICULTIES

Capper-Cramton Measure to Provide $3,000,000 Is Given Hearing.

PROTESTS ARE VOICED BY PROPERTY OWNERS

The Capper-Crampton bill, to provide $3,000,000 immediately for purchase of land for the George Washington Memorial Parkway along the Potomac River, fell into a few difficulties at a public hearing before the Senate District committee yesterday and action was postponed by the committee.

Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, in charge of public buildings and grounds and executive officer of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, was the principal witness. Col. Grant proposed an amendment to the bill, but when he was called on to explain he declared the amendment wasn't exactly clear in his own mind, explaining that it had been proposed by one of his subordinate officers and he asked leave to take it back and get more light on the subject.

Mrs. Agnes Newman, representing the residents of Wellington Villa and Arcturus, Va., protested to the committee that the Government should not insist on taking their homes from property owners along the Mount Vernon boulevard right of way. That difficulty was met to some extent by Col. Grant, who said that he agreed that it was too bad for the Government to come along and take by force citizens' homes. Col. Grant suggested that the matter might be worked out by way of agreement between property owners and the Park and Planning Commission whereby the property would be left in possession of the owners under agreements with the Government about its future use. The Government is concerned lest the memorial roadway be marred with unsightly private development.

Miss Harlean James, secretary of the American Civic Association, told the committee that her association believed enactment of the measure was of national importance.

MRS. ISABEL M. PARK DIES.

Resident of City Since Civil War to Be Buried Monday.

Mrs. Isabel M. Park, wife of the late Casius M. Park, died yesterday at her home, 5518 Ridgewood avenue, Chevy Chase, Md., following a lengthy illness. She was 75 years old.

Mrs. Park was a native of Baltimore, Md. At the outbreak of the Civil War she moved to nearby Virginia, and was educated in the Virginia public schools. Following the Civil War she made her home in Washington. She had resided with her daughter, Mrs. Ivy Park Cain, in Chevy Chase, for nearly eight years. Besides her daughter, Mrs. Park is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Jennie B. Brown, of Chevy Chase, Md., and Mrs. Elizabeth Jacobs, of Takoma Park, Md.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 o'clock at her residence. Interment will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Funeral Set Today For Mother Killian

G. U. Officials Will Go to Pennsylvania to Attend Last Rites.

Officials of Georgetown University will attend in Glenriddle, Pa., today the funeral of the late Rev. Mother Mary Killian, mother general of the Sisters of St. Francis, under whose care is Georgetown University Hospital.

Mother Killian died last Monday at the Convent of Our Lady of Angels, Laverne Heights, Glenriddle, having been in ill health for about two years. She was well known in Washington Catholic circles. She had been a member of the Third Order of St. Francis for 45 years and was in her tenth year as the mother general of the order.

She was born 67 years ago in Trenton, N. J. Most of her years in the order had been spent in the Far West, chiefly in Washington and Oregon. A number of the sisters at the Georgetown University Hospital are in Glenriddle for the funeral which will be at 10 o'clock this morning. Dr. W. Coleman Nevils, S. J., president of Georgetown University, and Rev. John L. Gipprich, S. J., regent of the medical school which has charge of the hospital, will represent the university.
